EUROPEANS KILLED, OTHERS WOUNDED IN NEW CANTON FIGHT

Machine Guns Guarding Shameen Quell Rioters Said to Be Russian Led.

BRITISH TROOPS ARE SENT

But New Attack Threatens and Foreigners Put Up More Fortifications.

AMOY ASKS FOR WARSHIPS

Britishers in Kowloon Area Go to Hongkong When Warned by Friendly Chinese.

CANTON, Thursday, June 25 (AP).—Several Europeans were killed and many others were wounded yesterday when fighting broke out between Chinese agitators and residents of Shameen, the foreign concession here.

The situation resulting from the anti-foreign agitation was even more intense today.

Chinese threatened to attack the foreign settlement at noon, but the attack did not occur at that hour.

Additional fortifications have been erected in the British and French concessions. Japanese landing parties have arrived.

The break yesterday came after demonstrators fired in the direction of Shameen Tuesday, killing a non-combatant Frenchman, E. Pasquier, and injuring Commissioner of Customs Edwards and V. G. Murrell, a chemist. The latter was shot in the arm. Edwards was wounded in the knee.

HONGKONG, June 24.—All accounts of yesterday's shooting at Shameen, the Canton foreign settlement, are that native aggression was primarily responsible for it. The naval wireless service states that a more or less peaceful demonstration was proceeding when the students forming the tail of the procession suddenly fired on Shameen, killing the French silk merchant, Pasquier, and wounding a number of British subjects.

Independent witnesses assert that there also was firing from buildings on the Chinese side of the river where barricades had been erected and a Russian officer was seen. They say that cadets trained by Russians and numbering 2,000 or 3,000 brought up the rear of the procession, from which the first firing came. They were commanded by mounted Russians, who wore masks.

The Russians shouted and waved their hands to the cadets, who responded similarly. The Russian then fired two shots, and cadets wheeled and fired their fusillade at the foreign settlement.

Women and non-combatants fled in a panic for shelter.

French, British, Portuguese, Japanese and American sailors and volunteers replied with rifle fire, covering the retreat of the Consuls and senior naval officers, who were on one of the bridges spanning the creek which separates Shameen from Canton.

It is noteworthy that the volunteers had been instructed not to load until the naval Commandant gave the order, and therefore they could not possibly have fired first.

The Chinese continued to attack and attempted to storm the bridges of Shameen. The machine guns then opened fire, the French guns being particularly deadly, and the demonstrators and spectators, hundreds of whom were hit, fled. The attack was thus repulsed but Shameen's electrical supply was cut off and the defenders spent a dark, anxious night. Women, children, the wounded and some non-combatants went aboard the gunboats and river ships, one of which brought 150 refugees to Hongkong today. Shameen today is virtually an armed camp. Indian troops are been sent to increase the total of defenders.

British Troops Sent to Shameen.

HONGKONG, June 24 (AP).—A detachment of British Indian troops left today for Shameen, the foreign section of Canton, as a precautionary measure, following yesterday's outbreak.

The Government of Canton has issued an order forbidding further attacks against Shameen, the foreign settlement of Canton. Arrangements are being made for a meeting to discuss the situation.

The remaining foreign women and children from Shameen arrived in Hongkong last night on the British steamer Khaki.

The British Consul General at Canton, it is learned, sent a note to the Canton Government on Monday, prior to yesyesterday's shooting incident, warning the Chinese authorities that any attempt to penetrate Shameen, the foreign settlement, would be resisted by force and that the Government would be held responsible for the consequences.

The Consul General said he was drafting the document because he had learned that, during the planned patriotic demonstration, student elements intended "making martyrs of themselves by attacking the bridges leading to Shameen."

Carrying about 150 women and children, refugees from Canton, the steamship Honam arrived here today. At Canton the crew of Chinese stokers deserted and were replaced by men from the U. S. S. Asheville, a gunboat stationed off Shameen.

Chicago Council Asks Advice On Seceding From the State

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 24.—A resolution introduced in the City Council today by Alderman Toman of the Twenty-third Ward proposed to ask the Corporation Counsel to submit an opinion on the procedure to be followed to separate the city of Chicago from the State. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

The resolution declares that the Legislature had failed to follow the Constitution of the State, which required a reapportionment of representation on the basis of population every decade. It seeks the information in the event the city and the territory adjacent should wish to secede.

Alderman Toman points out that by the census of Cook County taken in 1920 this district would have at least five more Senators and fifteen more Representatives in the Legislature, and declares that Chicago and Cook County were being discriminated against.

COOLIDGES ARRIVE AT SUMMER HOME

They Get a Cordial Welcome in Salem and on Their Motor Ride to Swampscott.

GO FIRST TO STEARNS HOME

They Will Visit Vermont Soon to Spend Anniversary of Son's Death With Col. Coolidge.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., June 24.—President and Mrs. Coolidge arrived early today on the North Shore, to be warmly welcomed by historic Salem, where the train journey ended at 7 o'clock. Within a few hours the President's flag was raised over "White Court," which will be the Summer White House for nearly two months.

With the exception of two weeks the business of Government during the Summer will be conducted in the typical New England house that stands at the sea's edge, shaded with ancient elms. It had been expected that Mr. Coolidge would remain here until late in August. These are not his present plans, however, and after he is comfortably quartered here and the office is well organized the Summer White House will be moved to Plymouth, Vt.

This temporary desertion of the seaside for a week in the mountains of Vermont will take place early next month, so that the President and Mrs. Coolidge will be with Colonel Coolidge at the President's birthplace on the anniversary of the death of Calvin Coolidge Jr.

They will make the trip by motor, and absolute privacy will be sought.

Colonel Coolidge has not been in good health and the stay at the President's birthplace will not extend beyond a week. It will follow soon after the President's speech at Cambridge at the 150th anniversary of Washington's taking command of the Continental Army.

Receives a Cordial Welcome.

It is nine years since a President established the seat of Government away from the heat of the capital. Therefore this occasion was of more than ordinary interest to the citizens along the railroad route, and at this seaside village and in quaint Salem, where the President alighted to make the four-mile trip by motor to Swampscott. All along the rail journey there were many waving hands as the President's special went by.

The reception at Salem was cordial and the outpouring of thousands, many known to the President, was especially pleasing to Mr. Coolidge. He is no stranger, he and Mrs. Coolidge having spent many Summers here as the guests of Frank W. Stearns, his political adviser.

President Coolidge, always an early riser, left his drawing room on the train as the first whistles from the factories were heard. He went out on the platform of the observation car, smiled broadly down on the friendly and kindly faces and, waving an acknowledgment of the cheers, he re-entered the car and a few seconds later reappeared with Mrs. Coolidge. The latter is very popular here and when the throng saw her smile the cheering became louder.

Frank W. Stearns, Senator William M. Butler and Mrs. John Jacob Rogers, now campaigning to succeed her dead husband as a member of Congress from the Fifth District, formed an impromptu reception committee. The entire party,

CHAMBERLAIN URGES ALL PARTIES TO BACK SECURITY COMPACT

Calls Isolation Impossible, No Nation Now Being Able to Stand Alone.

NO FREE HAND FOR FRANCE

MACDONALD ASSAILS PLAN

Lloyd George Criticizes It Mildly, but Great Majority of Commons Manifests Approval.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—The House of Commons was crowded this afternoon for the security debate when, a few moments before the session opened, two gentlemen bumped each other in taking their seats in the front row of the diplomatic gallery. The French Ambassador looked up, to see he had run into the German Ambassador. They smiled, shook hands and sat down side by side to listen to Foreign Minister Austen Chamberlain's eloquent and forceful presentation of the British Government's case for the proposed Allied-German Rhineland compact.

In pleading for Great Britain to assume new burdens to assure peace Mr. Chamberlain made what is called the best speech of his career. Advocating a move which may shape British foreign policy for fifty years, he derided the isolationists and declared that, nice sounding theories to the contrary, there was no such thing as a great nation today being isolated, and that even if a great people in all solemnity decided on an isolationistic policy they would only be fooling themselves, for things would not work out that way.

Calls Security Compact Best Way Out.

Britain, he said, could talk isolation, but the hard, cold fact was that another European war would bring her in despite all resolutions to the contrary, and facing that situation was the best policy as well as the best principle to undertake to prevent future war. In the proposed security compact he saw the best method of working to that end.

Britain's new commitment, he said, was to guarantee the frontier between France and Germany. That was the limit of this commitment. Britain would remain under obligations coming from other treaties, like the Covenant of the League of Nations and the Treaty of Versailles, but her new commitment would be strictly limited. The Rhine compact would not solve all problems, but it was a local guarantee in a danger spot to take its place beside other guarantees offered by the Covenant of the League to member nations.

The essential part of the proposed bargain would be Germany's entrance into the League and her assumption of its full duties and her enjoyment of its full rights.

They did not intend, he said, that the Rhine barrier should serve as a protection for a nation guilty of wrongdoing, and the general plans for punishing international wrongdoers under the League Covenant could not be set aside by the compact; but what was meant was that England in the bilateral treaty sought to maintain the Rhine between Germany and France.

There was no intention of giving France carte blanche to violate the Rhine barrier and the only conditions on which French soldiers could cross, he declared, were set forth in established international machinery like the Covenant of the League and existing treaties.

Proposal Attacked by MacDonald.

Ramsay MacDonald, for the Labor Party, attacked the proposal on the ground that it would lead to war, since if Britain guaranteed one frontier it meant that that frontier would become involved in any future war. He swung back to the Geneva protocol as the best system, and in the arrangement he helped to draft last September he saw a far better system than the one now offered.

Lloyd George, for the Liberals, of course approved the general idea and felt that England in honor was bound to do something for France after the failure of the tripartite treaty, due to America's not ratifying it. While approving the general spirit of Chamber-

Pistol Shots Halt Snapshots of Mayor As Police Pursue Ex-Convict Past City Hall

While Mayor Hylan was posing for a photograph yesterday noon on the steps of the City Hall with members of the baseball teams of Flushing High School and Lane Technical High School of Chicago two shots sounded in the vicinity of the Post Office building, across City Hall Park. Then the Mayor and his guests watched an exhibition of sprinting by Patrolman Francis Bowman, police champion, who, starting with several yards handicap against him, caught Tony Squazza, an ex-convict, fleeing from parole officers after a race through Mail Street and south along Park Row to Ann Street.

Two parole officers saw Squazza near the Federal Building, and, suspecting that the paroled prisoner had been in court for some recent offense, asked him what he was doing. Without replying Squazza fled, followed by the parole officers, one of whom fired. Squazza apparently was escaping when the chase was joined by Bowman.

Squazza was brought back to the Federal Building, where it was learned he had just been released in bail on a narcotic charge.

Frank Brady, one of the parole officers, told Judge Knox that Squazza had been released from the reformatory three months ago, having served ten months for unlawful entry, and had been paroled for a period of two years. A month ago he was arrested by Federal agents on a narcotic charge. Judge Knox committed the prisoner for twenty-four hours, that his Federal sentence may become operative before he is returned to the reformatory.

FARABEE, FAMOUS EXPLORER, DEAD

40 Blood Transfusions Fail to Save Scientist Who Spent Many Years in the Wilds.

NEW LIGHT ON THE INCAS

He Brought From South American Forests Material Revealing Ancient Civilization.

After being kept alive for two years by blood transfusions, Dr. William Curtis Farabee, Curator of the American Section of the University of Pennsylvania Museum, who was characterized by the late Theodore Roosevelt as the greatest explorer of South America, died yesterday in Washington Hospital, Washington, Pa.

Relatives, friends and other volunteers gave their blood in transfusion operations a total of forty times. During the last six months these operations took place almost weekly.

Dr. Farabee suffered repeatedly from mysterious fevers during his explorations of South America, and these eventually resulted in pernicious anemia, which ended his life after a struggle of three years.

From his last trip in 1922 into previously unexplored sections of Peru, Dr. Fayabee brought back large collections of material of great importance in tracing the origins of the great ancient Peruvian civilization, but he was unable to work on this material, and it lies in unopened cases in a storehouse of the University Museum. With such energy as he could muster during brief periods of renewed vitality after transfusion operations, the scientist had been at work on four different books. These are unfinished. Whether the notes he left are in shape for publication is unknown.

On Harvard Faculty.

Dr. Farabee was born at Washington, Pa., Feb. 7, 1865. He was graduated from Waynesburg College and took his doctor's degree at Harvard. He taught school in Pennsylvania for a while and became instructor in anthropology at Harvard in 1901. The explorations which eventually brought him a reputation as an explorer and anthropologist began in 1905, when he headed the De Milhau-Harvard South American Expedition, which explored little-known sections of Peru for three years.

In 1912 Dr. Farabee became Curator of the American Section of the Pennsylvania University Museum. In the following year he returned to South America. He spent three years in the Guianas and Peru. He penetrated country never visited by white men, found three previously unknown tribes and explored a broad territory north of the Amazon River.

The work of these three years gave the Pennsylvania University Museum the finest collection of South American archaeological and other scientific material in the world. The magnificent gold jewelry of ancient date which he brought from South America started theories that the great South American civilization was somehow an offshoot from the classic civilization of the Mediterranean. The relics which Dr. Farabee collected of the Incas' urn burial customs and of their ceramics and other arts put new life into the theory, widely held abroad but generally disbelieved in this country, that the culture of ancient Egypt migrated into Asia and then gradually crossed the Pacific, to find eventual lodgment in South and Central America.

Came Back Sick Man.

Dr. Farabee came back in 1916 a sick man. He had lost eighty pounds. The hardships he suffered in the three years belong to the annals of exploration. Shaken with fever, his clothing in shreds, he finally emerged from the jungles of Guiana a physical wreck. He was carried to the hospital at Georgetown, capital of British Guiana. When he was convalescent he went to Barbados, where he spent several months in recuperating. Roosevelt, on his trip to the Windward and Leeward Islands in 1916, at the time of his famous offer to run for President if the country was in a "heroic mood," met Farabee, and their friendship became very close.

Returning to this country, Dr. Farabee was engaged in the work of arranging his collections when President Wilson appointed him an expert of ethnology and requested him to attend the Peace Conference. At Versailles he prepared the ethnological maps which were used by the Peace Commission.

In 1922 Dr. Farabee returned to Peru for the museum, penetrating to a remote section, where the hardships of climate and travel were great. He was taken down by fever and nursed for a long time by an Indian tribe. An In-

BROADWAY GEM SHOP HELD UP FOR $200,000

ELABORATE ALARM FAILS

Thousands Pass, Many Policemen Near, as Bandits Snatch Loot, Dash to Street, Escape.

Holding up the clerk and porter with revolvers, two robbers stole mounted diamonds reported as worth $200,000 at 10 o'clock yesterday from the store of Marcus Feldman at 1,543 Broadway, between Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth Streets.

During the hold-up streams of pedestrians, automobiles and street cars were passing by the store, which is a few doors above the Hotel Astor and about half-way between the Astor and Gaiety Theatres. A policeman was directing traffic about 100 feet away and several other policemen were in the vicinity, but the robbers had lost themselves in the crowds before the alarm reached the policemen.

Feldman has had a jewelry business in the neighborhood for fifteen years. He has escaped hold-ups before, but as other jewelers successively were looted he installed an alarm system which seemed to be bandit-proof. He studied the floor under his counter with brass buttons. At a touch of the toe one of these buttons starts a clamor of gongs which resounds through near-by streets. But neither the clerk nor the porter had the chance, as they told the story, to step on the alarm.

Clerk and Porter in Store.

The store had been opened at 9 A. M. by Morris Sidney of 1,030 Kelly Street, the Bronx, a short middle-aged man with gray hair, gray mustache, a small gray triangle on the lower lip and eyes which were still wide and startled when he told about the robbery yesterday afternoon.

Sidney had opened the safe, but had not taken the jewels out to place in the windows and the showcases. He had served one customer. As soon as the customer went out, he began hanging colored bead necklaces and other cheap trinkets in the window. He was doing this at 10 o'clock when the two young men entered. Joseph Chyned, the colored porter, was mopping in front of the showcase near the front door.

As the two robbers came in they had their revolvers drawn and on the clerk and the porter before a word was spoken. Sidney, at work on the window, turned to find a revolver pointing at his side, the muzzle being about three inches away.

"Get back there or I'll shoot you," whispered one of the bandits in Sidney's ear. The bandit had got to the rear of the counter by a long swinging mahogany gate at the front of the store. He prodded Sidney with the pistol and growled, "run."

Sidney ran the distance of fifteen feet to the rear of the store with the bandit at his heels and the revolver at his back. A calculated false step on his part would have placed one of his feet on the bandit alarms, but the pistol muzzle was too close to encourage the clerk to play any tricks. He arrived at the back of the store just as the second bandit drove back the frightened porter.

Bandits Truss Up Prisoners.

"Sit down on the floor," commanded Sidney's captor, a well dressed, good-looking boy in a straw hat. The other bandit was a dark youngster with snapping black eyes and a cap. Sidney and the porter could not give a better description, because they were ordered to look down at the floor and to stretch their wrists out. Sidney cried out when the rope cut into the flesh.

"Don't tie me," he said.

"You make a sound and I'll kill you. Look down, don't look at me."

Both men were sufficiently trussed. One of the bandits caught sight of Sidney in a mirror.

"Damn you, look away," he said. "You were looking at me in the mirror. Look at me again and I'll kill you."

When the faces of the bound men were turned to the wall one man stood guard over them and the other scooped out hundreds of diamond and platinum pieces—rings, lavallieres, bracelets and pins—from the safe into a bag. He apparently wrapped this up in the porter's coat, as the coat was later found to be missing.

"Now, listen," said one of the bandits to the roped men on the floor. "Don't think you're going to get away with a thing. We're going to clean things up out front now. I figure it'll take us ten minutes. If you make so much as a sound before ten minutes are up, you'll both get plugged."

The bandits, however, did not even look at the cheap pieces out in the store. They ran for it, bumping into a

CRAIG CALLS HYLAN DEMAND ON CITY AIDS A CRIME; ASKS TRIAL

Writes to District Attorney That Call for Renomination Support Violated Penal Code.

SENDS LETTER TO GOVERNOR

Reminds Smith That He Has the Power to Remove the Mayor.

CITES WILLETT CONVICTION

Head of Civil Service Reform Association Warns City Department Officials Against Political Activity.

Controller Charles L. Craig charged yesterday that Mayor Hylan in demanding support for a renomination from his commissioners and other appointees, under what some of them construed as a threat of removal otherwise, had broken the criminal law. The Controller in a letter to District Attorney Joab H. Banton demanded that Mr. Hylan be prosecuted.

Mr. Craig sent a copy of his letter to Governor Smith accompanied by a brief letter in which he remarked that the power of removal lay with the Governor.

The letter to Mr. Banton specifically alleged violation of Section 775 of the penal law, which defines "corrupt use of position or authority" and provides as punishment therefor imprisonment for not more than two years, a fine of not more than $3,000 or both. Mr. Craig cited as a precedent the conviction in 1915 of William Willett, a candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court, who was accused of corruptly bargaining for the nomination. Willett's conviction was upheld by the Court of Appeals. Mr. Craig asserted that the speech Mayor Hylan made to the assembled officeholders whom he had summoned to the City Hall on Monday was in plain English a threat of removal against any of those present who failed to back up the Mayor's third term ambitions.

Refers to Mayor's Speech.

He made direct reference to that part of the speech in which the Mayor said that any member of the official family who might be embarrassed in keeping such official family "intact" would be a weak link in the official chain, and added: "He will see the necessity for the removal of such weakness which can most speedily be accomplished by his voluntary separation from the official family." The Controller then declared that the effect of the Mayor's utterance was immediate and unanimous, as all vied with one another in urging the passing of a motion that another four years should be given to him.

When Controller Craig's letters were read over the telephone to Mayor Hylan last night his only reply was:

"No one will pay any attention to Controller Craig's rantings, except those who are in sympathy with the traction increased fare interests, who wish to secure control of the City Government."

Neither Mr. Banton nor Governor Smith made any comment last night. Among politicians the Controller's action aroused deep interest but none was willing to comment publicly in advance of careful study, particularly in view of the fact that the attitudes of the District Attorney and the Governor were not known. It was pointed out, however, that Mr. Craig dropped from the city payroll last November Murray Hulbert, then President of the Board of Aldermen, on the ground that Mr. Hulbert had forfeited his office by accepting a post in the State Park Commission, an honorary body, and that in that instance Mr. Craig's interpretation of a law governing city officials had been upheld by the courts.

The Civil Service Reform Association also took cognizance yesterday of Mayor Hylan's action with his official family by sending to the heads of all city departments a letter signed by its President, Samuel H. Ordway, warning them against political activity and quoting Sections 25 and 27 of the Civil Service law. Conferences of public officials with their subordinates for the purpose of coercing them to help obtain or support the nomination or election of any candidate, it was pointed out, are direct violations of the Civil Service law.

Holders of Depreciated Bonds Rush Reichstag, Demanding Hindenburg Regime Pay Them

BERLIN, June 24.—Two hundred angry men and women whose meagre savings were invested in pre-war securities poured angrily into the Reichstag building late this afternoon, resolved to make things hot for Nationalist Party Deputies who have failed to keep election promises to bring a financial millennium.

The crowd was bent particularly on finding Count von Westarp, the fiery Nationalist orator, and give him a piece of its mind, considering it high time for him to do something.

Many of the Nationalist Deputies got wind of the invasion in time to dive into the innermost recesses of the big Reichstag building. Others were not so lucky. The men and women, brandishing sticks and umbrellas, surrounded them, gesticulating wildly and telling the embarrassed Deputies in picturesque phrases exactly what they thought of them.

Every time the Deputies tried to talk they were howled down. The Communists were delighted over the row going on in the Reichstag corridor and joined the invaders, telling them they were quite right and urging them to make things thoroughly uncomfortable for the Nationalists.

Finally the crowd rushed into the Reichstag restaurant, where most of the Nationalists had taken refuge. Pointing scornfully at those seated at the tables, leaders of the crowd shouted, "Look at those fat chaps gobbling and guzzling instead of getting us our savings back."

It was 7 o'clock this evening before the last of the invaders was persuaded to leave. The trouble was due to the wearisome delay in getting German progress. Obligations "revalorised," that is, granting those holding them a reasonable part of what they invested before the German crash came.

ANDERSON ORGANIZES A NEW DRY ALLIANCE

Fomer Anti-Saloon League Head Announces 'A. P. P. P. P. A.' Will Start in Fall.

DREW UP PLANS IN PRISON

Society to Be Protestant, Patriotic and Protective—Will Not Attack Church or Religion.

William H. Anderson announced yesterday the formation of the "American Prohibition Protestant Patriotic Protective Alliance," with himself as "Founder and General Secretary."

In his announcement Mr. Anderson said it would be "a league offensive and defensive, of allied Protestant Americans to resist abject surrender in the name of bogus 'tolerance' of everything vital to true religion and a genuine patriotism—four-square in defense of American institutions and civil and religious liberty against every secret conspiracy and every open attack of anti-American or anti-Protestant hate, passion, bigotry or religious fanaticism."

While serving nine months of a minimum term of one year in Sing Sing on a charge of forgery in the third degree, in connection with his manipulation of the books and funds of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, of which he was formerly State Superintendent, Anderson says he worked out the details of the organization. Next Fall he will go actively to work in laying the foundation for the American Prohibition Protestant Patriotic Protective Alliance, according to his statement, which follows:

"As founder and general secretary, in behalf of a founders' group of its natural constituency, I formally announce a new Protestant movement, an 'American Prohibition Protestant Patriotic Protective Alliance,' which, national in scope, will be 'a league, offensive and defensive, of "allied Protestant Americans" to resist abject surrender, in the name of a bogus "tolerance" of everything vital to true religion and a genuine patriotism—foursquare in defense of American institutions and civil and religious liberty against every secret conspiracy and every open attack of anti-American or anti-Protestant hate, passion, bigotry, intolerance or religious fanaticism.'

"This movement has been germinating in my mind for some years. My prosecution and punishment for an alleged crime in the absence of injury to another or profit to myself, and without any proof of criminal intent, completed the job of convincing me of the need for it to protect future generations of American citizens who may dare to oppose a wet alien anti-Protestantism dominant in the larger American cities. By driving me out of a position with an agency limited to the liquor question, the enemy has forced me to consider other phases of anti-Americanism and anti-Protestantism.

Worked Out Plan in Prison.

"My imprisonment gave me the opportunity to work out every essential detail of a practical plan. My time since release has been spent in perfecting it and establishing new contacts and further alliances. Instead of being limited to a single State edition of an Anti-Saloon League paper, I will have weekly access to millions of Protestants through the columns of a national publication favoring dry enforcement, but primarily devoted to an issue which is likely to swallow up the dry question, and which already has in four years more circulation than all publications of the Anti-Saloon League combined have after over thirty years.

"This new movement will not be either an opponent, nor even a competitor of any existing dry or fraternal organization. On the other hand, neither will it be a part of, nor controlled by any such. It will make a new and distinct appeal to the best of the constituency

Two Newark School Boys Isolated as Lepers; Danger of Contagion Slight, Say Physicians

Two boys, brothers, 11 and 13 years old, both pupils of Avon Avenue Public School in Newark, are isolated at the Essex County Hospital at Soho, Belleville, N. J., suffering from leprosy. The patients are Hale and Frank George, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Francis George of 184 Peshine Avenue, Newark.

On June 12 a school nurse in examining Frank discovered that he had a peculiar skin disease. The boy was examined by Dr. E. D. Newman of the Newark Memorial Hospital and the disease diagnosed as leprosy. When Hale was examined it was discovered that he, too, was suffering from the same disease. The boys were immediately sent to the hospital and isolated. School authorities caused the classrooms in the school to be fumigated. Books and other paraphernalia were burned. Other children of the couple and pupils in the school were examined as a matter of precaution.

The George family came to this country from Bermuda about six years ago. The father of the family is not a citizen, and instead of making plans to have the patients sent to the leper colony at Carville, La., the health authorities are seeking the aid of the Federal Government to have the family deported. Dr. George J. Holmes, Medical Superintendent of Schools, said yesterday that he was of the opinion that danger to other pupils or persons who came in contact with the two victims was "extremely slight."

Dr. Newman, in reviewing the case, said that there was not much danger in this climate of contagion. There never has been a case of leprosy developed in the North among white persons who had not been in a leprosy-breeding climate. It was his belief that the boys had become afflicted in Bermuda and carried the disease here with them.

Governor Renews Charges That Outside Influences Are Dominating Opposition.

GIVES OUT HEWITT LETTER

Senator Wrote Moses He Hoped Nothing Would Interfere With Fair Haven Park.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 24.—The Republican leaders of the Legislature today rejected the compromise proposed by Governor Smith on park legislation in his "statement to the people," issued last night. They declare that their decision is final and add that even if they, personally, were of a mind to accept, it would be futile for them to attempt to change the attitude of the rank and file of the majority.

This was the outstanding feature of the situation surrounding the special session of the Legislature today. Next in interest was the making public of a letter written by Senator Hewitt to the State Park Council, saying that he was interested in the Fair Haven park project and hoped nothing would interfere with it, although yesterday he had said the Governor was a "liar" if he imputed to the Senator interest in the park proposal in question.

No one who has observed the situation since the Legislature convened on Monday night impartially can reach any other conclusion than that a settlement of the State Park problem on its merits at the present extraordinary session is out of the question. To that extent has personal bitterness against Governor Smith taken hold of the Republicans, leaders and rank and file alike. It is the dominant note at the Capitol tonight. It will continue to be until the end of the extra session. Undoubtedly it will be carried over into next year, when a Legislature with a new Assembly will meet for what may become one of the most important legislative sessions in the annals of the State.

Culmination of Bitterness.

"Governor Smith must be defeated at all costs." This appears to be the watchword of the Republicans, who will meet to consider finally the pending park legislation the day after tomorrow. Already they are referring to Friday as the day when the funeral oration over the Governor's park program will be heard. They are emphasizing that, not the fact that they expect to put through their own measure—the Thayer Park Appropriation bill—on that day.

The Republicans in both branches are bitter against the Governor for vetoing the first Thayer bill after the regular session. They are bitter against him for calling them back in extraordinary session. They are bitter against him for the bombardment from the Executive Chamber to which they were subjected during the final weeks of the regular session and have been subjected since Monday at the extra session. They are bitter over the defeats he administered to their party in forcing the reduction of the income tax and the adoption of the measure for a $300,000,000 bond issue for the elimination of grade crossings, and what these Smith victories involved in the way of lowered Republican prestige.

All that bitterness is summed up in their present attitude. The Governor could not have found the Legislature they dominate in a mood less suited to a compromise on any question. Hymns of hate were chanted in the Senate today and there will be more of the same music in both houses when the park bill is taken up for final debate on Friday.

Still Laboring With Ward.

The Senate and Assembly met briefly, but as a whole this has been a day of belligerent talk rather than one of developments. Most of the lawmakers have gone to their homes, with orders to return on Friday for the end of the session.

Of the expected revolt of the Republican lawmakers from Westchester County no word has been received. Governor Smith said this evening that he was in the dark with regard to them. W. Deevan Baldwin, head of the Westchester Park Commission, is still supposed to be in Westchester County laboring with William I. Ward, the veteran leader, in an effort to win him over to the compromise proposed by the Governor, and with him the delegation from his political bailiwick.

Speaker McGinnies and Senator Knight say they expect the members from Westchester to stay in line for the Thayer bill. One Westchester member who remained at the capitol said tonight that he had heard of nothing to indicate a change.

"If the compromise plan had been submitted to us when we first came here, it might have been a different story," he said. "Mr. Ward has told me that as far as he was concerned there never was any authority for the statement that the Republican legislators from Westchester would support the Governor at the extra session, even though Westchester stands to lose $750,000 of much wanted money for parks in the event that the Governor should not see his way clear to sign the bill we pass on Friday."

Governor Smith renewed his charge that Republican lawmakers had been driven into line for the Thayer bill and against his own proposal under the lash of the party whip and that outside influences were dominating the action and policies of the Republican opposition. There were two such in the Senate today by saying the party would choose situation in the twinkling of an eye, he asserted. He mentioned no names, but it is understood that he had in mind United States Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr. and Representative Ogden L. Mills, who of late has been forging to the front as one of the most influential men in the Republican Party in the State.

"These fellows upstairs have got the sealed orders in their pockets and they cannot change them," Governor Smith told the newspaper correspondents. "The only way the situation can be changed is from the outside. They are driving these poor fellows like a lot of sheep, and standing in the background themselves. I do not have to name any names around there. You fellows all know who I mean, but there are a couple of men around this State who can settle this thing right away, and all they have to do is take their hands off these men upstairs."

"Are you going to seek another conference with the Republican leaders to place the compromise proposal officially before them," the Governor was asked.

"What is the use of conferring with the legislative leaders about this?" he replied. "I have nothing to do with it. Outside of the Speaker of the Assembly, who came down here to talk to me about a message to enable the Legislature to make an appropriation for the paying of the expenses for the extraordinary session, not a single Republican legislator, not one, has come near the Executive Office. They cannot do it because there is nothing they can say when they come here. They are helplessly tied hand and foot, bound and gagged. Their watchword is 'It is better we have an organization, even if we have to lie in the gutter, than to give the people of the State parks, if it means any advantage at all to Smith.'

Says Mills Befogs Issue.

"This park program, aside from the organization of Bear Mountain Park, is the first attempt that the State has ever made to give relief by way of additional parks and parkways to the 6,500,000 people in the City of New York. The members of the Legislature on the Republican side are lashed to the rigging and the five leaders of the Republican Party in Greater New York maintain a silence that makes the Sphinx a talking machine. The big leaders of the party are afraid to talk.

"Ogden L. Mills has a great deal to say about the operation of the Republican Party in this State and he is befogging the issue by writing foolish letters about the State's surplus.

"Outside of George Morris not a single one of them has got enough nerve to express himself. He did, however, and he is not taken seriously, because of the oft-repeated statement of his that 'I am a business man and not a politician. I do not know how I got into this, but I am here.'"

Chairman George K. Morris of the Republican State Committee came here today and probably will remain until the end of the session to watch the various moves of the Governor and the leaders of his own party. He declined to make any comment for publication on the Governor's statement or on the conflict that is in progress except to say that he did not worry over the situation.

Won't Hear of Compromise.

The Governor's compromise proposal, involving the abolition of the State Park Council as a separate body and making it a division in the Department of Conservation; the substitution of Conservation Commissioner Alexander Macdonald as head of the new State park organization for Robert Moses, the present Chairman of the council, who has incurred the dislike of the Republican leaders, and the adding of the Attorney General and State Controller to the membership of the council was declared by all the Republican leaders in the Legislature as not acceptable.

"Before the Governor sprung his compromise proposal the State Park Council had already made an identical suggestion," Senator Knight said. "We told them that we would not accept it and would stand for the Thayer bill because we felt it was right in principle to give the Land Board supervision over purchases of land for the State."

Speaker McGinnies pointed out that the plan proposed by the Governor was impracticable and inconsistent from the Governor's own view.

"The Governor proposes to add the State Controller to the State Park Council membership," he said. "If the Constitutional amendment is ratified by the voters it would be unconstitutional to have the State Controller function in that capacity. The amendment provides specifically that he shall be the auditing official of the State and that he shall be assigned no administrative functions whatever."

"Of the eighty who voted for the Thayer bill at the conference Monday night there was not one who had been subjected to any pressure from his constituents to vote for the Governor's plan. There was no need to argue with them in this instance. They were clamoring for an opportunity to go on record in favor of the Thayer bill from the moment the conference started."

No Pressure, Asserts McGinnies.

"No pressure is being brought to bear on anybody from our side of the Legislature. The most important thing, from my point of view, is a Republican Assembly next year, and I certainly would not attempt to influence any Republican Assemblyman to cast his vote in any way that would get him in wrong with his constituents."

"We are here to help the Governor rectify the grave error he committed when he vetoed the Thayer bill after the regular session," said Simon L. Adler, Republican floor leader in the Assembly. "We are going to send that bill back to him. The Governor can perform his duty as he sees it when the bill reaches him. He is not a legislator. We will attend to the legislative end."

Eberly Hutchinson, Chairman of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, said that the Governor's compromise plan had already been rejected by the Republicans when it was privately offered to the leaders by the Park Council.

Senator Hewitt, Chairman of the Finance Committee, expressed the conviction that Governor Smith would sign the Thayer bill.

"The Governor," he said, "has already said that any bill acceptable to the Park Council would be approved by him. Before he acts on the Thayer bill let him call a hearing and have the members of the council there. If they find that the Thayer bill is the best they can get, they will, in my opinion, urge the Governor to approve it."

At the Executive Office George B. Graves, secretary to the Governor, said that hundreds of letters, telegrams and telephone calls had been received there and by various radio stations congratulating the Governor on his recent radio talks. These, he added, had come from every State of the Union and even from abroad. One radio fan in Glinneath, in Southern Wales, wrote in that he had heard the Governor distinctly at 1 o'clock in the morning on one occasion when he delivered a radio address.

"In particular, the many admirers of the Governor praised his address to the legislators on Monday night when he told hundreds of thousands of listeners what he wants done regarding the establishment of parks in every corner of the State for those who cannot afford to have large private preserves," Mr. Graves said.

Governor Shows Senator Wanted Fair Haven Park.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 24.—That Charles J. Hewitt, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, was interested in a proposed park at Fair Haven in his district, despite his denial of yesterday and his assertion that Governor Smith was a "liar" in imputing interest in the project to him, was shown today when Governor Smith made public a letter written by the Senator to Chairman Moses of the State Park Council last December.

The Governor made the letter public at the moment when the Senate leader, Senator Knight, was warmly defending his colleague on the Senate floor and calling for an apology from the Executive chamber.

The letter was written to Mr. Moses on Dec. 31, 1924, when the Senator was at his home in Locke, Cayuga County. The Senator wrote:

My dear Mr. Moses:

I have yours of the twenty-sixth and note carefully what you say regarding the proposed park at Fair Haven, and that you were sending under separate cover the comments of the committee appointed to report on this subject.

These comments I have not as yet received and would like to get hold of them as I am very much interested in this matter and hope that nothing may happen to block it.

Thanking you for the interest you have shown, I am, with kind regards,

Yours very truly,
(Signed) C. J. HEWITT.

Yesterday Senator Hewitt said:

"If the Governor says that I am interested in this park and insisted that this appropriation be inserted, he is a liar. I never talked to the Park Council about this park and I am not interested in it. The people of my district do not care about it. I wish there wasn't a park in my district."

The letter was produced by Mr. Moses at the request of Governor Smith, who, when he received the newspaper men today, at once alluded to Senator Hewitt's statement of yesterday and declared that he wanted it clearly established who was the "liar," Governor Smith or Senator Hewitt.

"Our information," Mr. Moses said, after reading the letter, "was that the demand for a park at Fair Haven was strong and that some influential members of the Legislature were interested in it. We investigated the proposal. Senator Hewitt demanded at the beginning of the regular session that a specific sum be appropriated for Fair Haven in the Thayer bill. I told him this could not be done. So far as I know there was no change with respect to that at the regular session and there was no talk in the Legislature about a specific appropriation for this park, but it was understood that the necessary funds for this and other minor park projects would be provided from a lump sum appropriation in the bill."

"Senator Hewitt says he had no interest in this particular park," said Governor Smith, "but the Park Council has a letter showing that he was interested and here is the sum, $110,000 for Fair Haven, written into the Thayer bill at the special session. Some one had to put it in. The porter at the Ten Eyck Hotel didn't. Who did?"

"Search me," said Mr. Moses.

Knight Defends Hewitt.

The Hewitt episode engrossed the attention of the Senate to the exclusion of other topics at the brief session today. Senator Knight, rising to a question of personal privilege, defended his colleague.

"There was never any suggestion by Senator Hewitt as to any appropriation for Fair Haven. The least the Governor can do is to apologize to Senator Hewitt for this unjust attack."

"An important principle is involved in this issue, and that is whether the people shall be represented in the spending of $15,000,000 for parks by some approving body. The Republican members of the Legislature understand this as clearly as does the Governor. They will vote as they think, and this loose talk of invisible Government is only a resort for one who sees defeat.

"The Governor's pretext that he cannot present these matters directly to the Legislature is another dying wail. He made the unusual request to address the Legislature in joint session. That was granted. He wanted to radio his speech. That also was granted. There is absolutely nothing to prevent him sending to the Legislature at any time any statement or proposal he desires. The one he purports to make was made some days ago by a committee from the Park Council. There is no disposition to accept this. It denies the principle for which we contend in effect as much as does the Governor's bill.

"In conclusion let me say, that the insincerity of the Governor is shown in the efforts he employs to coerce the Legislature. If he were sincere he would not charge Senators with improieties and members of the Legislature with lack of independence."

Senator Bernard Downing of New York City, who was acting as leader of the Democratic minority replied to Senator Knight.

When Governor Smith was told about Senator Knight's statement, he recalled the Hewitt letter and said it spoke for itself and showed where an apology was due.

Knight Not Frank, Says Smith.

"Senator Knight is not frank about this matter," Governor Smith said. "Let him come down off the perch and stop attempting to deceive the people by his senseless talk of supervising bodies over the expenditure of money. That's not what he wants. He wants what he said himself—he wanted a court of appeals to which agrieved persons could present their grievances. What did the Senator mean by that? He meant to be of service to a small group of wealthy men on Long Island who are standing against the State park program, from Montauk Point to Niagara Falls, just because it does not meet their selfish ideas with regard to several places on Long Island. That's what the Senator really means and that's why he wants a political land board substituted for the Park Council.

"He knows as well as I do that the Land Board has absolutely no facilities for doing this work. He wants them in there, as he said himself, as a court of appeals. That's a nice, polite way for him to put it. I will revise it for him and tell him what he really wants them in there for. He wants them in there to serve selfish wealth and to upset the whole park program on Long Island, and to do that he is satisfied to tear up the plan for the whole State. That's another reckless remark in the Senator's statement.

"His next statement is the outstanding piece of burlesque in the whole situation. It is as follows:

"'Speaking of the Legislature, they will vote as they think.'

"He knows better than that. He has lost five pounds since 8 o'clock Monday night trying to keep them in line. He knows as well as I do of the resentment on the part of the members of the Legislature in the treatment that they are receiving from theleaders of their party.

"This is hard and grinding work, and if I did not have a sense of humor it would probably kill me, but I get a certain amount of amusement out of it, and nothing affords me more pleasure than to hear the Senator say 'the Governor is attempting to coerce the Legislature.'

In the Assembly the Adler bill, which is the companion measure of the Thayer bill, and the Wallace bill conferring authority on the Nassau County authorities to appropriate property for the broadening of their roads were on the calendar. Both were advanced to the order of third reading. They are on that order of business in the Senate also.

Notice was served on behalf of Minority Leader Bloch in the Assembly that, like Minority Leader Walker in the Senate, he would seek to replevin the Governor's park bill from the Ways and Means Committee for debate in the open.

SEE FIGHT IN JERSEY ON REPUBLICAN PLANK

Both Parties' Platforms, However, Expected to Go Through About as Drafted.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24.—Democrats and Republicans entitled to vote in their respective State conventions will tomorrow receive personal copies of the party platforms to be adopted at meetings to be held here on Tuesday of next week.

It was the general expectation today that the Democratic planks would be adopted as originally drawn, Commissioner A. Harry Moore of Jersey City, the party's candidate for Governor, wrote most of the platform, with the assistance of John Milton, Corporation Counsel of Jersey City, and State Chairman Harry Heher of Trenton. The original draft of the Republican platform, prepared roughly by State Chairman Edward C. Stokes, was revised in some details by the resolutions committee and will probably go through in its present shape, although a fight on the floor of the convention is looked for over the plank giving the State Highway Commission sole authority to designate road routes.

While the Democrats are in complete accord and eager to "go to bat" with prohibition as the chief issue, the Republicans are not yet agreed as to the best method of attack. State Senator Arthur Whitney, the gubernatorial nominee, is still hurling verbal shafts at "Hagueism," while United States Senator Walter E. Edge is insisting that Whitney must stand on his own record and pledges. Edge's speech to the convention yesterday jolted the delegates, for he spoke plainly. He also warned that harmony within the party can only be obtained on a "50-50" basis.

OUTLINES SOLUTION OF PARK DISPUTE

Judge Clearwater Insists State Council Be Final Authority on Purchases.

URGES BITTERNESS CEASE

Warns in Radio Speech of "Astonishing Reprisals" Unless Settlement Is Soon Reached.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 24.—The charges and counter-charges which have been made in the State park controversy are befogging the issue and making it more difficult of solution, former Judge Alphonse T. Clearwater of Kingston, a Republican member of the State Park Council, declared in a radio talk which was broadcast tonight through station WGY of Schenectady. Judge Clearwater is President of the New York State Reservation Commission at Niagara. He spoke to the people of the State through a microphone in the Ten Eyck Hotel in this city.

This marks the third time in the last two weeks that the park fight has been taken to the people by means of the radio. Governor Smith was the first to lay his case before the people. On the following night, Senator John Knight, Republican leader of the upper house presented the Republican side of the controversy.

Judge Clearwater said he did not expect that what he said would have the slightest influence on the Legislature, but that he wanted the people of the State to understand the position of the Park Council.

"It seems to me perfectly apparent that unless some solution is reached in the reasonably near future there will be a degree of reprisal which will astonish whoever may be responsible for preventing it," Judge Clearwater declared. He outlined a plan containing eight specific points which he said he thought might possibly lead to a solution of the controversy. He made it plain that he believed the members of the Park Council were well qualified to pass on land for park purposes without resorting to the State Land Board the final power of approval.

Text of Judge Clearwater's Speech.

Judge Clearwater spoke as follows:

"What is said here is stated without anticipation or expectation that to the slightest extent it will influence legislative action, but with the hope that it may clarify in the minds of the people who furnish the money for public parks the position of the Council of Parks, particularly that of the unpaid lay commissioners, relative to a subject which, considering its peaceful character, has developed a degree of bitterness phenomenal in the discussion of grave public questions.

"The recriminations which heretofore have characterized its discussions are deplorable. They do not assist in solving the important questions involved, but on the contrary befog them and render them difficult of solution. It is to me a matter of regret to have been selected to address you at this time, but if I refuse to do so, but it is quite true that for the last twenty-five years I repeatedly have declined any public office yielding any compensation for the service rendered, and gladly have devoted much of the time of an over-crowded professional life to the service of the State, and have done this without reward or the hope of it and solely for the purpose of discharging what seemed to me a public duty.

"It seems to the public-spirited gentlemen who compose the Council of Parks that their judgment relative to the acquisition of additional lands and parkways is almost as valuable as that of people who confessedly have devoted only the most incidental attention to the subject. It hardly is needed that I should spend time in a discussion of their qualifications. They consist, however, of A. T. Fancher, Chairman of the Allegany State Park Commission; J. du Pont Coleman, President of the Palisades Interstate Park Commission; George F. Kunz, President of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society; W. Delevan Baldwin, President of Westchester County Park Commission; Robert H. Newman, Chairman Finger Lakes States Park Commission; Alexander MacDonald, Conservation Commissioner; Robert Moses, President Long Island State Park Commission, and myself, President of the New York State Reservation Commission at Niagara.

"The latter commission is composed of Robert de Forest, President of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and connected with many other important large interests; Paul Schoellkopf, President of the largest hydraulic electric corporation on this hemisphere; Ansley Wilcox, a distinguished member of the Buffalo bar and counsel for the State in the acquisition of the lands originally comprising the reservation; Robert H. Gittins, formerly member of Congress and State Senator from the Niagara district, and Mayor of the City of Niagara Falls, with myself.

"These gentlemen, in common with the other members of the Council of Parks, have devoted a vast amount of their time and energy, and paid large sums of money from their personal purses in the discharge of their duties. They have but one object, and that is the development and protection of the various park systems relegated to their care, and but one incentive, the desire to perform a public duty in a high-minded, efficient manner. Personal or political considerations never to the slightest extent have influenced them, never even have been suggested in their discussions.

"It seemed to all of us when the Council of Parks originally was created by the Legislature that it would serve a most admirable public purpose in that it would afford a body of men experienced in the development and care of parks, who carefully and combinedly could consider the various phases of park growth, and especially the rapidly increasing desire and demand of the people of the State for open recreational spaces; that it carefully could consider and weigh the question of ways and means, could limit expenditure within reasonable bounds and temper expansive zeal with discretion. This not only was the desire and expectation of the Legislature but that of the members of the Council of Parks.

"It seemed to us then, and it seems to us now, that the various park commissions were the proper if not the only bodies qualified originally to suggest what additional lands for parks and parkways should be acquired, and that, after their suggestions fully had been considered, discussed and passed upon by the Council of Parks the action of the latter body should be definitive and final, we were proceeding carefully and considerately along that line when the situation on Long Island unexpectedly was injected.

"I have not the remotest intention of discussing it or of attempting to allocate praise or blame. What seems to me desirable is to avoid a recurrence of such an incident. It is absurd to contend that men of the experience and wisdom of the gentlemen constituting the Legislature of the State are unable to formulate a legislative enactment which will produce that result and coincidentally meet with the approval of the members of the Council of Parks and of the Governor of the State.

"The present controversy, to us, is depressing and dispiriting. It cannot possess many elements of inspiration to the people of the most important State in the Union. We have felt and now feel that the relegation of the acquisition of lands for parks and parkways to the Land Board was an error. In the heat of passion some of us may have characterized it as a grotesque travesty upon the way to produce the most beneficent results. But sulphuric adjectives do not add weight to what should be a dispassionate discussion of a great question, nor do they add dignity to any debate upon any subject. At the meeting of the State Reservation Commission at Niagara last week I suggested as a tentative measure for discussion and possibly solution the following:

(1) That a Regional Park Commission desiring to acquire lands for parks and parkways should endeavor to agree with the owners of the property sought to be acquired as to the location and amount of land to be taken and the price to be paid.

"(2) That if an agreement cannot be reached within twenty days thereafter the Commission should file in the office of the Clerk of the County in which the land sought to be acquired is situated a notice of intent to appropriate it, which should be the equivalent of a notice of pendency of action in an action brought in the Supreme Court for the partition of property or for the foreclosure of a mortgage.

"(3) That within thirty days thereafter proceedings to appropriate lands under the statute of appropriations should be initiated in the Court of Claims which should have the power to determine the amount to be paid.

"(4) That the proceeding should be expeditiously conducted and not permitted to dawdle.

"(5) That if the Court of Claims did not contain a sufficient number of judges to deal with the questions presented, its membership should be enlarged.

"(6) That the Court of Claims should determine all ancillary questions.

"(7) That there should be the same provisions for the review by appeal as now exist relative to the decisions of that court.

"(8)) That in all proceedings, including the examination and perfection of title, the Attorney General should represent the State and the Park Commissions.

"I do not say that this is a complete solution. I realize perfectly that it will be difficult, particularly in the present heated state of discussion, to frame any measure which will be acceptable to every one interested, but it seems to me perfectly apparent that unless some solution is reached in the reasonably near future there will be a degree of reprisal which will astonish whoever may be responsible for preventing it."

COMPROMISE URGED BY CITY CLUB HEAD

He Sends Message to Governor and Legislature—Roulstone to Offer Suggestion.

Nelson S. Spencer, President of the City Club of New York, yesterday sent a telegram to Governor Smith and members of the Legislature urging that park legislation as outlined by Governor Smith and the State Council of Parks be enacted at the special session. Following is the text of Mr. Spencer's telegram:

"The adjournment of the special legislative session without agreement upon satisfactory park legislation will be a public misfortune. We believe that the Park Council rather than the Land Board should pass upon land purchases, but we are confident that it is possible for the Governor and the legislative leaders to agree upon a compromise measure preserving this principle which will meet general approval and will permit the park program to proceed without further costly delays."

Henry M. Earle, a lawyer at 62 Cedar Street, and a resident of the Wheatley Hills section, yesterday made public the text of a letter on the Northern State Parkway controversy which he has sent to Governor Smith. In his letter Mr. Earle says the "constantly reiterated theory that the residents of the Wheatley Hills sections are strongly opposed to the Parkway is erroneous. If the Parkway is necessary the sacrifices which it requires will me met uncomplainingly."

Mr. Earle says the Governor risks exposing himself to the charge he has made against others, that of making misleading statements, if he continues to speak of certain features of the controversy in terms he has "several times repeated." The statement that the Wheatley Hills route will enable people to see the sea and Long Island Sound, he says, is erroneous because there are only two hilltops from which this can be done and they are not on the route.

He maintains the Governor has erred in stating there was objection to the parkway because it would interfere with polo, golf and hunting, "by way of accentuating your characterization of the objection as those of a selfish millionaires." The rout, he says, does not run through any polo or golf grounds and fox hunting has been abandoned in the section for some time. He also says the magnificent views and scenic beauties described by advocates of the route do not exist in fact.

"The reasons entertained by the residents of Wheatley Hills for their suggestion that the subject of the boulevard presents a question to which there are two sides," he concludes, "are based on facts that are very real and not remotely connected with the misleading views referred to above."

The situation at Albany in relation to Governor Smith's park problem "is purely political," according to William B. Roulstone, President of the Parks and Conservation Association, who returned to the city yesterday after stumping the northern and western parts of the State in support of the Governor's position.

"In Albany I talked with legislators themselves and they told me, without hesitation, that they would not take the stand they have taken except for party loyalty," said Mr. Roulstone.

He said he would return to Albany tomorrow with a proposal for a compromise. Explaining his proposal, he added:

"I should advise that part of the elective officers of the State ex officio become members of the State Council of Parks, with one vote for each person, and that a simple bill be drawn and presented to both sides and by both sides corrected to correspond to their respective plans, and that they then submit that bill to a conference.

"The conference should include three members. One member should be appointed to represent the Legislature and one to represent the State Council of Parks. These two then should choose a third member. The three would be requested to recommend legislation which will be a true compromise, but not a compromise of principles."

"From three-fourths to three-fifths of all the Commissioners of Parks are Republicans. All of the State Council of Parks are Republicans except three. It is a matter of Republicans against Republicans. But they don't seem to realize that they are killing their own bill.

"Unless they accept a compromise bill they will be defeated at the polls next November and the Democrats will go to Albany and carry out the park development program. In either case, the Governor ultimately will win.

"All through the western part of the State, including Buffalo, Rochester, Hornell and Syracuse, I found the unanimous view of Republicans to whom I talked was in support of the program of the State Council of Parks and against the attitude of the Republican majorities. The significance of that is that if the Republican majority tries to kill this legislative bill it will so incense the voters that the Democrats will have an excellent chance of election and an excellent chance of going back to Albany to enact the people's program. The people want the parks."

SMITH SAYS MILLS BEFOGS FUNDS ISSUE

Governor Retorts to Representative, Charging Misuse of Figures on Bonds.

URGES MILLS TO AID PARKS

Executive Suggests Congress Member Could Thus Render Valuable Service to His Party.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 24.—Governor Smith today sent a letter to Representative Ogden L. Mills of New York, in which he reviewed the State's financial condition.

Representative Mills yesterday made public a statement in which he charged the Governor with "altering the records" of New York State finances. In his letter today, the Governor declared that it was Mr. Mills who was altering the records.

The Governor's letter reads:

Hon. Ogden L. Mills,
15 Broad Street, New York City.

My Dear Congressman:

I am in receipt of your letter of June 22 and I read it over very carefully. I made full and complete reply to your letter of June 16 and did meet the issue with your fairly. There was no alteration of the record or misquotation of your statement. The misuse of figures occurred in your letter to me because you did not even use the figures that were sent to you in response to your request for them of the State Comptroller. I am dealing absolutely fair with you because I am going by the public records as they appear in Albany, and you are making them read to support your side of the argument, which I cannot believe to be anything else but a belated attempt to help out the members of your own party who made such a complete mess out of their dealings with the finances of the State during the last session of the Legislature.

I am very glad to know that you brushed aside any inclination you may have had to be sore over the matter. Nobody gains anything by that and if I have contributed to your amusement in any way, take it from me that I am very pleased to do it. I repeat that you are not familiar with the State's fiscal system. I can prove that by your own letter. There is no difference between revenue and resources, because if the unencumbered surplus by an increase in revenue over that estimated is materially increased, while it is referred to as a resource, it is still, nevertheless, a revenue not provided for or not anticipated in the estimate.

If, on the other hand, actual revenues are below the estimate resources must be drawn upon. Resources need not really be surplus, as in my financial statement I showed resources in excess of $3,000,000 that were made such by the repeal of legislation that had frozen into the unencumbered surplus sums of money that could never be spent because of a decision of the Court of Appeals and the veto of various appropriation bills against which no liability had been incurred.

The State's income is subject to fluctuation. In one year of Governor Miller's term it ran below the estimate. In one year of my term it exceeded the estimate. In the last analysis, all money of the State is revenue, whether it is expended or whether it finds its way into the unencumbered surplus. It is, therefore, unfair on your part when you are estimating expenditures to set them up only as against the estimated revenues.

If you want to be strictly on the level you must set them up against resources, in that resources conta revenue actually received by the State, but never estimated. So you see, Congressman, that you are the one who started to fool with technical terms in your discussion of this question. You know that you did that because you provide for yourself as against being accused of it on page two of your letter when you say that I am quite likely to make the point that you are raising technical objections of an accounting nature. That is exactly what you did and in that I claim that you are unfair.

When the unencumbered surplus of the State grows beyond the point of necessity it must be drawn upon and referred to as a resource because it finds no place in the estimated revenues, as they are put out in advance of their receipt. Let's see how that worked during the term of my predecessor. Governor Miller made a reduction in the direct tax of 1,407 mills amounting to $12,666,180.35. Where did that money come from? That did not come from revenue in the strict sense of the word as you insist upon applying it. It came from resources and the unencumbered surplus to bring about this tax reduction plus amount necessary to make up the difference between estimated receipts and appropriations and required a reduction of the unencumbered surplus of $17,566,380.40.

This is predicated upon the undeniable theory that the State should not take from the taxpayers in any one year more than is required for the proper conduct of the State's business. Nobody can deny that, and you know it is true.

In spite of what I said in my other letter you continue to make the mistake that appropriations made by the Legislature of 1926 are chargeable against the revenues or surplus, or if you prefer to say it, resources of the fiscal year in which the appropriation is made. That is not so. All of these appropriations, whether they be for tubercular cattle, for soldiers' bonus or aid to rural schools, will be appropriated against the resources which, among other things, will contain estimated revenues of the next fiscal year which will begin on July 1, 1926.

Now, don't you see, Congressman, the whole structure of your argument is weakened. It is the fundamentals of State finances that you are lacking in. It means nothing for you to read figures from a report unless you know what these figures mean and where they come from and what relationship they bear to the whole State fiscal system.

You seem to make a great deal of fuss over the following statement by me: "Unless the people themselves at the polls this Fall should reject the proposal to bind the State for $10,000,000 a year for ten years we must look for increased taxation."

What's the matter with that statement? Isn't that true? For instance, Congressman, will you please explain to me how the following work can be carried on in this State, all of which work is of a permanent and lasting character and paid for by direct revenues annually without increasing taxes? If you can do that you are a wizard of finance.

3,200 MARCH FROM SCHOOL IN FIRE PATH

500 Little Children Calm as They See Flames Destroying Brewery Across Street.

FOUR FIREMEN ARE HURT

Rescue Squad Narrowly Escapes Falling Wall of Brooklyn Building—Mayor at the Scene.

Many fire companies, a rescue squad, police reserves, gas and electric emergency trucks, and Mayor Hylan rushed to a spectacular fire yesterday at Grove Street, near Evergreen Avenue, Brooklyn. Four firemen were hurt in the blaze which destroyed the old Ibert brewery as well as a storehouse and a bottling plant, and seriously threatened a public school across the street in which were 3,200 children.

The fire, which was thought to have been started by children at play in the deserted old brewery, caused a loss estimated at between $150,000 and $250,000. Two hours of hard fighting elapsed before firemen were satisfied that they had the fire under control. The police ordered hundreds of families out of easily inflammable houses near by.

The flames, which were visible at one time over a large section of Brooklyn, were first noticed by Joseph Tardo of 110 Palmetto Street, a mechanic in the Linden garage, operated by August Schneider, at the corner of Grove and Evergreen. Tardo said that he was working on a car in the rear of the garage, at about 1:40 P. M., when he smelled something burning, glanced across a small yard between the rear of the garage and the brewery, and saw clouds of smoke rolling from a window. While he looked, he said, a long tongue of flame shot from the window and up the dry wood wall.

Calling to Schneider, who was in the front office, Tardo ran to Menahan Street where he turned in the first alarm.

About this time Miss Anna Simrall, a teacher in the Franklin K. Lane High School, which adjoins Public School 75 on Grove Street, saw the fire from a window, and turned in a building alarm, which was repeated from the office of John K. Bolen, Principal of the public school. Five hundred little children, Mr. Bolen said, were in the assembly hall to receive a banner from representatives of the Bushwick Citizens Committee for their fine showing in the Decoration Day parade. The clash of the big gongs interrupted the proceedings. The children responded calmly and marched out of the building, showing no fear of the smoke pouring out of the burning structure across the street. Those children and all others in the school were out of the building within two minutes and twenty seconds, Mr. Bolen said.

The blaze, which started in the frame bottling plant, spread so rapidly that Deputy Chief John F. O'Hara, who arrived with the first two companies, concluded that the building could not be saved. It was thought that some one might be inside, so some of the rescue squad went in. Deputy Chief William F. Thompson arrived in time to see a wall of the building fall, barely missing twenty men, most of them members of the rescue squad. The men owed their escape to the warning cry of Captain O'Leary.

By this time the flames were in the brewery proper. It was on the second floor of this building that three firemen narrowly escaped serious injury. The floor fell in and they fell twelve feet to a pile of old timber and rubbish. The three, all of whom received contusions, slight lacerations and burns from the smouldering timbers, were Martin J. Convey, John T. Doorish and Edward McCarthy, all of Engine Company 277. Fireman Edward Bickman of the same company suffered burns on the hand and had a finger cut by falling glass.

Flames from the brewery spread to the roof of 216 Grove Street, across the street and to the school, but quick action by the firemen extinguished them. By playing lines of hose from a vacant lot, from Grove Street and from the roof of a former movie theatre in Linden Street, the fire was finally brought under control. About thirty fire trucks surrounded the blaze, and dozens of lines of hose were being used when Mayor Hylan arrived.

The Mayor had been notified of the fire, he said, by the noise of a fire engine parked in front of his home, two blocks away on Bushwick Avenue. He was escorted to the scene by Assistant Chief "Smokey Joe" Martin. After a brief inspection he left. The late Frank Ibert, who built the brewery, was said to have been a close friend of the Mayor's and to have aided him in his first campaign. Miss Helen Ibert, daughter of the brewer, was appointed secretary to the Fire Commissioner shortly after her father's death, five years ago.

As the fire subsided it was discovered that two trucks, a delivery wagon and a runabout, parked in the rear yard of the garage next to the bottling plant, had been destroyed. Twenty-five cars on the second floor of the garage were uninjured aside from cracked body paint.

Frank Ibert built the brewery in 1891, and the following year erected the bottling works. The adjoining frame buildings were said by neighbors to be forty years old. All three were destroyed. A 150-foot smoke stack was the only part of the structure to remain standing.

TRAIN HITS AUTO; BABY DIES

Parents and Brother Hurt in Crash —Sister Escapes Unhurt.

Special to The New York Times.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., June 24.—A baby was killed and her parents and a brother were injured just after noon today as the result of a crash when a westbound Long Island accommodation train ran into an automobile in which they were riding at the Park Avenue crossing here. Another child who was in the automobile was hurled over a barbed-wire fence into a field, but escaped injury.

The injured were William Janda, his wife, and their son, Wanda, all of whom are in Huntington Hospital. Janda has a broken right leg and was injured internally. Mrs. Janda has four broken ribs, and Wanda is suffering from severe lacerations of the head and body. The baby, Emma, whose skull was fractured, died two hours after the accident. Another daughter, Madeleine, 5 years old, was unhurt.

23 Rescued at Newark Fire.

Twenty-three persons, most of them women and children, living in a six-family tenement house at 310 Fifteenth Street, Newark, were rescued by the police yesterday when a fire which started in the grocery store of Isadore Weiner on the first floor filled the halls and rooms with smoke. The damage, which was confined to the store, was estimated at $2,000.

EXPLOSION AND FIRE INTERRUPT A WAKE

Police Help Mourners to Safety Until Blaze Believed Due to a Still Is Put Out.

Thirty-five persons were at the wake of Mrs. Marie Gonsales on the top floor of the five-story tenement at 24 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, when there sounded an explosion, followed by a trembling of the building and a cry of "Fire!"

Most of the persons in the apartment ran down the stairs. Clouds of smoke drove them back. Some dashed up the ladder leading to the roof, while others went down the fire-escape. The former found the roofs of the two adjoining buildings higher ,and they, too, ran down the fire-escape. Patrolman William Gibbons and Detective William McGee raised a ladder to the first floor to permit them to reach the sidewalk without jumping.

Detective McGee climbed to the third floor after he was told by persons who had left there that Harriet Silva, 13 years old, was in bed, suffering with rheumatism. He carried the child down.

The fire was in the rooms of Samuel Simon, in the rear of the first floor. The police said they found pieces of rubber hose and metal which indicated, they said, that a distilling outfit had been attached to a gas stove. Simon, who tried to extinguish the flames, was burned about the face, hands and legs. He was taken to Cumberland Street Hospital. The blaze was quickly extinguished by firemen and the mourners returned to the wake.

CANADIAN VETERANS LEAVE FATE TO HAIG

Field Marshal Will Determine Future Policy of Great War Veterans' Association.

OTTAWA, June 24 (AP).—The destiny of the Great War Veterans' Association, formed of ex-service men after the war, with its assets of $8,000,000, was today placed in the hands of Field Marshal Earl Haig, former commander of the British armies in France, through a resolution, adopted unanimously, at the seventh annual convention of the association.

Earl Haig is to determine the future policy of the organization.

ASK TAXES FOR PORT BOARD

Jersey City, Bayonne and Hudson County Oppose Exemption.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24.—Urging that property acquired by the Port Authority developing New York Harbor should be subject to taxation in the same manner and to the same extent as other property, Jersey City, Bayonne and Hudson County filed a joint memorandum today with the legislative commission that is investigating the relationship between the Port Authority and the municipalities in which its property is situated.

The brief is in answer to the claims of the Port Authority that it is a governmental agency and therefore exempt from taxation. This view was advanced by counsel in a printed argument filed with the commission last week, declaring that the Port Authority has gone far afied from its original purpose and now is seeking to build bridges. Counsel for the municipalities and county say:

"The legislation which said body has caused to be effected through lethargic legislators in the 1925 session of the legislative bodies (New Jersey and New York), would enable the Port Authority to obtain vast sums of money toward the construction of bridges and incidental purposes, and pledge the States to subsidize the projects not only by the advance of millions of dollars, but also by granting to said Port Authority a monopoly which is not only unprecedented in the annals of New Jersey legislation, but the legality of which is very questionable indeed."

SEIZE BIG LIQUOR CARGO.

Officers Find 3,000 Cases Hidden Under Schooner's Lumber.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 24 (AP).—The two-masted lumber schooner Mary Langdon, of American register, with more than 3,000 cases of choice liquors hidden beneath a deck cargo of lumber, was brought to this city this morning by the Coast Guard cutter Rodwing and Patrol Boat 237. The Langdon was seized yesterday morning two miles off Wobska Point on Vineyard Sound while bound in an easterly direction. The master and crew of five men were held to await an appearance before the United States Commissioner here.

The Langdon was bound from Rockland, Me., to Roslyn, L. I. The craft is a sister ship of the schooner Morris and Cliff, seized last Sunday off Watch Hill, R. I., witha cargo of liquor valued at $250,000. Coast Guard officers here said that the cargo on the Mary Langdon was larger than that found on the Morris and Cliff, and was the largest single seizure since the beginning of the rum blockade.

IRISH HEADS BANKERS.

State Association Picks Brooklyn Man at Convention.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 24.—The New York State Bankers' Association at its closing session today elected William S. Irish, Vice President of the First National Bank of Brooklyn, President of the association for the next year. Mr. Irish, who has been Vice President of the association, succeeds Charles E. Treman of Ithaca.

The association adopted a resolution disapproving of the recommendations of the American Bankers' Association that the Federal Reserve Board discontinue its service in the collection of notes and drafts for member banks. The State bankers desire that this service be maintained.

Carlton A. Chase, President of the First Trust and Deposit Company, Syracuse, was chosen Vice President and F. E. Storms, President of the Citizens' National Bank, Hornell, Treasurer.

LEAD-POISON TEST TO WAIT.

Will Not Be Made Until After Scientists' Committee Meets.

Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming, who was in this city yesterday, said that no detailed plans would be made for tests of the public health menace said to be involved in the use of leaded gasoline until after the committee of scientists named to assist him met in Washington next Monday.

He said that some city or town where the leaded gasoline had been used intensively would be selected for a survey of the health of the population which had been exposed to it. He said that the scope of the committee's work includes a study of the dangers, not only to the general public but to the employes of plants where the tetraethyl lead is made, and to an investigation of the value of safeguards which, according to manufacturers, now make the manufacturing processes reasonably safe.

"King's Henchmen" Fined in Paris.

PARIS, June 24 (AP).—Thirty-five Royalists, members of an organization called the "King's Henchmen," were today fined sixteen francs each in police court for carrying revolvers. The Judge said he imposed only a misdemeanor fine, although more severe punishment was permitted by the law, because of recent Communist threats against Royalists and attempts to assassinate Royalist leaders.

Hunger in Mexico City Kills 5 in a Day; Spread of Poverty Depicted by Newspaper

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 24.—The Excelsior this morning announced that the situation now prevailing among the lower classes is terrible, as the official industrial and commercial activities are now completely restricted and factories are discharging hundreds of workingmen, who find it impossible to get work in other factories and also impossible to secure even the smallest salary to live on.

As a result of this situation the spectacle of hunger has presented itself at the doors of Mexico City. Five unfortunates dead from hunger were found in the past twenty-four hours. Some died in the streets and others inside obscure quarters.

The Red Cross has reported not only deaths from hunger but others from grave illnesses.

In police circles many comments have been heard on the situation. Some one asked if a rich country like Mexico were to have the same spectacle as in Russia, where hundreds of children and women have died of hunger.

One of the bodies, that of a man, was found at the corner of streets named Charity and Work. Examination showed that for many days he had gone without eating.

BOURNE JR. JAILED ON WIFE'S CHARGE

Son of Head of Singer Sewing Machine Co. Slapped Her, She Complains.

CHASES HIM THREE BLOCKS

Asks Aid of Policeman in Automobile—Separation Suit Pending Since Last January.

Arthur K. Bourne Jr., 21 years old, of 930 Park Avenue, son of the head of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, was locked up last night charged with disorderly conduct on the complaint of his wife, Beatrice, 21 years old, after he had been pursued for three blocks by Mrs. Bourne and a patrolman in a police automobile.

Patrolman Michael McDonough of the East Sixty-seventh Street Police Station was patrolling in the automobile about 6:30 o'clock when he saw a crowd in front of 930 Park Avenue at Eighty-first Street. As he stopped his machine a young man broke through the crowd and ran east toward Lexington Avenue. He was followed by a fashionably dressed woman, who sprang into the policeman's car and asked him to arrest the fleeing man.

McDonough followed to Lexington Avenue, south to Eightieth Street and then west to Park Avenue, where he overtook the fugitive. He was young Bourne, and his wife charged him with having struck her when she sought to speak to him as he entered his mother's house.

Bourne was taken to the East Sixty-seventh Street Station. Later John J. Clancy of 460 Lockwood Street, a contractor, father of Mrs. Bourne, came to the station to take his daughter to his house, where she has been living.

The couple eloped Sept. 20, 1922, from Blue Point, L. I., where both the Bourne and the Clancy families had Summer homes. They were married at Centre Moriches and later went to Pasadena, Cal., where young Bourne was to go into business. They separated in August, last year, and in January the young woman sued for separation. Previously she had sued Mrs. Ethel Hollins Bourne, mother of Bourne, for alienation of affections.

In her suit for separation Mrs. Bourne charged her husband with abandonment and non-support. Bourne did not contest the suit, but denied in his answer that he had deserted her or refused to support her, and charged his wife with extravagance and of leaving him voluntarily. The case has never come to trial.

According to Mr. Clancy his daughter learned on Tuesday that Bourne had filed suit for divorce in California. She went to 930 Park Avenue, it continued, to speak to him, did not find him at home and waited all day for him to return. She repeated this yesterday, and, he said, when Bourne arrived he slapped her.

After being locked up Bourne was released last night by Magistrate Smith in Night Court in $1,000 bail for examination tomorrow in the Harlem Court. Maxwell Shapiro, counsel for young Mrs. Bourne, asked that the bail be made higher, similarly Bourne had "skipped a bond of $2,500 for desertion, and even now the Sheriff of New York County has an order for his arrest," but he did not explain this. Friend Hoar, counsel for the young man, protested at increasing the bail, and denied his client had struck the young woman.

"He was only walking toward his mother's home," he said, "when he caught sight of this young woman and her sister, and ran. That's all there was to it."

"You won't deny your client has deserted his wife?" said Magistrate Smith.

"We won't deny he is not supporting her," said Mr. Hoar. "He is out of funds."

CELEBRATE PROPOSED TRI-BOROUGH BRIDGE

Civic and Business Organizations Hold Exercises in Harlem—The Mayor Speaks.

The initial step in the construction of the Tri-Borough Bridge to connect Queens, the Bronx and Manhattan in a huge Y of steel and concrete was taken yesterday. Mayor Hylan, Edward A. Byrne, chief engineer of the Department of Plant and Structures, who prepared a tentative design for the bridge; Commissioner William Wirt Mills, Alderman E. W. Curley and representatives of Harlem, Bronx, Queens and Washington Heights civic bodies and Chambers of Commerce at a luncheon and later at a stand in Harlem celebrated "Tri-Borough Bridge Day."

The Mayor spoke at both places. At the luncheon he attacked "the interests" and Wall Street and the Transit Commission. After the luncheon the party in gaily flagged automobiles drove to 125th Street and First Avenue, where a stand had been erected. There the Mayor drew a parallel between an imaginary bridge trust owning nearly fifty bridges in the city and present conditions with the bridges municipally owned and operated by the city. His imaginary bridge trust he likened to the traction situation and in figures running into many millions told what toll bridges might have cost the people.

The preliminary survey which the engineers began yesterday was included in the city's budget for 1925 with an appropriation for the purpose of $50,000. The cost of the bridge itself has been estimated at upward of $30,000,000, although Engineer Byrne figured that it could be built for $15,000,000. The tentative plans call for one extension from 125th Street, Harlem, to Randall's Island, where it will meet the fork, one prong of which will span Bronx Kills and terminate in the East Bronx; the other will reach across Little Hell Gate to Ward's Island, thence across Hell Gate to Potter Avenue, Queens, which is fast being converted into a residential district.

Einstein Is Back In Germany.

BERLIN, June 6 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency Mail Service)—Dr. Albert Einstein, author of the relativity theory, returned yesterday to Germany following a three-months' tour in Brazil and the Argentine. On his arrival in Hamburg press representatives from various parts of the world awaited the scientist, who, however, declined to give them an interview.

Herriot Honors Longworth.

PARIS, June 24 (AP).—Ex-Premier Herriot and M. Franklin-Bouillon, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, gave a reception this afternoon at the Palais Bourbon in honor of Representative Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati, Ohio, speaker of the House of Representatives.

DENIES RACE BARRIER AT HARLEM HOSPITAL

McGrath Says Whites May Still Be Taken as Patients Under Negro Doctors' Care.

Dr. John J. McGrath, President of the Board of Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, declared yesterday that the appointment of five negro doctors as visiting physicians and surgeons at Harlem Hospital did not mean that the city authorities were trying to develop that hospital exclusively for negroes. He said Harlem Hospital would still admit patients regardless of race.

"Of course, the percentage of colored to white patients will change, and we will have to admt that," said Dr. McGrath. The proportion of colored patients varies from 60 to as high as 90 per cent.

"There is no hospital in any city in the North or East where a colored man has had an opportunity to serve on a house staff," he stated. "Harlem Hospital is the first hospital in the country to offer colored doctors an opportunity to serve in such capacity. Colored doctors will have every chance to demonstrate their ability."

"Of course, Harlem is a community of nearly 200,000 colored people," he continued. "The increase in the colored population has been followed by a decrease in the whites. As additional colored doctors are appointed to the house staff at Harlem Hospital, it is quite likely that fewer and fewer white patients will go there. But no person will be barred from the hospital."

Dr. McGrath said the decision to appoint negroes to the house staff of Harlem Hospital was reached at a conference attended by negro clergy and doctors and members of the Medical Board of the hospital at which he was present. The white members of the Medical Board had raised no objections, according to Dr. McGrath.

Under the plan now operating at Harlem Hospital, ten new members will be appointed yearly in June to the house staff. They are appointed as sub-juniors, and must serve in that grade for four months and for similar periods as juniors, seniors and finally house surgeons. Within four years the entire house staff will be colored. But that does not mean that the head of the hospital will be displaced. Dr. McGrath said that he would not force a white doctor out to make place for a negro doctor, if there were a vacancy in the highest medical position on the staff, and a negro doctor were qualified for it, he said that the colored doctor would be entitled to consideration.

SCOPES DEFENSE CONFER ON PLANS

Counsel Issue Statement at Knoxville Condemning Holiday Atmosphere Around Case.

Special to The New York Times.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 24.—Defense counsel for Professor J. T. Scopes today continued their conference in Knoxville on plans for the evolution trial. Dudley Field Malone, who was expected to take part in the conference, did not arrive, but Clarence Darrow, Bainbridge Colby and John R. Neal met.

The attitude of the people in regard to the coming trial was condemned by Mr. Colby today, speaking for defense counsel, in the following statement:

"I cannot account for the tone, as reflected in comments appearing in the daily newspapers regarding the approaching Scopes indictment trial. People should be interested in the outcome, but I cannot understand the attitude regarding the issue.

"The issue is grave in character, embodying principles at the base of security of happiness and American citizenship. A mind that is fettered by law or is otherwise hampered is like a compass nailed down. A needle that is to play readily ceases to exist as a compass when it becomes stationary.

"We have encountered and have been surprised to see a holiday atmosphere surrounding the approaching trial. The people are pleasurably worked up and enjoying the momentary focus of national attention.

"We do not understand this attitude. It arises from the shocking and abnormal character of the legislation out of which this indictment has developed, which we certainly view as one of the most serious questions which could possibly arise to challenge the ability of the citizenship to rational self-government.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 24 (AP).—Lovick P. Miles, President of the Tennessee Bar Association, announced tonight that he had withdrawn an invitation to Clarence Darrow to address the organization at its convention here Friday. Because Mr. Darrow is a member of the Scopes defense counsel, Mr. Miles thought the invitation might be misconstrued.

GIRL UNCONSCIOUS IN PARK.

Suffering From Malnutrition—Says She Came From Baltimore.

A young woman who said her name was Amelia Hoke, 19 years old, of Quantico, Va., was found unconscious at Seventy-ninth Street and Riverside Drive last night and upon being revived at the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station told Patrolman George Wall, who had found her, that on Tuesday morning, while she was wandering about a park in Baltimore, she had been induced to enter a car by two men, who had promised her employment. She said that after arriving in New York she was robbed of $5, all the money she had, and was thrown out of the car and lay in the park along Riverside Drive all night and all yesterday.

She was examined by Dr. Hamilton of the Knickerbocker Hospital, who declared that she was suffering from malnutrition. After she had been fed at the West Sixty-eighth Street Station she was taken to the Florence Crittenton Home for Girls.

PIER CONTRACTS AWARDED.

City's Dredging and Removal Work Given to Eugene Breymann.

Dock Commissioner Michael Cosgrove announced yesterday that he had awarded the contract for dredging between Pier (new) 1 and Pier (old) 4, North River, and the removal of Pier (old) 1 to Eugene Breymann, 17 Battery Place, at his bid of $24,110. Breymann was the low bidder.

Other bidders and their figures were: Columbia Dredging Company, $25,246; Morris & Cummings Dredging Company, $29,550; Great Lakes Dredge and Dock Company, $40,510; A. N. Spooner & Son, $46,702, and the New Jersey Shipbuilding and Dredging Company, $52,950.

WILL TEST DECISION ON CHILD WHIPPING

Society to Ask Court to Take Girl From Father and Stepmother.

SEEKS DEFINITE RULING

Ready to Find Home for Hazel Larsen if It Wins Case In Court.

Magistrate Gresser's ruling Tuesday in the Jamaica Police Court that parents have a right to whip their children will be tested before Judge Boyle of the Children's Court at Jamaica tomorrow, when the Queensborough Children's Society will ask for an order taking Hazel Larson, 9 years old, of 10,119 126th Street, Richmond Hill, from her father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Larson.

Hasel, it was testified, was whipped by Mrs. Larson with a stick a half inch square June 18 because she denied she had taken a box of chocolates. Dr. H. F. Coffin of Jamaica, who examined the child, reported he found a wound on her scalp, a bruise encircling her right eye and extending over the right cheekbone, various discolored bruises on her back, neck and arms, and the Children's Society in seeking the order will also try to get the Court to rule on how severely parents may rightfully beat their children.

"Of course," said Superintendent Hebberd, "parents have the right to whip their children with discretion; but no parent has the right to use a stick on the head of a child."

The Children's Society will seek if the Court rules in its favor to find another home for Hazel.

Mrs. Larson married Mr. Larson after she was divorced by Frank A. Fischer of 943 Liberty Avenue, Brooklyn. The latter got custody of their two children. Mrs. Larson denied yesterday she was brutal to Hazel and declared that when she attempted to whip her the child wrenched away and struck her head on the corner of a sink.

BOLITHO AID GUILTY OF RUM CONSPIRACY

Jury Finds Verdict in Two Hours Against Reidler on All Three Counts.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., June 24.—The first of the seventy-three cases brought against officials and other residents of Morris County as a result of a recent investigation by a special Grand Jury resulted tonight in the conviction of Max Reidler, a member of former Prosecutor James H. Bolitho's staff on all three counts of an indictment for conspiracy with Bolitho and Joseph Canty, an alleged bootlegger, to protect the bootlegger from molestation.

The State charged that the three conspired to save Canty from prosecution for violation of the prohibition laws; that as a result of the conspiracy the authorities failed to prosecute him after he was indicted, and that the trio further conspired to violate the prohibition laws by arranging that Canty should make and sell prohibited liquors with impunity.

The jury consisted of seven women and five men. It returned its verdict at 6:20 P. M., after slightly more than two hours of deliberation. Mrs. Ada Turnbull of Morristown, forewoman, announced the verdict.

Reidler took the decision calmly, although he had previously appeared confident that he would be acquitted. Bolitho, who will be tried soon on the same charges as a joint defendant, was not in court when the jury returned. He left with John A. Matthews of Newark, counsel for Reidler and himself, when the jury retired.

Reidler had been out on bail since his indictment, and bail was continued by Supreme Court Justice Parker, presiding, who did not indicate when he would impose sentence. Justice Parker also has deferred sentence upon three others who pleaded nolo vult Monday to indictments resulting from the special investigation. These are Police Justice William Gardner of Dover, charged with malfeasance in signing blank search warrants for liquor raids; George Estler, a brother of Sheriff Charles E. Estler, charged with illegal sale of liquor, and Frank Salvi, a former investigator on the Sheriff's staff, who is charged with committing assault and battery upon a truck driver who was being held by detectives campaigning against rum-runners.

The next trial is likely to be Canty's. Court was adjourned tonight until tomorrow morning.

REALTY MAN ARRESTED.

Held on Suspicion of $1,200 Theft From Woman in Lot Deal.

Leo Pierce, 24 years old, of 111 West Sixty-ninth Street, who said he was President of the Certified Homes Builders' Corporation, in the Romax Building, 245 West Forty-seventh Street, was locked up in the West Thirtieth Street Station last night on suspicion of the theft of $1,200 from Mrs. Angela Spada of 304 East 112th Street.

Detectives Carlson and Digney, who arrested him in Ninety-sixth Street, near Broadway, said that Assistant District Attorney Thomas Kane had informed them that he had recently received complaints from persons who said they had invested sums from $1,000 to $1,500 in lots at Howard Beach, near Aqueduct, Queens, which the Home Builders' Corporation had offered for sale, and that they were unable to obtain deeds for the lots.

Pierce said that his arrest was the result of a misunderstanding. He said that the corporation owns the Howard Beach property, but that there is a mortgage on it, and that it would not be possible to give deeds to the lots until this mortgage is cleared.

PARIS, June 24.—The French are now using naval airships to help the Brittany fishermen locate sardine shoals.

Yesterday an airship attached to the Rochefort Naval Air Station left for the Brittany coast to survey the seas for fish, and when the fish are sighted the plane will signal the fishing fleets.

Sardines migrating northward annually choose routes widely separated from each other, which sometimes make the task of the fishermen hard to spot them, especially when they pass unusually far from the shore. It was thought the airship would prove of valuable assistance.

Post & McCord Get Verdict for Work on Giants' Stadium.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice O'Malley, which has heard for seven weeks the trial of a suit by Post & McCord against the National Exhibition Company, owner of the New York Giants, to recover for work done in the extension of the Polo Grounds, returned a verdict yesterday for $140,000. The contractors sued for $400,000, part of which was for balance due on the work and part for damages because of being delayed from proceeding with the construction of the new stands.

When the case went to trial the defendants offered to settle for $150,000, but the offer was rejected.

ORDERS REAPPRAISAL OF COL. COLT'S ESTATE

Surrogate Upholds Some Points in the Executor's Plea of Excessive Valuation.

Surrogate Foley yesterday directed a reappraisal of the estate of Colonel Samuel P. Colt on an appeal taken by the executor on the ground that the valuation of the estate was excessive. One of the grounds of the appeal was that the appraiser failed to deduct from the value of the assets in New York indebtedness owed by Colonel Colt to creditors here resulting in the pledging of securities and that a tax had been imposed on $340,000 as capital invested by the decedent in New York. It was also alleged that personal property was improperly taxed here because he was a resident of Rhode Island. The estate also objected to an assessment of $780.86 a share on common stock of the New York Times Company, contending that the twenty shares of stock had been sold on Jan. 26, 1922, at $205 a share.

The Surrogate decided that all debts due creditors in New York should be deducted in full from the New York assets, and should be prorated between the taxable and non-taxable New York assets. Concerning the investment of $340,000 the Surrogate said that the money had been lent to the Stock Exchange firm of H. L. Horton & Co., in which his son had been a member and he had not been a member, and under the agreement he was to have received only 6 per cent. interest on the loan. This item is held to be untaxable. Concerning the assessment on THE NEW YORK TIMES stock Surrogate Foley said that the isolated sale at $205 a share made more than five months after Colonel Colt died "does not establish the market value," and that "the stock should be appraised at its book value since it is closely held and sales of shares are infrequent." The Surrogate disallowed the appeal from the tax on personal property in New York City.

Colonel Colt, who died Aug. 13, 1921, left a total estate of $5,198,965. The New York estate was valued at $735,056. In addition to the common stock of THE NEW YORK TIMES, Colonel Colt owned 80 shares of preferred stock, valued at $8,000.

POLICE ASKED TO FIND GIRL MISSING 4 WEEKS

Parents at First Believed She Had Gone Visiting—Now Fear Violence Has Been Done.

Four weeks after her disappearance the police of Brooklyn and Long Island City were asked to try and find Katherine McKenna, 15 years old, of 177 Huron Street, Brooklyn, who said goodbye to her mother a few minutes before 8 o'clock on the morning of May 23 and has not been seen since. The parents of the girl were reluctant to notify the authorities of their daughter's absence as they believed she might have gone to visit relatives in another State.

Miss McKenna was employed at the office of the Tisdale Lumber Company in Long Island City, and on the morning she was last seen her mother accompanied her to Freeman Street and Manhattan Avenue. On leaving her there, Mrs. McKenna made an appointment to meet the girl at lunch time, but Katherine never appeared at the lumber office.

Miss McKenna was a teacher in the St. Columbkille Roman Catholic Sunday School on Dupont, near Franklin Street, and took a course in a business college in the evenings. Mrs. McKenna said she was a typical home girl, did not have any boy friends and had never been away from home at night. She was an accomplished musician.

The route she ordinarily took to her place of employment led past a number of vacant lots in Long Island City and her parents are apprehensive that she may have met a fate similar to that of Florence Kane, who was found murdered a week after Katherine disappeared.

BOY MAIMED BY EXPLOSION.

Eight-Year-Old Believed to Have Set Off Dynamite Cap.

Special to The New York Times.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., June 24.—Maimed by what is believed to have been the explosion of a dynamite cap, Eugene Groves, 8 years old, was found in an alley at Huntington Station this afternoon and was taken to Huntington Hospital, where he is dying.

All of the fingers of the boy's left hand had been blown off and the right hand had been badly torn, with the thumb missing. His right eye was gone from its socket and his face was blackened with powder burns. The lad was unconscious and could not tell how he was injured.

Deputy Sheriff John Hulson, who is investigating the case, said tonight that he believes the lad obtained a dynamite cap somewhere and was holding a premature Fourth of July celebration when injured.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 24.—Rye Beach authorities were today one step nearer to closing beach amusement devices on Sundays, when Supreme Court Justice Albert H. F. Seeger signed a final decision refusing to grant the proprietors of Paradise Park and Rye Beach amusement parks an injunction restraining the village trustees from arresting employes operating the devices on Sundays.

The proprietors repeated their intention of continuing open until arrests are made.

Surgeon General Cumming Hopes Aliens Soon Will Be Examined Overseas.

COMIC PICTURES AID HEALTH

Neurologist Describes Their Effect to Homeopaths at Convention of American Institute.

The United States is pre-eminent in its methods of quarantine against the introduction of diseases from abroad, said Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming last night at a dinner of the public health organizations associated with the American Institute of Homeopathy at the Hotel Roosevelt. The convention of the institute will conclude today.

"It is generally acknowledged that the United States leads in the efficiency of its procedure, both as to the prevention and the introduction of the exotic pestilential diseases from abroad," the speaker said, "as well as in the methods which it has adopted for the prevention of the admission of aliens afflicted with mental and physical defects which would affect the efficiency not only of the present but of the future generation of our citizenry.

"Frankly, however, all of these are far from perfect, and, indeed, it is an aphorism among public health officials that quarantine is a sieve and not a dam. Manifestly the only method of absolutely preventing the introduction of all diseases or any undesirable citizens would be to shut off international commerce completely, which would, of course be both an absurdity and an impossibility."

Dr. Cumming said that the Public Health Service which he heads was a pioneer in the application of the fact that the best place to fight an enemy was upon his own territory. He declared it was much easier and a much less burden upon commerce and upon the individual involved to prevent the sailing from a foreign port of those afflicted with disease "than to prevent its introduction at our very portals."

"It is to be hoped," he added, "that in the near future arrangements will be perfected by which aliens who obtain permission to sail to this country may be reasonably sure to be admitted after an examination in our port to verify the previous examination."

Education Aid to Health.

Declaring that hundreds of thousands did yearly from preventable diseases, the Surgeon General said that correct health reform movements under our form of government must begin with the people rather than be handed down by a central government. He said that the very foundation of increased public health efficiency was the education of the individual, and this must be done in a large measure by the practicing physician. He said a public health organization should consist of well organized, efficient administrative county and city health units cooperating with the State and Federal Governments.

Dr. Frederick W. Seward, a neurologist of Goshen, N. Y., who addressed the session yesterday afternoon, advocated the reading of comic strips and jokes in the newspapers and comic magazines as one way of avoiding emotional disturbances and nervous afflictions.

"I advise neurasthenics to look for the funny side of life," he said, "to look for jokes, to subscribe to comic magazines and to cultivate a taste for good stories, to laugh at them and retell them.

"Violent and periodic explosions of temper are nothing more or less than emotional spreens. The neurotic, hysterical individual should make a study of himself and persistently go about the business of mastering these temperamental outbursts. The sunny side of the road of life has more pep to it. It is more pleasant over there than on the shady side, with its morbid aspects. We should all learn to take ourselves less seriously and, as the popular song says, 'laugh it off'."

Dr. G. Marian Wells, Professor of Clinical Medicine in the Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, at the morning session said that rubber reducing garments worn around the bust, hips and abdomen are ineffective, useless and unhealthy.

Bad Effect on the Skin.

"The purpose of the skin," he said, "is to eliminate poisonous waste products. Wearing of rubber constantly on the skin prevents these products from being properly thrown off. The skin is bathed in perspiration, which cannot evaporate, and the natural outlet at the pores becomes clogged with retained material. It has been found among practically all savage races who wear no clothing that even the wearing of ordinary clothes has a deleterious effect upon their health.

"The negroes in America are, relatively speaking, but out of the jungle and their bodies have not yet become fully used to the clothing they wear. The migration of the negro to large cities, such as New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, where they are packed together in apartment houses, is signing the death warrant for many of them. From a health standpoint, the negro is far better off in the country."

Responding to the appeal of Dr. C. A. Harkness of Chicago, who said he had yet to find a color-blind woman, Miss Pearl Drinkwater Engelman, a designer, of 46 East Twenty-ninth Street, presented herself at the convention and underwent a preliminary test. Dr. Harkness and Dr. William M. Muncy, an expert on color blindness, said that they believed Miss Engelman was "probably slightly red and green blind, due to the fact that her father and also her mother's brother were color blind." To make sure whether Miss Engelman is color blind, the exacting Japanese and Jennings tests will be applied today at the New York Ophthalmic Hospital if the necessary apparatus can be obtained.

PAINLEVE REASSURES SENATORS ON MOROCCO

Declares French Loss Is Exaggerated and Blockade Is Now Effective.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 24.—Appearing before a joint meeting of Senate Commissions today, Premier Poinlevé made another detailed report on the Moroccan situation and engaged in an exchange of views with leaders of the Senatorial groups on ways and means of solving the Moroccan problem.

The atmosphere of the discussion was optimistic, the Premier contending that an exaggerated impression had developed abroad concerning the extent of French loss. According to him a blockade has been established and Abd-el-Krim is no longer in a position to receive supplies by land or sea.

The French are unable to ascertain just how great a quantity of supplies are already in his possession and how long as a result of this he will be able to hold out.

The Senate Commissions were informed that Abd-el-Krim's regular force was about 9,000 men, but this number could be steadily increased through the addition of tribes converted to his cause. For this reason, M. Painlevé said, it was of the highest importance that the French should concentrate their efforts to prevent the spread of Abd-el-Krim's propaganda.

MADRID, June 24.—Riffians who were captured yesterday recount that dissent is rising against the more cruel measures that Abd-El-Krim is adopting, fearing desertions. Twelve powerful Caids have been imprisoned in dungeons for not having carried out orders to engage in battle with sufficient energy. The reign of terror is now in full sway. Captives believe that the first reversal of Abd-El-Krim will occasion wholesale desertions.

EUROPEANS KILLED, OTHERS WOUNDED

voyed the Honam as far as Whampoa. The refugees include a score of Americans, mostly missionaries. The Government has requisitioned river steamers to accommodate refugees from Canton.

The arrivals today included A. H. W. Edwards, who was shot in the right knee yesterday when Chinese demonstrators fired in the direction of the foreign settlement; V. G. Murrell, who was shot in the right shoulder, and Mrs. Charles Lammert, who was injured in the left foot.

The refugees say that yesterday's demonstration at Canton was intended as a show of military preparation, as Chinese in the procession were uniformed and carried rifles and machine guns.

British residents employed during the present emergency on the Chinese section of the Canton-Kowloon Railway, running to Hongkong, have been privately warned by Chinese friends to leave their employment immediately, as "the Chinese are determined to kill one foreigner for every Chinese."

Refugees who arrived here today include B. T. B. Boothby, engineer-in-chief of the railway; H. P. Harris, chief accountant of the road, and Inspectors S. M. Bander, J. T. Smith and their families.

CHINA ASKS NEW TREATIES.

Sends Note to Envoys Demanding Limit on Foreign Privileges.

PEKING, June 24 (AP).—The Chinese Government, in a note to the Diplomatic Corps today, argued for the revision of old treaties giving foreigners special privileges in China.

In a second note, also sent to the Diplomatic Corps today, the Foreign Office reiterated its insistence upon the "thirteen points" advanced by the Chinese delegation at the recent abortive conference at Shanghai, and expressed the hope that the new conference to discuss general Chinese questions, proposed by the foreign diplomats, may be held speedily.

The note insists upon the release of Chinese arrested at Shanghai in the recent strike troubles and the suspension of sentences imposed upon them. It asks for "an apology" and for the "rendition" of the Mixed Court at Shanghai. It calls for the reinstatement of strikers, the improvement of the working conditions of Chinese and for Chinese participation in the Municipal Council at Shanghai, as well as for "liberty of speech and assembly," and for the dismissal of the Secretary of the Shanghai Municipal Council, S. E. Rowe.

The note declares these points are necessary for the settlement of the Shanghai incident, and as a further basis for permanent peace says it is absolutely necessary to revise the "unequal treaties" by which foreigners enjoy special privileges in China.

The first note says it is convinced that the relations of all nations with China can be made more cordial and their rights and interests can be advanced without rather than with the enjoyment of "extraordinary privileges and immunities" given the foreign powers by existing treaties with China.

The note expresses the hope that the foreign Governments will be convinced that a readjustment of China's treaty relations on an equitable basis, in satisfaction of the legitimate aspirations of the Chinese people, would do much to consolidate friendly relations.

It is true that the existing treaties were concluded long ago under circumstances that did not permit free discussion, that conditions obtaining when these treaties were negotiated do not exist now and that the time had arrived for them to be changed.

The note declares that at the time China entered the World War with the Allies she was encouraged to hope for a definite improvement of her international status.

PLAN DEMONSTRATIONS TODAY

Many Chinese Cities to Have Dragon Day Celebration.

SHANGHAI, June 24 (AP).—Reports indicate that elaborate preparations have been made in various cities for demonstrations tomorrow, which is the Dragon Day festival. It is believed here that the success or failure of these demonstrations by the Chinese will materially affect the general situation throughout China.

Martial law in Shanghai and its suburbs reduces the danger of excesses here, and all additional precautions deemed necessary have been taken.

(Preceding dispatches have said martial law was in effect in the suburbs of Shanghai. Apparently this régime now applies to the city itself as well as the vicinity. There has been no recent announcement of a proclamation of martial law in the foreign concession.)

Shanghai Shops to Open Tomorrow.

SHANGHAI, June 24.—Meetings of merchants and representatives of labor and student organizations have been continuing ceaselessly the discussion as to reopening business, but tonight the final decision on the eve of the Dragon Festival is to reopen them the day after tomorrow.

General Chang Hsueh-Liang, son of Chang Tso-lin, before he returned to Tientsin, gave strict orders that no demonstration of any kind be allowed tomorrow. Therefore there is a chance that the decision to reopen will hold.

The shipping situation is most serious, and no movement of cargo is possible even in the case of ships manned by foreign crews. The shipping strike here, the anticipated boycott and struggle in Hongkong and the Bolsheviki are now the main topics of interest.

The international settlement is now surrounded by Fengtien troops, but as the influence of Chang Tso-lin, their commander, and his subordinates, is consistently for law and order, these are welcomed rather than otherwise.

Manchurian Revolts Are Reported.

LONDON, June 24 (AP).—The Daily Telegraph today says it has full corroboration of its report of yesterday that "ominous and serious disorders have broken out in Manchuria and are spreading."

It declares that mutinies have occurred on a fairly large scale among the troops of Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian dictator, who is now absent from Mukden, the capital. Bolshevist agents are credited with taking advantage of Chang's absence to provike risings against him and the foreign colonies.

The sudden departure from Shanghai of Chang Hsueh-liang, son of Chang Tso-lin, was due to the situation in Manchuria, the paper says, his father having sent him an urgent message to return immediately to deal with the trouble.

CHAMBERLAIN HINTS AT SOVIET

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—"I have evidence that the disturbances in China were fostered or aggravated by agents of another Government. His Majesty's Government is giving close attention to the situation thus created."

In this brief sentence in the House of Commons today Austen Chamberlain, the Foreign Secretary, for the first time put definitely into words what had been recently hinted, that the serious disturbances now occurring in China were fomented by the Bolshevist Government.

Hongkong dispatches today declare that Russian organizers in yesterday's demonstration against foreigners were responsible for the first shots, which ended in the concerted attack on the foreign settlement and it has also been asserted that Soviet agents have been urging the proposed boycott of English and Japanese goods in the hope of benefiting Russian trade and German trade via Siberia.

Now comes Mr. Chamberlain's statement, which, though he does not mention the Soviet Government directly, is perfectly well understood to apply to none other. It was made immediately after his assertion in reply to a questioner that the British Government did not purpose to follow the example of France, Japan, Italy, Persia and Turkey in appointing an Ambassador to the Soviet Union. In its close conjunction the Foreign Secretary's second statement sounded like a reason for his first.

Bolshevist influences were also blamed for China's troubles by the Rev. Judd Barnet, Archdeacon of Hongkong, speaking at the annual reunion here of the Hongkong Diocesan Association. The Rev. Mr. Barnet discribed the situation as the most dangerous which had faced Britain in China in the last hundred years. He considered the students had serious grievances and said they felt that their country was being prostituted to the advantage of foreign powers. Bolshevist propaganda had been praying on this sensitive mentality, hence the present situation.

WARSHIPS ASKED FOR AMOY.

Washington Gets Word of Tense Situation at That Place.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24.—A request for naval protection of the Consular Corps at Amoy has been made by the Amoy Municipal Council, according to cables to the State Department today from the American Consul, Leroy Weber.

He reports that the situation is grave because unruly elements persist in demonstrations at Kulang-soo.

The request for protection followed a statement by the Chinese authorities yesterday, that they could not guarantee protection of life and property in the settlement.

A boycott, with the possibility of a general strike, appears inevitable and will probably take place at Amoy tomorrow. Student and other agitators are active.

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP).—Official advices from China today increased the concern with which officials are watching developments there.

While no report has come from Peking on the latest Chinese note to the diplomatic corps, there is no doubt that officials here see little prospect for early subsidence of the anti-foreign wave which is sweeping parts of China.

The most alarming aspect of the Peking diplomatic correspondence, as seen here, was the probability that the provisional Government's stand might encourage the disorderly and riotous elements engaged in anti-foreign demonstrations. The situation at Canton and elsewhere was already so tense that apparently it would take little impetus to bring about conditions that could be dealt with only by force, which all of the powers are striving to avoid.

Thirty other Chinese are to be deported, and today seven were conducted to the Belgian border.

Although Minister Teheng Loo has not brought a complaint as yet, the Paris police have decided to rid the country of its undesirable guests.

MANOIA, June 25.—Bolshevist influence is believed to be backing the strike propaganda which is being widely carried on among the Chinese here. It is stated that printed matter, including cartoons depicting the killing of students in the Shanghai riots, are being distributed.

Funds are being collected by strike agents among Chinese throughout the archipelago for the support of the revolutionary movement which is comprehensively organized and directed mainly against the Japanese and the British.

FRENCH RUHR PROMISE PLEASES GERMANS

But They Refuse to See Merit in Evacuation Plan and Some Are Skeptical.

By F. H. YBARRA.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 24.—News of French preparations for the evacuation of the Ruhr districts of Düsseldorf, Suisberg and Ruhrort before Aug. 16 aroused much satisfaction here.

But Germans refuse to consider it as anything especially meritorious on the part of France, since they point out that French refusal to evacuate at the time stipulated would have been a grievous breach of faith and nobody deserves special commendation because he refrains from breaking his word.

Some Germans also advance as a reason for not throwing bouquets to France the fact that the French expressly agreed to evacuate the Ruhr so soon as Germany fulfilled her obligations under the Dawes plan. Since the Agent General for Reparations Payments, Mr. Gilbert, has now declared that Germany has fulfilled these obligations, Germans maintain that French refusal to evacuate not only would have been a breach of faith toward Germany but also toward the entente nations which joined in making the Dawes plan.

As a further reason for withholding special praise from France for her evacuation decision it is argued that France instead of benefiting by keeping the above named zones occupied as long as possible would merely incur unnecessary expense thereby, since occupation became totally unnecessary once the Dawes plan was working.

Incidentally, amid the general chorus of German satisfaction at the French announcement, there are still skeptical voices professing to wonder whether France really means to evacuate the territory before Aug. 16, and hinting that "seeing is believing" would be the best attitude for Germans to adopt on the subject. However, such voices are few. The general feeling here is that France means what she says.

Germans realize that the French announcement is calculated to create a better atmosphere for discussing the security compact. Germans are looking to England to help Germany solve the tangled security compact situation.

"Now England has the floor," says today's Germania, "the English Government has the best opportunity to create that atmosphere of confidence which alone can give the nations a genuine feeling of security. European security must be anchored on the Rhine security compact."

SPURN EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

British Miners Also Reject Proposed Wage Cut.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—The Executive Committee of the Miners' Federation today decided to oppose the employers' demands for an eight-hour working day and a reduction in wages.

While this action does not increase its gravity, nevertheless the situation continues very serious.

The committee further decided to lay the miners' positions before the entire political-industrial labor movement. This is interpreted as a continuation of the policy the executive has been following for several months in efforts to form a new industrial alliance.

At the close of today's meeting A. J. Cook, Secretary of the Miners' Federation, said he would go to France immediately to study the international coal situation and its relation to the English coal crisis.

It is still believed that both sides will strain every point to avoid a strike.

lain's effort he thought much effort should be directed toward protecting England against the danger of being isolated by French action.

In concluding the debate Mr. Chamberlain replied to criticisms that not enough attention was paid to disarmament in his plan by repeating his belief that disarmament would follow security, that once dread and fear could be lifted from the Continental nations economic reasons would bring disarmament.

He said the British Government was ready to join in any movement which promised a reduction of armaments and that while the initiative in naval disarmament might well come from the United States he persisted in believing that security was a prior condition to land disarmament.

Neither England nor the United States, which had so reduced their forces, was in the position to propose a land disarmament conference. That initiative should come from nations with great armaments.

Mr. Chamberlain's declarations were well received throughout by the vast majority of the House of Commons and as a result of the debate the Foreign Secretary undoubtedly feels authorized to carry on England's part in the negotiations.

Asks Support of All Parties.

Mr. Chamberlain began by denying the charge that he was pursuing a personal policy.

"Such an idea as that is the purest moonshine," he said. "No Foreign Minister could, he would, take such personal responsibility on himself, and every line of the White Paper has the approval of the Prime Minister and the whole Cabinet. That this security pact should be the policy of a united Cabinet is of course essential; but it is not enough. We want it to be not the policy of the Government of one party but the policy of all the parties of the nation as a whole which we pursue in a matter of such consequence not only to the British Empire but to the whole world.

"We all have but one purpose, to whatever party we belong. We all have but one object—to make peace secure and war impossible if we can, and, if we cannot attain that, to make war as remote a danger as it is possible for human ingenuity and human good-will to make it.

"When Mr. Lloyd George was Prime Minister, he pursued that object with the same singleness of purpose we are pursuing it now. He sought to lay the foundation first in an Anglo-American treaty of guarantee, which lapsed when the United States declined to ratify it, and secondly at Cannes by the British pact of guarantee, which lapsed owing to political episodes in another country. He was working with that object, but it was not given him in the time he was Prime Minister to bring it to a successful conclusion.

"Those methods of securing a common purpose are no longer possible or acceptable to British public opinion. Those methods were the methods of a pact of guarantee among the Allies directed against Germany in certain contingencies. No such unilateral pact can now be contemplated by the British Government. No alliances directed against a third party which is excluded from them can now form the basis of British policy, but the object remains.

What MacDonald Achieved.

"Mr. MacDonald took up the most pressing side of the general problem of European unrest, that of reparations, and succeeded in carrying it through to a satisfactory solution. He achieved that success in close and friendly cooperation with the Belgian Government and other allies and in conference with Germany. But he obtained French cooperation by the assurance which he gave that the British Government was prepared, with that question out of the way, to proceed with consideration of the question of security and see how security could be provided.

"Mr. MacDonald attempted to fulfill that undertaking by means of the protocol, but the protocol was not accepted at any moment by the French Government as a full discharge of the undertakings given, but merely as an instalment toward it.

"That protocol was unacceptable to his Majesty's present advisers. I need not go with any detail into the reasons for which we rejected it. We found ourselves in doing so in harmony with the whole British Empire. Neither any Dominion nor India was prepared to ratify the protocol and our refusal to do so had their sympathy and support.

"The problem therefore remained unsolved and the policy of the present Government has been directed to endeavoring to find a solution which had not yet been reached.

"Here, perhaps, I should turn aside. Answer a question which is widely put. Since the proposals Mr. Lloyd George fathered have fallen to the ground through no fault of our own, and since the protocol has not been adopted, why cannot you let things alone?

"Isolation, conserve preservation of our independence in all circumstances and from all engagements, is argued as a thorough policy for the British Empire. May I very briefly submit some considerations which lead me to different conclusions?

Isolation Called Impossible.

"I venture to say in the first place that the abstention of the British Empire, and of this country particularly, from European affairs never has served and, if history teaches us anything, never will serve the interests of peace. The direct result of the failure of the Anglo-American compact to mature was the conclusion of those alliances between France and the Eastern powers which pre-occupied and rendered anxious so many members opposite.

"In the second place, I will observe that whatever may have been possible in the past, no nation is isolated or can isolate itself today. I do not mean there may never again be some minor war or minor struggle which will be confined to a small area or a couple of nations, but I do say that anything which seriously affects the peace of Europe is, in the conditions of the world today, something which affects and must affect every nation vitally, whether a nation is a belligerent nation or not.

"Is it not within the knowledge of all of us that neutral nations, in all but loss of life, have had their whole economic existence almost as much disturbed by the war as ourselves, that their financial system has been almost as much affected by the war as ourselves, and that they have had to face problems of reconstruction and reorganization not as great but comparable in character and kind to those which confronted the belligerents themselves?

"But apart from that, if the policy of isolation is still the policy which commends itself to a party in this house or any section of opinion, they cannot carry out that policy by simple inaction. We have signed the covenant of the League of Nations and our signature of that covenant is incompatible with isolation or indifference to anything that may cause war or provoke disturbance in any part of the world.

"If, therefore, you want to take up a position of isolation and reserve your complete independence, you have got as the first act to leave the League of Nations and abandon the responsibilities you have undertaken and the rights you have attained by virtue of membership in the League. This country and the British Empire have not only obligations under the League of Nations but we have special obligations and rights under the Treaty of Versailles. I need not again read Clauses 42, 43 and 44 of that treaty. It is enough to mention these things in the treaty.

"This dream of isolation is a dream and nothing more. We already, by engagements we have undertaken, are inextricably bound up with the fortunes of Europe, whether for good or evil, and our safety lies not in trying to ignore those obligations, not in seeking that isolation which is impossible, but in the wise and prudent use of our influence and power to maintain peace and prevent war from breaking out again.

"I submit, therefore, that we are involved whether we like it or not, and that the question for us to consider is within what limits, upon what principles and for what purposes we can undertake any fresh obligations.

"It appeared to his Majesty's Government that it was impossible that the British Empire, or that portion of the British Empire for which we are most immediately and directly responsible, should undertake any universal extension of the obligations which we had already incurred as members of the League and signatories of the Versailles Treaty. We held therefore that the special need of the moment must be met by special arrangements that that these should be of a purely defensive character framed in the spirit of the Covenant and working in close harmony with the League and under its guidance.

"We feel that any new contribution by us must be limited to that region and frontier which so often have been alike the cause and centre of European wars and the security of which we have a direct national interest.

"I desire to repeat that in seeking to make that frontier secure and prevent war breaking out there, nothing could be further from our thoughts than to cast any doubt on the stability of our position elsewhere or the sanctity and obligations of other provisions of the treaty.

Only Way Frontiers Can Be Changed.

"Human foresight cannot pretend at any moment to make arrangements which will serve all interests at all times, but if frontiers are to be changed there are only two methods by which we can contemplate that that should be done.

"One is under Article 19 of the Covenant relating to treaties, which may have become inapplicable through lapse of time, and the other is in respect to the question which has not actually in the minds of any Government concerned—the union of Austria and Germany, which can only be contemplated as a result of action under Article 80 of the Treaty of Versailles or the corresponding article in the Treaty of Saint-Germain.

"The idea that we should set to work within six years of the signature of the Treaty of Versailles, and after all the labor that involved, to rewrite the boundaries of Europe and tear up the settlement which was then achieved seems to me to be one that cannot be conceived by any one outside of Bedlam. Whatever their intentions and objects, those who this time raise these frontier questions and keep the minds of the nations who are concerned unsettled and distributed are not serving the interests of peace or renewal of the prosperity of Europe.

"The need of the world is for stability, without which there can be no security, and unless there is security removing fear, allaying apprehension and restoring confidence peace will remain a name and never be translated into a fact. It is on this basis that the Government, after careful consideration of the proposals made by Germany and after an exchange of views with the French Government, concurred in the terms of the reply which was sent by the French Government to Berlin.

"I beg the committee to observe that we are not discussing a treaty. There is no treaty and no draft treaty in existence, but that we have before us merely a preliminary statement of principle and what the countries concerned feel it would be possible for them to undertake. If this exchange of views leads to serious negotiations many questions of great complexity will have to be resolved.

"I repeat the assurance already given by the Prime Minister and myself that no obligation will be undertaken by the Government on behalf of this country except with the approval and ratification of Parliament.

Germany's Initiative Praised.

"The whole conversations and exchange of notes arises from the initiative taken by the German Government. I have already expressed my conviction of the good faith with which the German Government made the proposals and with which they intend to continue the negotiations, and I also pay tribute to the courage and statesmanship of the men who took this bold initiative. It seemed to the Government to offer a more hopeful prospect than anything which had occurred since the signature of the Treaty of Versailles.

"We have held our engagements must be strictly limited to the western frontier, and any engagement with regard to that frontier must not be a unilateral alliance directed against some other nation or group of nations, but a mutual pact among those powers whose past differences have provoked war, so as to maintain peace in the future.

"In the third place we held it to be essential that at least contemporaneously with the coming into force of any new mutual arrangement of this kind Germany should enter the League of Nations and accept its obligations while receiving the rights of every other member socially, and thus take her proper place and have her proper influence in the counsels of the world.

"Lastly, we held that nothing in the new treaty should affect the rights and obligations attaching to membership in the League, but that among those nations where danger is greatest the covenant should be reinforced by mutual guarantees and treaties of arbitration.

"Our new obligations, therefore, will be strictly limited to the frontier between Germany on the one side and France and Belgium on the other. Our guarantee is that the frontier cannot be invoked by a wrondoer to shield him in wrongdoing, and our guarantee becomes effective only, but in this case immediately effective, if in defiance of treaties of arbitration and the obligations of the covenant the wrongdoer resorts to force.

"If, for instance, one of the parties refuses to arbitrate or carry out the award our guarantee cannot be invoked to protect him, although he does that and no more we retain our liberty, subject always to our obligations under the covenant, to decide what, if any, action we shall take. But if the wrongdoer not only refuses to arbitrate or carry out the award but also resorts to force our guarantee becomes effective to protect the wronged party.

"This application of the guarantee proposed in Article 4, Paragraph 3 of the French draft is intended to insure that the procedure of the League for prevention of a resort to force shall be respected and the guarantee can only be brought into effect if there is a violation of the treaty of arbitration coupled with hostile measures, a situation which is already to some extent in the covenant, and brings into immediate effect the provisions contemplated by Article 16 of that document.

"I am on delicate ground because for the purpose of answering questions which I assume the committee wishes me to answer I must assume that somebody has grossly defaulted in his obligations and has done an act of criminal folly; but I think it best to deal with these possibilities quite frankly.

If Germany Attacks Poland.

"It is not that I anticipate that either Poland or Germany is going to provoke a war with the other or suddenly fall upon the other and attack her, but I must assume for the purpose of examination the position that one or the other, in defiance of obligations voluntarily undertaken, makes an unprovoked war on her neighbor. If, for example, Germany in violation of our arbitration, attacks Poland, Article 16 of the covenant comes into play at once.

"France will be entitled in such circumstances to treat such resort to war by Germany against Poland as an act of war committed against France, but in such case we have no obligations other than those which are already incumbent upon us by virtue of our signature of the covenant. We have obligations, but those are obligations of the covenant and not any new obligations imposed upon us by the suggested treaty.

"If, on the other hand, Poland, in defiance of an arbitration treaty to which she had consented, attacked Germany neither France nor we have any obligations whatever other than those which are contained in Article 16 and the other articles of the covenant.

"It may be asked what relation this is to the question of disarmament. It is in our conception a practical step and a very large step toward disarmament. What causes these big armies to be kept up? It is not desire of military aggrandisement. It is fear lest the calamity of war and invasion should again fall upon the countries which think themselves threatened.

"If you can remove that fear from men's minds that haunts every cottage in France, haunts under consideration of different eventualities every home in Germany, haunts all workmen's houses and hearts in the new countries which owe their present boundaries to treaties signed after the great war.

"If you can remove that fear you remove the obstacle to disarmament and you do not then need provisions to secure it, for economic forces will oblige countries with large armaments to diminish them at the first moment that those countries feel they can breathe in safety with diminished forces.

"Earnestly would I appeal for impartial and friendly consideration of these proposals, for criticism of them which shall be directed to help and not hinder work which I believe to be a work of peace.

"Who among us can regard with satisfaction the history of the past few years? Who among us can view without apprehension the prospects of the future?

"Europe today, six years after the signing of peace, still stands ranged in two camps, hostile in spirit, mutually suspicious, apprehensive, with distrust not lessened but deeped by the progress of time, with dangers of a new struggle breaking out in the future—not growing less as time goes by, but becoming greater. Everybody knows that fear dominates the whole position of the world, and the attitude of every country.

Now a new opportunity has opened perhaps the last opportunity and it arises in the German initiative. It received a most friendly and conciliatory response from France. The suggestions which were made to give Umbrage are no cause for anxiety now. Here and there its fate has been watched with sympathy in quarters where other solutions have been regarded with anxiety and dread. Already merely because an exchange of views has taken place and because of the spirit which has been shown a sensible change has occurred in the situation.

"I opened my paper this morning and I read the French Government has spontaneously announced its intention of evacuating the Ruhr before the date which was fixed for that operation.

"These proposals offer a great and happy prospect of a better and more peaceful world. Initiated by Germany and received in this friendly spirit by France they will however come to nothing unless this country will lend its cooperation. In spite of the deeply rooted suspicion and hatred such a mutual compact has no chance of ever being signed unless we take our part and give each side the assurance our cooperation will give that the mutual compact will be observed, not only in the letter but in the spirit which prompts its origin.

"I plead with my colleagues in this house and plead with my countrymen outside to lend this cooperation. I plead not for these proposals as a party measure but as a national policy. I plead for them with all the earnestness that a deep conviction gives, because I believe the peace of the whole world and the peace of our own land depend upon their coming to successful fruition.

"Nations like individuals have responsibilities proportionate to their opportunities and their powers. Our nation can go to the bar of history and we can plead we have a good record and our fathers were not slow to pay their tribute to the service of humanity. I plead now that we in our day, for the sake of our children and for the sake of generations yet unborn, should show ourselves worthy of the great position which we have inherited and the great traditions of which we are proud."

MacDonald Replies for Labor.

Ramsay MacDonald, on behalf of the Labor Party, made the first reply to Mr. Chamberlain. He went back to the Geneva Protocol as the proper way to bring peace and security to Europe. He said that Mr. Chamberlain had shown the situation through a telescope, but that it was essential to look at it through a microscope. He was afraid that Britain did not understand just what was being proposed. While Great Britain might be ready to guarantee geographical France, he said, he felt sure she did not wish to guarantee political France. He hoped the Government while engaged in the quixotic undertaking of securing France would not forget Britain. He, too, was against isolation for Britain.

"The Foreign Secretary tells us," he said, "that we would be guaranteeing the western frontier and only that, but guaranteeing the western frontier of France means that we have got to go into the next European war."

He supported this contention by arguing that no matter how Germany and France might get into a war the western frontier was bound to be affected and, therefore, Britain drawn in. He regarded the conditions laid down by Mr. Chamberlain as giving Britain's approval to the policy under which ex-Premier Poincaré occupied the Ruhr. While on paper, he declared, the new offering looked like a bilateral treaty it was in fact not that sort of proposal, but the Allies on one side and some one else on the other.

The Labor leader refused to agree with Mr. Chamberlain that economic pressure after security was obtained would bring the nations to disarm, and said that so far as he could see the Government's disarmament policy was a do-nothing policy.

Britain was at the parting of the ways, said Mr. MacDonald, and her policy was now about to be fixed for a half century, and he feared that the proposed compact offered far less benefits than the Geneva Protocol.

Lloyd George Recalls Wilson Compact.

Mr. Lloyd George, speaking for the Liberals, said:

"The compact proposed by President Wilson in 1919, which the House of Commons accepted, offered to guarantee France against unprovoked aggression. That simple compact retained the right to judge what was 'unprovoked aggression.' France agreed to certain conditions in the Treaty of Versailles on the understanding that she was to get that guarantee, but the United States having failed to come into that arrangement it still seems that this country is in honor bound to renew that offer to France."

France rejected the compact offered by M. Briand, he said, and he still intended in the solution of the situation he was seeking, to find all that was good in the proposed Rhineland treaty, and if he posed a question it was only to clarify the situation in the hope for a settlement. In fact, Germany had proposed the Rhine compact. Mr. Lloyd George said, and he saw a great indication of better prospects and declared that the signature suggested that an arrangement would have great benefit in bringing about the evacuation of Cologne and the Ruhr.

For Mr. Lloyd George the important task was to protect Britain against the danger of France starting a war of her own.

"After reading the White Paper I am more and more uncertain what we are about to bind ourselves to," he said. He predicted that if Britain went too far the Dominions would be driven into the American foreign policy." It was a very dangerous thing to do, he declared.

After asking a great many questions as to the details of the application of the arbitration policy, he said that as he saw it there was too much chance of France taking isolated action.

"The war was won and peace made by the Allies as a whole," he said, "and never did they accept the Poincaré theory that France had a right to take separate action."

If it meant that France would have the right to take isolated action the Liberal leader thought the compact would not be worth the paper it was written on. He said he was against the White Paper proposal as it stood and implored Mr. Chamberlain to bring forward a proposal by which France and Germany would arbitrate everything.

This seemed a rather weak criticism, for the White Paper showed that the British Government has turned down the proposal of all round arbitration as did the Government on several occasions when Mr. Lloyd George was Premier.

Chamberlain Answers Critics.

In rebuttal Mr. Chamberlain appreciated the general spirit of the debate. He did not share the fears that the proposed compact would be unilateral, but declared there was nothing exclusive about it and that Germany would be on an equal footing with equal rights and he added that he hoped Italy would come in, too.

He did not agree, either, that England was going on for a general guarantee of the frontiers of Europe. He said the commitment was quite clearly limited. He thought the point about France's marching across Germany against her will to help Poland a greatly exaggerated matter.

"Is there any living soul who imagines any military authority would trust his armies to the mercies of long lines of communication through somebody else's territory unless he was quite certain that that somebody else was wholeheartedly his friend?" he asked.

"There is no license for any nation to cross another country's territory to the assistance of some one else except a license under the conditions embodied in the Covenant and where an invitation to do so is issued by the League of Nations."

In reply to a question Mr. Chamberlain said the Dominions were being kept fully informed on the negotiations.

TENSION LESSENED IN BRUSSELS SESSION

Witty French Delegate Pokes Fun at the Dawes Plan Pessimists.

BRITISH DENY BAD FAITH

Committee Adopts American Scheme for International Body to Cut Trade Barriers.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, June 24.—Practically for the first time since the opening of the third congress of the International Chamber of Commerce, the American delegation today regained its confidence, shattered by the first-day attacks by MM. Despret and Janssen on the efficiency of the Dawes plan, the prospects of an early settlement for interallied debts and the warnings of Sir Josiah Stamp.

Three things contributed chiefly:

1—A speech by Maurice Lewandoski, Vice President of the Bankers' Syndicate of France. This was a witty and vigorous, though indirect, defense of the Dawes plan. He poked fun at Sir Josiah Stamp, whom he called "an archmaster in the hermetic science of transfers." He asserted that the payments of Germany could be transferred as easily as was the payment of 5,000,000,000 gold francs by France to Germany in 1872.

2—An unequivocal notice served on the whole congress by the American shipping men that the United States would not permit foreign interference in her coastwise shipping.

3—The adoption by the Committee on Economic Restoration of a plan presented by Edward A. Filene for an international committee to handle the problem of trade barriers and persuade the nations to make tariff and industrial concessions permitting the movement in profitable channels of big surpluses.

Small Nations May Swing Into Line.

In addition, John W. O'Leary's speech prepared for delivery tomorrow is believed to express the attitude of the United States so vigorously as to be calculated to halt the insurgency of small nations and swing the congress into line when its resolutions are voted on Friday. The council has arranged to give the representatives of Austria, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Rumania five minutes each to address the plenary session on Friday.

There is a general tone of protest against possible German dumping on the ground that it would destroy the economic progress already made, but it is not thought that this will influence the final resolutions. The congress is much like a political convention and the results of British and American skill in steam rolling is becoming apparent in increasing harmony and smoothness of procedure.

M. Lewandowski's speech was received with applause, especially from the Americans. He presented the French viewpoint in typical French manner, combining wit, sarcasm and irony.

"The transfer question has been greatly affected by a new microbe discovered by Mr. Lloyd George and M. Briand in the surgical inquiry called the Dawes plan," he said. "It exists in the veins of transmission and is fatal to the transfer of money from debtors to creditors. Needless to say it is a new discovery and did not exist in 1872. The economic aspects of reparations and interallied debts are the same. The transfer of money to repay what is borrowed is as hard as the transfer to repay war damages. Frenchmen naturally hope the microbe will attack debts in the same degree as reparations."

Action on the shipping question was due to Ira A. Campbell and S. H. Raymond, representing the American Steamship Owners' Association, and Homer L. Ferguson for the Atlantic Coast Shipbuilders' Association. The speech of Sir Alan Anderson at Monday's session had fanned smoldering anger over prevention in presenting the case by its deletion from the agenda. It was regarded as a breach of faith and was forced on the conference by the British delegates.

Sir Arthur Balfour, Sir Alan Anderson and the rest of the delegation disavowed any intent to break faiht and gave solemn assurance tht they did not intend to seek to enter United States coast shipping. Mr. Campbell said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent:

"We are pleased to have this assurance. It removes doubt, which otherwise might exist. But we are compelled to serve notice of the American position on the whole conference, for this as well as other motives.

"First Japan wanted to raise the issue of reciprocal coast trade and sent a delegation of six orators. Next the Transport Committee early this year authorized the study of how the reservation of the coasting trade by various countries affected commerce. Then several British shipping men were quoted in the press as urging the idea, one going so far as to say he believed Great Britain, Scandinavia, Germany, Holland, Belgium and Japan by reciprocal agreements could force all nations to open trade to any flag."

American Views Set Forth.

The result was a long report to the American section, which was adopted, and copies of which were ordered to be distributed to the congress. This statement reiterates the assertion that the resolution declaring for free trade is not representative of the views of American shipping and declares that the American policy has not changed since the German-American treaty containing the withdrawal clause.

The danger to national defense is pointed out if the merchant marine is not maintained and the report says:

"To contract away through treaty obligations the right to give merchant shipping the support and protection it may require if American ships are not to be driven from the seas in foreign trade and to lie idle and rust while the country's foreign commerce is carried in ships of other nations which may become enemy nations, may mean the destruction of the very instruments of defense that may be needed to defend the honor and sovereignty of the United States."

The idea of a trade handling committee is built around two bankers, two business men and two commercial experts of each nation who would undertake to study what concessions are possible in the interest of the world's good. The difficulties are very apparent, but it is believed that business men would be able to arrange agreements where Governments fail.

Large quantities of surplus materials are barred from an outlet by existing legislation, which protects a small part of commodities at the expense of the great bulk. The matter is in the hands of Edward A. Filene, A. Lincoln Filene, William D. Butterworth, Joseph Defrees, Frank D. Waterman, John Fahey, Edward Carslen and William Rutherford.

Other objects of American interest were forwarded today. A resolution drawn by Edward Parker on customs discrimination and the protection of industrial property by copyrights, patents, &c., was adopted. A double taxation resolution was put over till tomorrow.

The correlation of international aerial transport, as well as telephone communication, was approved on American recommendation without reference to Government ownership, the stumbling block to previous success.

An amusing display of the cross purposes at work was disclosed in the Transport Committee. Boyd Chapin and William Rutherford, President of the American Rubber Association, have been working hard on a campaign to induce workers in all countries to buy cars, while another section went on record this morning that motor trucking was now a menace to the railroads and the cause of heavy damage to roads, and as a result the congress is expected to recommend a reduction of truck loads to no more than 8,000 pounds.

Brokaw

WITHOUT looking at the suit you are wearing, can you give us a quick and decisive answer to each of the following questions?—

"What cloth is it made of?" "Has it peaked or notched lapels?" "Is it lined with silk?" "Has it two, three or four buttons?" "Is there a vent in the back of the coat?"

* * *

If you can answer these questions correctly, you know more about clothing than the average man.

* * *

Nine out of ten men buy clothes blindly, following instinct, rather than reason. They do not bother to ask about the quality and history of the fabric, the details of the tailoring, or the practical value of the suit.

* * *

If more men asked questions like these, Brokaw Brothers would need two or three more buildings to accomodate their customers.

* * *

It is a fact, and not a boast, that Brokaw clothes are made more carefully than most clothes, that they give more wear, and that they are cut not only to suit the dictates of fashion, but to suit the figure of the purchaser.

* * *

You may go your way the rest of your life in blissful ignorance of how good clothes can really be. Or you may see the light, and find out for yourself the first time you are in our neighbourhood.

"Tax the fat man," says a newspaper headline.

A proposal, in our opinion, extremely foolish, even for a newspaper headline. Why this recent waspish propaganda against the fat man? What has he done to be treated as a malefactor?

A man of bulk can no longer turn the pages of a magazine without receiving castigation at the hands of insurance doctors, dieticians, distillers of vanishing fluids and compilers of doleful statistics on health.

Brokaw Brothers has been a haven for fat men, since 1856. We find them the salt of the earth—always good tempered, well-disposed toward the world, sound of character and as dependable as the interest on a good bond. We consider it an honor to be singled out by them as the establishment that serves them best. And we hope to continue to deserve that honor for at least another century to come.

OPEN DEBTS PARLEY WITH ITALY TODAY

American Representatives Will Seek to Obtain Plan for Early Funding.

BRITISH ACCORD TO GUIDE

Terms Granted to Britain Likely to Govern Interest Cut—Cancellation Talk Tabooed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Negotiations with Italy on the settlement of her war debt to the United States will begin at the Treasury Department tomorrow. It is the desire of the Coolidge Administration to reach a satisfactory agreement by the time Congress meets in December. In the opinion of officials Italy's economic and financial situation has attained a stability that warrants her taking steps to discharge her obligations.

At tomorrow's conference the United States will be represented by Secretary Kellogg, Secretary Mellon and Senator Smoot, all members of the World War Foreign Debt Commission. Nobile Giacomo de Martino, the Italian Ambassador, and Mario Alberti, Director of the Credito-Italiana, one of the leading banks of Italy, will appear for Italy.

Later on in the exchange between the officials of the two Governments, Ambassador de Martino and Mr. Alberti will be joined by other spokesmen for Italy. In tomorrow's conference Mr. Alberti will act as financial adviser to the Ambassador. The conference will be a preliminary discussion of the debt problem, and doubtless will result in a program under which negotiations will be pressed later.

Some light on the terms Italy will ask in the funding of its debt has been gained in conversations between Secretary Kellogg and Ambassador de Martino. In a general way, it was said today that Italy will ask for more favorable terms than were accorded to Great Britain. She may suggest a moratorium as well as interest rates substantially lower than those carried by American Liberty bonds, and possibly lower than those made a part of the agreement entered into with Great Britain.

Italy owes the United States $2,138,543,582. Of this amount, $1,647,809,197 is principal and $490,674,654 accrued interest. The interest rate on this debt at present is 5 per cent. Italy has paid $164,852 principal and has made interest payments totalling $57,598,852. The small payment credited to principal is understood to represent a bookkeeping charge, while the payment credited to interest is described as payments while advances were being made under the American Liberty loans.

In the negotiations with Italy, as well as those to begin soon with Belgium, France and Czechoslovakia, the United States will not entertain any proposal of cancellation of any part of any debts. As far as Italy is concerned, it is the understanding here that she will make a formal acknowledgment of the $2,138,543,582 total, and suggest terms based upon her ability to pay.

Officials here, in private discussions of the question, have suggested that Italy is not likely to get any better terms in interest than were agreed upon for Great Britain. There may be some compromises in deferred payments, and Italy may possibly get more time. Great Britain's debt, under the agreement effected in June, 1923, will run for sixty-three years, dating from Dec. 15, 1922.

It was said today that President Coolidge is in accord with the Debt Commission in the view that Italy and all other debtor nations shall agree to make annual payments on principal in accordance with the terms of the British agreement. The United States is likely to insist that Italy shall set aside an amortization fund of probably one-half of 1 per cent. for principal reduction and begin payments at once, even though a moratorium is declared in the case of interest payments.

CALLS MUSCLE SHOALS A VERY SMALL PROJECT

S. S. Wyer Tells Electrical Convention Niagara Falls Could Have 35 Times Its Power.

SARATOGA, N. Y., June 24.—Declaring that the public has been hypnotized by big words about Muscle Shoals and that there is a wide gap between popular beliefs and the actual facts as to the project, Samuel S. Wyer, consulting engineer, tonight told the national convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in session here that Niagara Falls alone could develop 3,500,000 horsepower, or thirty-five times the power of Muscle Shoals, without affecting its scenic value.

Mr. Wyer presented a complete study of the project from War Department records, showing that there is available in the United States at least 250 times as much good water power as Muscle Shoals could develop. They also set forth that the project would have to be multiplied 400 times to equal the power that is now furnished this country by stationary steam engines, oil and gas motor and directly-applied water power.

CITY WELL GOVERNED, SAYS PELL, HOME AGAIN

Democratic Chairman Declares Party Will Win if Hylan Runs or Not.

Herbert C. Pell Jr., Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, who returned yesterday from a trip to Europe in the French liner Paris, said that New York City was governed as well as any city in the world and that whether Hylan was renominated or not the Democratic Party would win.

Asked if he thought that Hylan would be re-elected if he was nominated for a third term, Mr. Pell replied:

"I do not know, but I can say that New York can hold up her head with any city in the world in my opinion the city is being extraordinarily well handled by those responsible for her municipal Government. No man in the Democratic or any other party is bigger than the party itself, regardless of whether he is Mayor, Governor or any one else."

Mr. Pell criticized the New York newspapers for their "efforts to vilify the Administration," and pointed out that those believing the police to be corrupt had only to try them to find out their error.

Mr. Pell said he had spent three months in Paris buying books, and saw much drunkenness there which, he said, he regretted to state was confined exclusively to his own compatriots.

WOMEN FAVOR STRAUS.

Ask McCooey to Back Senator for Aldermanic Presidency.

A delegation of women, representing all parties, called on John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Kings County, yesterday and asked him to use his influence to bring about the nomination of Senator Nathan Straus Jr., as President of the Board of Aldermen. The women told Mr. McCooey they wanted to see Senator Straus nominated on a ticket that would command the respect of all parties. They said that although the Senator comes from another borough his public spirited work at Albany has made him favorably known throughout the city.

In the delegation were: Dr. Eliza Mosher, Mrs. Richard Chapman, Mrs. F. O. Affeld, Mrs. Raymond V. Ingersoll, Mrs. Henry S. Gibson, Miss Anna May Mason, Mrs. Susan Yeomans, Mrs. Charles H. Rodger, Mrs. James B. Aimer, Mrs. Louis Ehrenberg, Dr. Izora Scott, Miss Mary Buxton, Mrs. L. E. Davis, Miss Eva Sherwood Potter, Miss Mabel Macomber, Mrs. Emma Hoyt, Miss Elizabeth D. Nairns and Miss Julia Hussen.

Mr. McCooey told the women that he would do what he could to grant their wishes, but could not promise any results.

SHEFFIELD TAKING NOTE TO CALLES

Ambassador Will Present Specifications Justifying State Department's Complaint.

RETURNING TO POST SOON

Government Will Not Let Grievances Rest With Mexican President's Defiant Reply.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—James R. Sheffield, Ambassador to Mexico, who was called to Washington to consult with President Collesa and Secretary Kellogg on account of the tense situation that was developing in relations with Mexico, will return to Mexico City soon and it was the understanding today that he would take with him a note to the Mexican Government in which specifications will be given to justify the complaint of the United States over the treatment of American nationals, contained in a public statement issued on June 12 by Secretary Kellogg.

Secretary Kellogg's charges brought from President Calles of Mexico what was in effect an admonition to the United States to mind its own business. Since the publication of the Calles reply there has been no outward sign of a continuance of the differences.

This Government, however, does not intend to let the subject rest there. The Secretary of State's statement has been viewed in some quarters as not specific enough to enable those who read it to understand what the grievances were which induced this Government to take the unusual course of criticising a foreign Government without the medium of a formal diplomatic communication. The note to be presented by Ambassador Sheffield, it is understood, will set forth in detail the reasons the United States has for complaining of the treatment its nationals have received at the hands of the Mexican Government.

It is well understood here that one of the chief causes of irritation is that the Mexican Government has ignored many complaints filed with its foreign office by Ambassador Sheffield. These complaints, having to do largely with the general allegations of Secretary Kellogg's statement that American citizens had suffered confiscation of properties, are said to run into hundreds and the impression is given that no attention whatever has been paid to them by the appropriate Mexican authorities.

REJECTS TAX INCREASE.

Reichstag Committee Refuses Higher Levy on Beer and Tobacco.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 24.—Those who prophesied that the German Government was headed for stormy days in the Reichstag might have rubbed their hands and chuckled "I told you so" when a Reichstag committee today refused to sanction a Government proposal to increase beer and tobacco taxes. Although Finance Minister Schlieben had eloquently advocated these increased taxes as a means toward solving Germany's difficulties, the committee turned a deaf ear to his pleadings, voting down the proposal 15 to 13.

This is considered an augury of what is coming in the way of further rebuffs when other pet Government schemes are aired before an unruly Reichstag. Foremost among these is a proposed new tariff. The Government wishes to rush through these measures before the Reichstag recess July 18.

Opposition, headed by Socialists, which as already foretold would be determined, is crystallizing hourly. The Socialists consider the tariff question altogether too important to be hurried through the Reichstag. They want discussion regarding it to cover entire months if necessary.

SAYS 1925 WILL SET FOREIGN TRADE RECORD

President Farrell of the Steel Corporation Says 1924 Volume Was 93,160,000 Long Tons.

SEATTLE, June 24 (AP).—While the foreign trade of the United States last year passed all previous records in volume, this year gives promise of exceeding it, James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation, told the National Foreign Trade convention today. Mr. Farrell also is Chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council.

The volume of American exports and imports for the calendar year 1924, Mr. Farrell said, was 93,160,000 long tons and the aggregate value was more than $8,200,000,000. To give an idea of the magnitude of the volume he said that if the tonnage could be handled in a day through any one port it would require a fifty-car freight train every seven minutes during the entire twenty-four hours to clear the docks.

"The figures for our foreign trade for 1924," the speaker continued, "represent a growth of production and enterprise in the United States that is cause for satisfaction. It was very nearly double that for 1913, the last year before the war, whether measured by value or by quantity. The war stimulated activities and injected an element of violent fluctuations, with a period of apparent, but fictitious, increase, from which, I think it is safe to say, we have now recovered, so that the growth shown in the last three years may be compared, with reason, to the development during the ten-year period prior to the war."

Mr. Farrell expressed the view that the foreign trade trend was favorable and steadily upward, but that there are bound to be fluctuations which will affect, more or less seriously, various factors of it.

COOLIDGE ENDORSES GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY

Tells Near East Relief That Such Observance Must Aid the People and Nations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The Near East Relief today gave out the text of a letter from President Coolidge to that organization endorsing the observance of Golden Rule Sunday, December 6. The President's letter is in response to a communication from the Near East Relief and reads:

"The reports of the observance of International Golden Rule Sunday last year in fifty countries, and its far-reaching results in the training of orphans in the Near East, have been of great interest to me. This expression of brotherhood inevitably has a beneficial influence upon those who give as well as those who receive.

"As practical help is the best expression of friendship, I feel that the aid which we may give out of our prosperity to those impoverished by war may be of the utmost value in the promotion of international goodwill. The consistent observance of Golden Rule Sunday cannot but help to bring about the application of the Golden Rule itself to the misunderstandings of nations and of individuals.

"I earnestly hope that the voluntary observance of this day may become increasingly prevalent in the homes of America and throughout the World."

Denies Leaving P. C. Knox.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 24.—Mrs. Philander C. Knox, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Pool, denied tonight that she had left her husband or that she would file divorce proceedings. At the same time she admitted that she did not know the whereabouts of her husband, who is said to have left Washington this morning.

WILL ASK COOLIDGE TO REVIEW THE KLAN

Ku Klux Want Him to Honor Aug. 8 Parade in Washington "of 150,000 Members."

RECALL CATHOLIC PARADE

Say Klan Should Get "the Same Consideration"—President Expected to Refuse.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The Ku Klux Klan, in plans for a great demonstration here on Aug. 5, when it hopes to make an impressive showing in numbers, would furnish a high light to the proceedings by having President Coolidge review a monster parade on Pennsylvania Avenue, the capital's great processional highway.

Klan officials are understood to be preparing to send a delegation to the President's Summer residence at Swampscott to formally invite him to review the marching Klansmen. A press agent statement purporting to come from the Klan contains this paragraph:

"President Coolidge honored the Holy Name Society by reviewing its procession on Pennsylvania Avenue last year and by delivering an address to its members on the ellipse. The Klansmen figure they are due the same consideration from the Chief Executive."

The Holy Name Society is the great organization of the Catholic Church which held its annual convention in Washington last year and furnished a gigantic parade that ended on the ellipse, a spacious grass-covered park between the White House and the Washington Monument, where President Coolidge delivered an address. There is no expectation that President Coolidge will be induced to accept the Klan's invitation, if for no other reason than that his plans do not call for his return to Washington until September.

The Klan's suggestion that because the President reviewed the parade of a Catholic organization, and addressed its members, he should appear in a like capacity in connection with a Klan demonstration is not likely to have any influence on the President, according to opinion here.

At the Washington headquarters of the Kluxers today it was indicated that there will be between 150,000 and 200,000 Klansmen in the parade. They will come from all sections of the country, it was said. On Aug. 9, the day following the parade, an elaborate religious service will take place under the auspices of the hooded order. The statement was made also at Klan headquarters that railroads have agreed to special rates.

ARRESTED AFTER PLEADING.

Minister, Defendant in Manslaughter Case, Sued for $100,000.

The Rev. Alfred W. Budd of Derby, Conn., who was arraigned and pleaded not guilty in General Sessions yesterday on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death on Oct. 24 last of Max Figelman, an automobile mechanic, after he had been crushed against a store at Fifty-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue by the clergyman's car, was arrested immediately afterward in a civil suit for $100,000 brought by Mrs. Kate Figelman in behalf of herself and two children, aged 7 and 3. The defendant was released upon giving a bond of $5,000 fixed by Supreme Court Justice Glennon in the Bronx County, where the suit was filed.

Mrs. Figelman alleged that the automobile was beyond control of the driver at the time of the accident and that it was being operated recklessly and negligently. She said that her husband was 30 years old, and earned $100 a week.

CRAIG CALLS HYLAN THREAT A CRIME

sioners may result in a discussion of the makeup of the city ticket."

After the meeting had been called to order it was addressed by Mayor Hylan, in the course of his remarks he stated that any member of the official family who might be embarrassed in keeping such official family "intact" would be a weak link in the official chain. Hylan then said: "He will see the necessity for the removal of such weakness which can most speedily be accomplished by his voluntary separation from the official family." In plain English, this was a threat to remove any who faltered in rendering the political action that Hylan required of him to procure for himself a renomination for the office of Mayor. The intent with which Hylan's words were uttered could not be misunderstood. A separation from the payroll that is the result of such a "necessity" is not "voluntary." The effect of the Mayor's utterances was immediate. When he had finished, six commissioners holding appointment under Hylan and subject to removal by him vied with one another in urging the adoption of a motion "that another four years should be given to him." The response to this motion appears to have been unanimous.

Decision in Willett Case.

In 1915, the Court of Appeals upheld the conviction of William Willett for a violation of Section 775 of the Penal Law. According to its title that provision was enacted to prevent "the corrupt use of position or authority." It provides:

Section 775. Corrupt use of position or authority. Any person who:

1. While holding a public office, or being nominated or seeking a nomination or appointment therefor, corruptly uses or promises to use, directly or indirectly, any official authority or influence possessed or anticipated, in the way of conferring upon any person or in order to secure, or aid any person in securing, any office or public employment, or any nomination, confirmation, promotion or increase of salary, upon consideration that the vote or political influence or action of the person so to be benefited or of any other person, shall be given or used in behalf of any candidate, officer or party or upon any other corrupt condition or consideration; or,

2. Being a public officer or employe of the State or a political subdivision having, or claiming to have, any authority or influence affecting the nomination, public employment, confirmation, promation, removal, or increase or decrease of salary of any public officer or employe, or promises or threatens to use any such authority or influence, directly or indirectly, to affect the vote or political action of any such public officer or employe, or on account of the vote or political action of such officer or employe; * * * is punishable by imprisonment for not more than two years or by a fine of not more than $5,000, or both.

The conviction of Willett was based upon a violation of this provision of the penal law in corruptly bargaining for the nomination for the office of Justice of the Supreme Court. Willett did not go so far as to threaten any officeholder with removal. A public officer who has power to remove another officer or employe and threatens to use such authority, directly or indirectly, to affect the political action of any such subordinate public officer or employe, violates the penal law just as much as the one who obtains his nomination as Willett did.

A public office is a public trust. The manifest purpose of this statute against the corrupt use of position or authority is to prevent prostitution in public office. The foundations of the Government can be as successfully undermined by the prostitution of official power as by the corruption of the electorate. In fact, the penal law makes no material distinction between these classes of offenses. If the incumbent of a high office like that of Mayor by the exercise of the power of appointment or removal, or to increase or decrease the salary of any public officer or employe can so affect the political action of subordinate officers and employes as to dictate his renomination on one occasion without rebuke, he would be encouraged to repeat the prohibited acts until he has established a dictatorship of which he is the head. The political dictatorships that have fastened themselves upon the public in the past have developed in this manner. It was the public's experience with these political rings in such cases that resulted in the enactment of the provisions now found in the penal law.

This exhibition of lawlessness on the part of Mayor Hylan is but a manifestation of his attitude toward the law which he has flouted whenever it suited his personal purposes in the seven and one-half years of Hylanism.

I am sending a copy of this communication to Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Yours very truly,
CHARLES L. CRAIG,
Controller.

Letter to Governor Smith.

Controller Craig's letter to Governor Smith is as follows:

Hon. Alfred E. Smith,
Governor of the State of New York,
Executive Chamber,
Albany, N. Y.

Dear Sir: I submit herewith a copy of a communication this day forwarded to the District Attorney of New York County. In view of the fact that the power of removal is vested in the Governor, I am submitting it to you for such consideration as you deem appropriate. Yours very truly,

CHARLES L. CRAIG, Controller.

The letter President Ordway of the Civil Service Reform Association sent to the department heads read:

"I enclose a copy of Section 26 of the Civil Service law, in relation to the prohibition of political assessments. We sincerely trust that you will post this in a conspicuous place so that it may come to the attention of all civil service employes.

"In connection with this subject, I respectfully call to your attention Sections 25 and 27 of the Civil Service law, copies of which are enclosed. These sections of the law prohibit any action on the part of public officials tending to coerce their subordinates into support of any candidate for election to public office, through promise of appointment or promotion or threat of removal. Furthermore, any public officer who shall corruptly use or promise or threaten to use any such authority or influence, directly or indirectly, in order to coerce or persuade the vote or political action of any citizen, or the removal, discharge or promotion of any officer or public employe, shall be guilty of bribery or of an attempt at bribery and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment. Respectfully yours,

"SAMUEL H. ORDWAY,
"President."

Sections 25 and 27 of the Civil Service law referred to by President Ordway read:

"Section 25. Recommendations for appointment or promotion. No recommendation or question under the authority of this chapter shall relate to the political opinions or affiliations of any person whatever; and no appointment or selection to or removal from an office or employment within the scope of the rules established as aforesaid, shall be in any manner affected or influenced by such opinions or affiliations. No person in the civil service of the State or of any civil divisions or city thereof, is for that reason under any obligation to contribute to any political fund or to render any political service, and no person shall be removed or otherwise prejudiced for refusing so to do. No person in the said civil service shall discharge or promote or reduce, or in any manner change the official rank or compensation of any other person in said service, or promise or threaten so to do for giving or withholding or neglecting to make any contribution of money or service or any other valuable thing for any political purpose. No person in said service shall use his official authority or influence to coerce the political action of any person or body, or to interfere with any election.

"Section 27. Officers or candidates not to promise influence; 'public officer' and 'public employe' defined—Whoever, while holding any public office, or in nomination for or while seeking a nomination or appointment for any public office, shall corruptly use or promise to use, whether directly or indirectly, any official authority or influence, whether then possessed or merely anticipated, in the way of conferring upon any person, or in order to secure or aid any person in securing any office or public employment, or any nomination, confirmation, promotion or increase of salary, upon the consideration or condition that the vote or political influence or action of the last-named person, or any other, shall be given or used in behalf of any candidate, officer or party, or upon any other corrupt condition or consideration, shall be deemed guilty of bribery or an attempt at bribery. And whoever, being a public officer, or having or claiming to have, any authority or influence for or affecting the nomination, public employment, confirmation, promotion, removal or increase or decrease of salary of any public officer, shall corruptly use, or promise, or threaten to use, any such authority or influence, directly or indirectly, in order to coerce or persuade the vote or political action of any citizen, or the removal, discharge or promotion of any officer or public employe, or upon any other corrupt consideration, shall also be guilty of bribery or of an attempt at bribery. Every person found guilty of such bribery, or an attempt to commit the same, as aforesaid, shall, upon conviction thereof, be liable to be punished by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $3,000, or to be imprisoned not less than ten days nor more than two years, or to both said fine and said imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. The phrase 'public officer' shall be held to include all public officials in this State, whether paid directly or indirectly from the public treasury of the State or from that of any civil division thereof, or by fees or otherwise; and the phrase 'public employe' shall be held to include every person not an officer who is paid from any said treasury."

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 24.—Governor Smith said at midnight that he had not received the communication from Controller Craig. When informed of its content and the demand made by the Controller for prosecution of Mayor Hylan and upon himself for the Mayor's removal, the Governor said he would make no comment until the letter had reached him.

SOUND OUT CITY WORKERS.

Reaction to Mayor Hylan's attempt through his heads of departments to line up city employes to work for his renomination became evident yesterday. Tammany leaders opposed to the Mayor's renomination have been quietly but effectively, it was said, feeling out sentiment among these employes as to their desire to have the Mayor in office another four years. Most of the employes thus approached have expressed the opinion that so reported, that their choice lies elsewhere and that they will be for the Mayor only in the event that orders to this effect are issued from Fourteenth Street.

Most of these office-holding Democrats are "Al" Smith admirers and they have stated that their allegiance will be to the Governor in the event an unquestioned choice has to be made. At the present time the large majority of city employes who are filled with Tammany Hall are "on the fence," although some have reported that the heads of their departments, who were present at the recent meeting called by the Mayor and who endorsed his re-election in resolutions, have urged them to support the Mayor if he comes up as either an organization or an independent candidate. No indication has been expressed in any form either by the Governor or by Tammany Leader George W. Olvany, it was said, as to a Mayoralty choice and until such a choice has been made it is not likely that any Tammany leader, head of a city department or mere worker in the ranks will commit himself one way or the other.

Early in July, it was said at Tammany Hall yesterday, Leader Olvany will let it be known in no uncertain way just where he stands on the Mayoralty situation. He will make his decision after hearing reports from district leaders who will have sounded out sentiment in their districts. If there is an overwhelming sentiment in favor of a third term for the Mayor, Mr. Olvany, it is understood, will forego any private opinion he may have on the matter and not seek to interfere with what he will decide is the people's choice.

along with Mayor Bates of Salem, were filmed and photographed.

Then the ride to Swampscott started in the cool morning air with the temperature at 62 degrees.

Crowds lined the streets in the business section. In the residential streets they were gathered on their porches, and many late risers waved from the bedroom windows.

The President's face lighted up as the cars moved into the private road leading to Mr. Stearns's home and "White Court." Mrs. Stearns was on the lawn to welcome them. She grasped a white shawl from her shoulders and waved it to Mrs. Coolidge as the car moved to the doorway. Then the two embraced affectionately.

The Selectmen of Swampscott presented an official welcome to the President and gave him the key to the village.

Little time was lost in going to breakfast. The vacationists had risen at 6 o'clock and had had only fruit and coffee on the train. Mr. Stearns said that he knew that the President would have a good appetite. There were lamb chops, and Frank S. Bauer, candidate for Mayor, had supplied big, luscious strawberries fresh with the dew. Senator Butler Chairman of the Republican National Committee, was also a breakfast guest.

After cigars and a chat with Mr. Stearns and the National Chairman, the President called for Mrs. Coolidge and the entire party strolled over to "White Court," adjoining the Stearns home.

The Summer White House was not quite ready to receive the President and Mrs. Coolidge. Something had gone wrong with the hot water boiler, and a part of the building had been flooded. The domestic force also had not got things in readiness for the first two meals. It was not until 2 o'clock that the doors of the mansion were thrown open wide and Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge took possession.

"White Court" has something of the look of an executive mansion. It is Colonial in style, with thirteen high columns giving dignity and grace to the entrance. The rear, with porches extending its entire length, faces the sea, and steps lead down to a lawn to the sea. On one side is an old-fashioned garden and arbor, with thousands of roses and other flowers scenting the air.

"White Court" was opened to the public, or at least to the photographers and moving picture men and correspondents who had accompanied the President, at 4 o'clock. At that hour as the procession moved up the roadway, the President and Mrs. Coolidge came out of the door, Mrs. Coolidge leading Rob Roy, the White House collie. The President wore a gray suit and a Panama hat. Mrs. Coolidge wore an ensemble dress of blue, with purple trimmings. They were photographed and then the President called for an open car. The chauffeur misunderstood and brought the closed car to within 200 feet of the door. There the President and Mrs. Coolidge got in, and with Secret Service men walking on each side were again photographed. Then there was a brief reception, the President and Mrs. Coolidge receiving the invited visitors in the library of the house.

In a few minutes the President appeared on the sea side of the house. There on the esplanade he was again photographed in a number of poses. Then he graciously obliged the picture operators by walking down the steps accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and the dog. They posed at the sea wall.

Upon climbing back the President, who apparently wanted to get through the picture ordeal on the first day, said to the photographers:

"The only other recourse we have is the garden. Like a picture of that?"

They would, and half a dozen pictures were taken there. Poses of the President and Mrs. Coolidge in the arbor and with Mrs. Coolidge smelling the roses were made. One of the operators failed to get a satisfactory snap. He requested her to smell again. She did and said:

"They have no scent, but I'll smell."

Four little girls, Barbara and Frances Proctor and Rosanna and Eleanor Hilton, daughters of neighbors, joined the garden group and were photographed with Mrs. Coolidge.

The newspapermen had been summoned to "White Court" under the impression that they were to have a talk with the President. They found that it was "off" day and that the President wished the impression of the first day to go to the country in pictures and through the movies. When asked for a conference he said:

"Your days will come as usual on Tuesdays and Fridays."

But he did authorize his Secretary, Everett Sanders, to say:

"The President is very glad to get back to his adopted State and is greatly pleased with the large turnout and cordial reception."

Associate Justice Sanford of the United States Supreme Court and Mrs. Sanford were the first out-of-town visitors to the Summer White House. They called at 4:30 o'clock.

President and Mrs. Coolidge had dinner at their new home tonight, entertaining the Stearnses. They went to bed early. Both looked tired after a restless night on the train and their early rising.

The executive offices were opened early this morning. They are on the sixth floor of an office building in the heart of Lynn. Four direct telephone wires run from them to the executive office in Washington, besides a direct telephone line. The President therefore is in touch with Washington at all times. Most of the White House force is here. Rudolph Forster, executive clerk, who has directed affairs for many years while Presidents have been on their vacations, is in charge in Washington.

Swampscott is one of the earliest place names found in maps and Colonial records of New England. It is of Indian origin and is said to signify "at the rock which divides." The aborigine who first uttered the name was a good observer, for rocks seem to divide three parts of the village of over 9,000 persons, mostly business men of Boston and Lynn who make their permanent homes here. These rocks cut off portions of the village proper and create exclusive and beautiful points that tumble into the sea. One of these points is Little's Point, on which is "White Court." It is perched over the rocks, while the yard in the rear is covered with elm trees, forming a bower of perfect shade, which will be the scene of many garden parties this Summer.

The town lies in a spot of great natural beauty, about midway in the grant of land made by Charles I. in 1628 to Thomas Dexter, one of whom was John Humphrey, afterward first Deputy Governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. In the early days, with a shore line of three and one-half miles and well protected beaches, it had been a favorite spot for fishermen, and even today scores of fishing smacks ply their trade daily and furnish the residents with fresh fish. Up to within fifty years, the population was made up largely of fishermen and farmers, but with the advent of better means of transportation it gradually took on the character of a residential town and a Summer resort, always pleasantly cooled by the salt breezes.

Beautiful homes stand on the rocks at the shore, while others are on the hills in the background. Everywhere luxuriant flowers are blooming, with roses predominating. Many of the homes, including that of the Olde Humphrey House on Paradise Road, the original abode of the first Deputy Governor, are typical New England in architecture and in their virgin whiteness. But others—and they are the greatest in number—are pretentious homes of brick and stone. The ancient landmarks mingle with the modern homes, making a composite picture, pleasing and varied.

The historic roadway, the beach road, along which most of the Summer homes and the hotels are situated, leads along the shore line to Marblehead, Manchester, Magnolia and Gloucester. It is known as the Old Bay Shore Road, established in 1629, the oldest and most famous highway in the State, following the line of the Indian trail "the Path of Peace." It wends its way for more than twenty-five miles along the shore.

Salem, rich in history and literature, is four miles from the Summer White House. It contains numerous fine Colonial homes. The "Witch House" and Hawthorne's "House of Seven Gables" may still be seen.

All of the Summer resorts on the north shore are taking on new life with the arrival of Summer visitors, and the homes are opening a season that promises to be the liveliest since the war.

The establishment of the Summer White House and Summer embassies and legations on the north shore promises to make this the centre of fashionable and official life. The British Embassy will be opened at Manchester, while the German Embassy will be at Magnolia, and some members of the Italian Embassy will pass the Summer at Beverly Farms.

MACMILLAN TO TAKE NAVAL RADIO NORTH

Expedition Agrees to Use High Wave Equipment After Ultimatum by Wilbur.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—A misunderstanding over the kind of radio equipment the naval planes of the MacMillan expedition will use in the Arctic was adjusted tonight, following an ultimatum from Secretary Wilbur, threatening to withdraw naval participation in the venture.

Mr. Wilbur ordered the three naval planes to return immediately to the United States unless they are permitted to use naval high-wave radio receiving and sending apparatus in the North. He sent a message to Lieut. Commander Richard E. Byrd, who is now at Sydney, N. S., in command of the naval end of the expedition. Later Mr. Wilbur was advised by John Oliver LaGorce, Vice President of the National Geographic Society, under whose auspices the MacMillan expedition is taking the field, that Commander MacMillan will at once take on board the Peary at Sydney the standard naval radio apparatus, which was rushed to that point on a naval destroyer as soon as Admiral Eberle, Chief of Naval Operations, was advised that the MacMillan ships had neglected to take the naval radio set on board at Boston or Wiscasset.

Navy Points to Its Agreement.

When plans for the cooperation of the navy in the expedition were being considered some weeks ago, naval officials stated today, an agreement was reached for the expedition to take and use high and low wave radio equipment.

Under the agreement a navy standard radio set was shipped to the Boston Navy Yard in time to be placed aboard the Peary. Why the Peary sailed from Boston without the navy radio set has not been explained. After the departure of the Peary the navy radio set was sent to Wiscasset by a navy tug to be picked up by the expedition at that point. It was stated at the Navy Department today that, although the naval radio set had reached Wiscasset in time to be taken aboard, it was left behind. It was intimated that some one connected with the expedition had refused to allow the navy radio device to be taken aboard on the plea that there was not room available for it.

Secretary Wilbur and Admiral Eberle, as well as other officers of the department, consider it vital to the success of the aviators that the navy standard high wave set be taken along. Without this, it is contended, the planes will not be able to maintain communication while in the air, and it will be impossible for them to take the necessary radio compass bearing to enable them to determine their location and return to their bases in the event of being overtaken by storm in the wastes of the Arctic. Above all things the Navy Department insists that the naval planes, and their personnel, take every necessary precaution to be able to return to their base.

Text of Wilbur's Ultimatum.

Mr. Wilbur's message to Commander Byrd read:

For Lieutenant Commander R. E. Byrd:

U. S. S. Florida's spark set is being sent you at Sydney by destroyer Putnam. Planes will not make flight away from vicinity of base ship until spark set is installed to insure communications with planes and to give compass bearings to planes as originally agreed upon. Inform MacMillan of department's decision, which is for purpose of safeguarding planes and personnel. If these instructions cannot be complied with, arrange to land planes and personnel at Sydney for return to the United States. Acknowledge.

This afternoon the following reply came:

Sydney, Nova Scotia, June 24, 1925.
Secretary of the Navy, Washington:

Reference your 22. MacMillan not yet arrived. Will inform him department's decision upon arrival. Will await Putnam and insist upon taking Florida's spark set with expedition.

LIENT. COMMANDER R. E. BYRD.

Both Kinds To Be Used.

The Navy Department did not demand that the low wave radio apparatus be discarded in favor of naval high wave apparatus, but insisted from the start that high wave apparatus be taken, and it was understood that both high and low wave apparatus would be used.

Secretary Wilbur issued a statement, saying in part:

"Plans for communications by radio between planes and ships of the MacMillan expedition and between the base ships and the outside world contemplated the use of both short wave and standard radio equipment. These plans were formulated between representatives of the Navy Department and representatives of Donald B. MacMillan.

"Both types of equipment are considered of vital importance to the success of the expedition and the safety of the navy planes and personnel which man them. The short-wave radio equipment has superior qualities for long-range communication and communication in night zones. It was to have been the main, and practically the exclusive, reliance of the expedition for communicating between the expedition and this country.

"The standard navy equipment was to be used for communicating between the planes in the air and the base ships. It was also to be used for obtaining radio compass bearings of the planes from he ships and thereby enabling a constant check on the movements of planes while flying over the Arctic basin, so that they would be enabled to return to the base. It is not desired to substitute the navy set for the short-wave set. Both are essential to success of the expedition.

"It was contemplated that the planes would always operate in pairs. One plane would carry standard navy equipment and would be able to communicate with base ships and obtain radio compass bearings from the base ships while in flight. The other plane would be equipped with the high frequency short wave equipment.

"The latter plane would be at a disadvantage in flight because the ignition noises from the engine of the plane operate as a serious handicap in the short wave equipment. If the planes landed, however, the short wave equipment would be the main reliance because the ignition noises would not exist and because the set draws its power from batteries.

"The standard navy equipment is at a disadvantage when the plane is on the surface. Its power is derived from a wind driven generator which requires that the plane be in flight in order to attain its maximum efficiency.

La Gorce Blames Oversight.

Mr. La Gorce issued this statement:

"Due to the fact that there are two ships, the Peary and the Bowdoin, carrying the equipment and personnel of the expedition and that the ships were proceeding to Sydney, N. S., independently, the instructions of the Navy Department that standard navy radio equipment must also be installed on the three amphibian navy planes, as well as the short wave sets, the navy equipment removed from the old battleship Florida for the purposes of the expedition were not loaded on board at Wiscasset. The oversight was discovered after the two ships had departed last Saturday, June 20, whereupon the Navy Department sent the destroyer 'Putnam' to the expedition's base at Wiscasset, took the equipment on board and proceeded to Sydney, N. S., the next port of call and where the Peary and the Bowdoin will unite."

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., June 24.—Everett Sanders, Secretary to the President, announced tonight that President Coolidge was not giving any thought to Secretary Wilbur and Commander MacMillan. The President believes, Mr. Sanders said, that Secretary Wilbur is proceeding right and making every effort to protect the lives of navy men cooperating with the explorer.

Equipment Reaches Sydney.

SYDNEY, N. S., June 24 (AP).—The destroyer Putnam arrived tonight with the Navy Department wireless equipment for the Macmillan Arctic expedition now in port.

Commander MacMillan, who arrived here today on the Bowdoin, issued a statement tonight announcing that the instructions of the Navy Department in regard to the installation of wireless equipment would be carried out on the Arctic expedition, the steamer Bowdoin and the schooner Peary will be equipped with radio apparatus of both long and short wave lengths to insure satisfactory communication with the three naval planes.

Upon receipt of Secretary Wilbur's ultimatum, Commander MacMillan gave out the following statement:

"Commander MacMillan will place aboard the Peary all apparatus required, and Dr. Grosvenor, President of the National Geographic Society, under whose auspices the expedition is to sail, is anxious to insure the safety of the navy fliers as well as the success of the expedition.

"Both Commander MacMillan and Dr. Grosvenor wish to meet every requirement of the Navy Department and so far as the installation of navy wireless is concerned it will be carried out fully."

A further statement from Commander MacMillan was given out tonight as follows:

"Both the radio apparatus on the Bowdoin and the Peary have been doing excellent work. Every message and news story has been promptly and efficiently handled by Radio Operator Reinartz and the Peary's operator, McGee, even in daylight.

"At no time when we desired have we been out of communication. The Bowdoin has not only been in communication with Eastern stations but also as far distant as 5VL, Georgewest, Texas, and 5AOM, Mobile, Ala."

Amundsen on Way to Oslo.

LONDON, June 24 (AP).—An Oslo dispatch to The Morning Post says that Captain Roald Amundsen left Spitzbergen today aboard a collier with the N-25 and equipment. He is expected to reach Oslo July 1. Amundsen will publish in the Fall a book about the expedition.

NEW ARMY IN HONDURAS.

But It Is Unknown Which Side War Minister's Force Favors.

MANAGUA, June 24 (AP).—Reports from Honduras say that General Vicente Tosta, Minister of War and Marine of Honduras, has assembled an army at Intibuca, but that it is not known whether he intends attacking or aiding the revolutionists in his country.

Nicaragua has declared martial law in her provinces which border Honduras because of the revolutionary movements in the latter country.

Intibuca is a town of 20,000 population in the southern part of Honduras, eighty miles from Tegucigalpa, the capital.

Two distinct anti-Government movements have been under way in Honduras since April, one in the north and the other in the south. The American cruiser Denver, at the request of the Honduran Government, landed 165 officers and men at La Ceiba, Honduras, on April 21 to protect Americans and other foreigners. This force was withdrawn within a few days. Minor disturbances in Honduras have been reported since that time, but the Government has asserted that it had the situation in hand.

SUBWAY HAS TWO TIE-UPS.

Brake Trouble and Emergency Cord Interference Delay Service.

Two blocks on the Interborough subway delayed passengers yesterday morning. The first interruption came at 7 o'clock when an express bound for Brooklyn developed brake trouble just after leaving the Bowling Green station. The motorman would not risk stalling in the tunnel. He backed up to the station, where the passengers got off, and then switched to a spare track. Service to Brooklyn was halted for nearly half an hour.

Service in the same subway was again halted for twenty minutes in the rush period when an emergency cord on a southbound express was pulled by a passenger as the train was leaving the Fourteenth Street Station. Many passengers were jarred by the sudden stop. The delay affected service as far north as Ninety-sixth Street, according to Interborough reports.

Westchester Bus Co. Asks 2 Lines.

The Westchester Bus Company, of which A. E. Hutt, formerly of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company, is manager, filed with the Mount Vernon Common Council yesterday an application for permits to operate two more bus lines in Mount Vernon. No action was taken. The proposed lines include one from the Bronx River and Mount Vernon Avenue to Beachwood and Sparks Avenue, in Pelham. The other would begin at Lincoln Avenue and Vista Place, near the subway, and extend to Warwick Avenue and Third Street.

To Try for Air Speed Record.

Bert Acosta, former army flier, will try for a speed record Saturday, in a new Fokker airplane, which has just been assembled at the flying meet at Naugatuck Field, Bethany, Conn. The meet, in which National Guard units from Massachusetts, New York and Connecticut have been invited to take part, is being held under the auspices of the Colonial Airways, Inc.

Recuperates and Returns to Wilds.

When he reached civilization he appeared to be dying. Physicians gave him up. At last, however, his strength began to come back slowly. He went to Juan Fernandez Island (Robinson Crusoe's) to recuperate. When he thought his strength was back he plunged once more into his work in the mountains of Peru and gathered another important collection. He worked his way across the continent to Rio de Janeiro and sailed to New York.

Reaching this country in April, 1923, he seemed to be in good health, but he soon collapsed. After several weeks in the Pennsylvania Hospital he went to West Virginia, where he lived a "back-to-nature" life, remaining outdoors with a single garment in the hope that sun and air might overcome the increasing anemia and exhaustion resulting from years of fever and hardship. And he did improve. He even went back to work, but collapsed again.

Blood transfusion became necessary. A cousin, Homer Farabee, volunteered. Near transfusion became necessary, and Homer Farabee gave his blood again and again. Dr. Farabee improved and then relapsed. Blood for further transfusions was furnished by Raymond Owens, Porter Day and others. On May 6 last Dr. Farabee underwent his thirty-second blood transfusion. On that occasion Porter Day gave his blood to the scientist for the seventh time.

ASKS SEVERE LAWS ON VIOLENT CRIME

WANTS ANTI-SEDITION ACT

Resolutions Oppose Federal Plan for Deep Water Canal Across This State.

The New York Board of Trade and Transportation adopted a resolution yesterday proposing to make a life sentence mandatory in all convictions for crime in which dangerous weapons are used. A meeting was held in the board's office, 41 Park Row. At the same time an appeal was made to Governor Smith and the Legislature to amend the criminal law of the State in order to provide for such action.

"Not only does crime in general exist," the resolution declares, "but more specifically and of paramount interest to the merchant, crimes of violence are being committed with such regularity and utter disregard for law and order that the business man may well be concerned about his own safety and the lives of his employes and associates.

"Men are being shot down in the streets. Bandits are invading business establishments, looting them and, if it strikes their fancy, maiming or killing any of those present whom they may imagine show signs of resistance. Armored cars, manned by crews with heavy pistols in open holsters, are necessary for the transfer of funds in any considerable amount."

Figures placed before the board in connection with the crime situation in New York show that from 1913 to 1923 most crimes in Manhattan have decreased, with the outstanding exception of homicides, which have increased approximately 67 per cent. In 1913 there were 67 homicides and 47 convictions, or 70 per cent. In 1923, according to the board's figures, there were 112 homicides and 50 convictions, a record of 44 per cent.

Hits Leniency to Criminal.

"In some ways the criminal law provides for more lenient methods of prosecution than some classes of crime have a right to expect," the board's report on crime declared. "For instance, a bandit steps into a business establishment. He possibly meets with opposition, kills the proprietor, hops into a waiting car and is lost to sight. The law immediately throws a cloak around him. He must be apprehended, positively identified, indicted and then tried. He must be considered absolutely innocent of this particular crime until proved guilty beyond a reasonable doubt to the satisfaction of the jury. If it is a particularly outrageous crime, some elements of the press feature it on the front page, with photos of the relatives in poses intended to create an atmosphere of sympathy. There is a tendency to make something of a celebrity of the defendant. * * * It would seem that it was about time for public opinion in this community to become impressed with the proposition that these hold-ups and homicides are an outrage and should be stopped.

"The perpetrators of hold-ups and murders," the report concludes, "should be emphatically proclaimed to be just what they are, undesirable citizens." When they are found guilty "the stamp of public condemnation should be placed upon the guilty in no unmistakable manner, and they should be removed from society and confined in such a way as to assure the community that there will be no further trouble from the particular character there convicted."

A resolution was also adopted, after considerable discussion, strongly opposing the proposal of the Port of New York Authority that its property be exempted from State and municipal taxation. Opposition was based on the ground that much of the Port Authority's property was held for revenue-producing purposes. "The revolutionary and unjust character of this proposal to exempt all such property while taxing like property held by private enterprises is manifest," the resolution declared. "Furthermore, the constitutional principle of taxation is that it shall be levied upon all properties under similar conditions without discrimination."

Resolutions were adopted favoring the registration of aliens and the passage of an anti-sedition law, favoring the Wadsworth-Williams bill amending the Federal Trade Commission act, and commending a plan to finance sewerage and sewage disposal on the basis of metered water supply.

Federal Canal Opposed.

A long report on the question of a Federal deep-water canal from the Great Lakes to the Hudson was read to the board. It was prepared in response to preliminary inquiries by a board of army engineers, which has been investigating the practicability of a Government-owned waterway across New York State. The committee opposed the plan, inasmuch as both routes which have been proposed have already been preempted by the New York State Barge Canal. One route was to start from Oswego, cross to the vicinity of Oneida Lake and then go down the Mohawk Valley to Schenectady and Norman's Kill; the other was to utilize the St. Lawrence to Lake St. Francis, then go by canal through Canada and Northern New York State to the northern end of Lake Champlain and end at the Hudson near Troy.

For New York to turn over any of its Barge Canal property to the Federal Government in the hope of obtaining a deeper waterway would be "most blind and most unwise," the board's special committee declared. "The future commerce and destiny of New York is in her own hands and under her own control so long as she insists upon the maintenance and efficient navigation of the Barge Canal. But as soon as she consents to the construction of the deeper waterway by Congress and to the operation and navigation of the Barge Canal for the purpose of constructing that deeper waterway, at that moment New York will have entrusted her future commerce and destiny to others who are antagonistic to New York. For her own future well-being and safety New York can never consistently or wisely permit any such interruption to the operation of the Barge Canal as would be necessary to permit the construction of the deeper waterway."

Named on Jersey Pharmacy Board.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24 (P).—Governor Silzer has appointed Charles J. McCloskey, Jersey City druggist, as a member of the State Board of Pharmacy, succeeding Harry E. Bischoff of Union City, whose term expired May 31. Bischoff is Vice President of the board. McCloskey will serve until the Legislature meets next January, when a permanent appointment will be made to the five-year term. The salary of the position is $10 a day for each day actually engaged in the business of the board.

Wyoming Mountain Topples Into River, Taking Cattle, Buildings and Trees in Path

CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 24 (P).—A mountain of rocks, moving at an incredible speed, toppled into the Gros Ventre River in the heart of the Teton Mountains in Western Wyoming yesterday, according to a message received here tonight. A section of the Teton national forest was smashed to splinters, several herds of cattle were swept away and many buildings lost, the advices said.

The river has been dammed by the great heap of earth and rock and a great lake is forming, according to the message. In a short time, according to the dispatch, it will create a lake seven miles long and a mile wide and probably hundreds of feet deep because of sharp declivities on either side of the stream at that point.

Shortly after the strange occurrence, according to the message, which was from J. R. Jones, local manager of a telephone company at Jackson, Wyo., the river was 200 feet deep at the point just above the disintegrated mountain.

Jones, according to the dispatch, was informed of the phenomenon by riders in that vicinity, who raced to Jackson with the news.

One horseman who narrowly escaped injury from flying debris when the mountain collapsed declared that the huge natural dam resulting therefrom caused the swift, shallow stream to fill to the 200 foot depth in a period of five minutes, according to the report.

He escaped by springing astride his horse and galloping up a mountainside to safety. At that time the great reservoir caused by the cave-in was partly filled with water, he said.

Several automobile tourists were held up by the slide, but were not on the dangerous side of the mountain. No injury or loss of life was reported.

HOLDS OFF PADLOCK FOR DINTY MOORE

Federal Judge Reserves Decision, Saying There Is Doubt as to Some Violations.

FOUR PLACES ARE CLOSED

Telephone Inquiry Brings Contradiction of Story About a New Baby, and a Trial Is Ordered.

In padlocking four places for violations of the Volstead act yesterday, Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow reserved decision in the case of the United States vs. Moore, 216 West Forty-sixth Street. George Donnellan, attorney for the defendant, explained to the Court that the defendant was "a restaurant made famous in cartoons as Dinty Moore's." He asked that since the place was doing a large restaurant business the Court require a bond from the defendant and place the place on probation. Mr. Donellan asserted that there had been no violations in the restaurant since last November.

The Government stated, however, that Inspector Zanes's confidential squad had purchased liquor in two-ounce bottles on the premises on June 12, 1925, and Police Sergeant Bayer testified that in April he had observed the sale of liquor in the restaurant. The Government also asserted that Prohibition Agents Warner and Hall had seized ten half-barrels of beer there on Jan. 5, 1924, and that other seizures of ale had been made there by Policemen Walsh and Hushion in February, 1924.

Judge Winslow said that there was some doubt whether the February violation had taken place in 218 West Forty-sixth Street or 216 West Forty-sixth Street, and held that since there had been only one violation proved by the Government in January, 1924, he would reserve decision.

The four places padlocked by Judge Winslow included Kelly's Restaurant, 147 West Thirty-third Street, consent decree, three months; Big Six Printers' Club, Inc., 147 West Fortieth Street, consent decree, three months; Singer's Restaurant, 2,195 Fifth Avenue, one year; Aronica's grocery store, 1,875 Second Avenue, six months.

In the case of Singer's Policeman Anker testified that he had seen three women drinking at a bar, and that he had seized two five-gallon cans of whisky and a two-gallon can of gin. The liquor was served through a panel in the wall. Policeman Bingham testified that he found a speakeasy in operation at Aronica's grocery store.

When the case against Randazzo, a barber shop at Railroad Street, Pawling, N. Y., was called, counsel asked for an adjournment on the ground that a new baby had arrived in the defendant's home. Telephone inquiries made by direction of the Court brought information that the youngest baby was two years old. Judge Winslow said he would have the case tried on July 1, when he would take under consideration the attempt to deceive the Court.

The plan of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to redistrict the prohibition zones so they would coincide with the areas of judicial districts was praised by both Federal prosecutor and Prohibition chief here yesterday. United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner said:

"It is sensible and ought to be effective. I don't think there could be a better scheme than that outlined."

Divisional Prohibition Enforcement Chief Romaine Q. Merrick said:

"It is all right. It will be a heavy responsibility on the man in charge. Who that is going to be I don't know."

Chief Merrick said that the rearrangement of districts would greatly reduce the area embraced in his present jurisdiction, but he thought it would include a larger population. He believed that the plan "should be a great deal more effective" than the old method of prohibition enforcement, because it would result in greater cooperation between the United States attorneys and the prohibition authorities. Mr. Merrick said he had no idea what would happen to him in the rearrangement of districts. He suggested that he might be asked to get out. He pointed out, however, that he and some of his associates had been engaged in work against bootleggers and moonshiners for twenty-five years and had seen many changes.

OPPOSITION RISES TO NEW DRY PLAN

CONGRESS INQUIRY LIKELY

Andrews Looks Over Field for New Men to Join in Intensified Warfare.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24.—Opposing the new plan of organization of the prohibition forces of the Government, which abolishes State lines and creates twenty-two regional areas of operation patterned after the judicial districts, Senator Dale of Vermont declared today if the change was put into effect as announced by Secretary Mellon that it would inevitably break down enforcement of the "dry" laws by the States, and practically eliminate cooperation between the States and Federal Government in their endeavor to enforce respect for the joint enactments. He expressed the opinion that the new organization would weaken rather than strengthen prohibition enforcement.

Senator Dale pointed out that the Mellon order abolishing State Directors would result in turning prohibition enforcement over to the Federal Government with the States taking a diminishing part as time goes on. Mr. Dale further pointed out that as the Eighteenth Amendment gives the States concurrent jurisdiction, most of the States had passed laws supplementing the Volstead act, and that in many instances the States had done a large share of patrol work to prevent rum smuggling. He expressed himself as skeptical of anything being done that would interfere with the cooperative endeavors of the States and the Federal Government in enforcing the "dry" laws, and he added that in his opinion the Mellon plan was structurally defective for the reasons stated.

"In my judgment," said Senator Dale, "the Federal authorities have not really given serious consideration to the question of how the State officials will feel about the plan. I believe they will object to the idea of turning enforcement over largely to the Federal power and will show their resentment by refusing to cooperate in enforcement."

Statements made by Senator Dale and others indicate the probability that the Mellon order will be made the subject of searching inquiry when Congress reassembles in December.

Meantime the new plan of prohibition will be put into effect in August. While Treasury officials decline to comment themselves, they indicate that one of the effects of the new order will be to take the prohibition service out of politics.

Just what effect the changed state of affairs in the prohibition unit will have on the future of Commissioner Roy A. Haynes is not definitely known. Under the plan the unit loses much of its administrative power and authority is diffused among the field officers. For all practical purposes Commissioner Haynes's duties in the future will be limited to those of a supervisor in the field.

Assistant Secretary Andrews of the Treasury denied today that there would be a general discharge of all prohibition agents now on the payroll of the Government. He said that efficient men would be retained, but that in any event it would take several months to get the new plan in good working order.

GREENE QUITS CHARITY BODY

Retires From United Fund After 15 Years as Secretary.

Frederick D. Greene, general secretary of the United Hospital Fund for the last fifteen years, has retired, it was announced yesterday in the Fund's news bulletin. In this period the old Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association became the United Hospital Fund. There are fifty-six member hospitals to which the Fund contributed $500,000 last year.

In Manhattan and the Bronx general hospitals received $210,006.09; hospitals for women and children, $61,535.33; special hospitals, $57,336.10, and chronic and convalescent, $78,068.53. The nine hospitals in Brooklyn were alloted $63,974.02.

ROB STORE; LEAVE CLERK $5

Bandits Pose as Inspectors When Girls Ask for Manager.

Two hold-up men got $51 from the Andrew Davey grocery store at 3,339 Third Avenue, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon. Posing as customers they gave the manager, Michael O'Brien, an order and when he turned to fill it both drew revolvers, forced O'Brien into a rear room, where they tied his arms and went through his pockets. They took $21 from his wallet, from which one of the bandits separated a five-dollar bill, replaced it in the wallet and said, "I guess we'll leave you something." They missed a ten-dollar bill in another compartment of the wallet.

While they were looting the till two girls entered and, one asked where the manager was.

"He's in the back, he'll be out in a minute," answered one of the thieves and then as they went out he called to the manager, "We'll come back to inspect the store, Mac, see you later."

A moment later the girls heard O'Brien kicking at the door and released him.

BARONESS GETS DIVORCE.

Copyright, 1925, by The Chicago Tribune.

PARIS, June 24.—The former Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt has obtained a divorce from Baron Robin Frederic Erlanger. She has obtained the Court's permission to discard the title of Baroness and become Mrs. Hewitt again.

The decree was obtained on the ground of non-support and misconduct.

Baron Robin Erlanger was the fourth husband of the widow of Peter Cooper Hewitt, who was Miss Marion Andrews, member of a well-known Virginia family. She married the Baron in 1922. Her efforts to obtain a share in the Hewitt estate have been the cause of much litigation.

man on the sidewalk and attracting needless suspicion to themselves in their haste.

The two men did not wait, but they were too helpless to act quickly. Sidney shouted loudly, but he was not in a position to be heard from the sidewalk, and in any case ordinary shouts would have been drowned by the piano in the music store next door on the north. This piano is practically in the show window and for advertising purposes the competent fingers of a tall young woman with both skill and punch are kept going almost incessantly. At the time of the robbery she happened to be playing "Alabamy Bound" and playing it for the benefit of all Times Square. So the shouting of Sidney went for nought.

The clerk worked himself up into a sitting posture and then pressed one of the brass studs of the burglar alarm which dot the walls and the floors. They are even in the washroom. This started the gongs going. A young woman next door on the south in Janette's Gaiety Chapeau Shop was the first to hear it. She ran outside and got two men interested—J. D. Oddie of 200 Spring and Max Mogull of 790 Elsmere Street, the Bronx. They ran in and released the two men. Policeman Mitchel of the West Forty-seventh Street station was the first of many policemen to arrive. The bandits by that time had vanished.

Marcus Feldman, the proprietor, soon arrived and found fault with the clerk and porter for not touching one of the gongs.

"All you had to do was touch one," he said.

"How could we touch it in there when we was all bound up?" demanded the porter.

"You could have touched it with your nose. That would have given the alarm."

"I don't touch no gongs with my nose when a man has a gun on me," said the porter. "You wouldn't a done it if you'd been here your own self."

Feldman said that his losses amounted to $200,000 and that he was covered by insurance of $150,000. This is carried by the Maryland Insurance Company, which sent around auditors to go over the jeweler's books, and former Police Captain Richard M. McKenna of Casassa & McKenna to investigate the case. After questioning the witnesses yesterday Captain McKenna said it was too early to pass an opinion.

Detectives James Fitzpatrick and Robert Farrell took the clerk and porter to Police Headquarters, where the porter picked out a man in the Rogues' Gallery as one of the two bandits.

Charles Colan of the Hotel American told the police he was on his way to mail a letter when a tall young man wearing a straw hat dashed out of the door of the Feldman store, crashing into him and nearly knocking him down. he letter fell to the sidewalk, he said, nd he stooped to pick it up and turned ust in time to see the running man disppear west on Forty-sixth Street.

Arthur Kaunher, 18 years old, of 1,233 t. Nicholas Avenue, said he saw a man un out of the store carrying a sack and isappear around the corner of Forty-fth Street.

FAINTS AND LOSES $750.

Police Believe Spectators Took Plant Cashier's Receipts.

Harold Murphy of 147-18 Jamaica Avenue, Jamaica, cashier for the Jamaica plant of the New York & Queens Electric Light Company, is in Mary Immaculate Hospital, Jamaica, suffering from a fractured skull, while $750 of the money entrusted to his care is mysteriously missing.

Shortly before 6 o'clock yesterday morning collectors for the company turned over to him $1,800. As Murphy was going from the cashier's cage on a short errand inside the building, with the money in his possession, he became faint and fell to the floor unconscious, striking his head a heavy blow. The money was scattered along the corridor floor and when a check up was made, $750 was missing. Detective Sabatino of the Jamaica precinct is investigating. The money is believed to have been picked up by spectators.

Murphy's weakness is said to have been caused by an operation for an abscess which he underwent Tuesday.

POLICE DOGS THWART HOLD-UP; 3 ARRESTS

Two Repel Five Armed Bandits in Restaurant, Who Fire at Them but Miss.

Three armed men held up Louis Mistele, a restaurant keeper at 340 Pleasant Avenue, in Harlem, and four customers last midnight while another armed man stood guard at the door and a fifth man waited at the wheel of an automobile.

The three men started behind the counter toward the cash register, but suddenly they stopped as two German police dogs, Fannie and Nellie, owned by Mistele rose from the floor behind the counter and sprang at them. One of the men fired at the dogs, but the shots missed, and the man at the door shouted a warning to his companions to leave.

The bandits, pursued by the dogs, ran to the automobile and rode away just as Patrolman Louis Ratheyn drove up in a police automobile. They fired at him, but missed again, and he followed them, firing his pistol as they turned west into 121st Street.

Patrolman Daniel Graham, who heard the shots, commandeered a roadster at Madison Avenue and 120th Street and joined in the chase as the car turned north into Lenox Avenue, firing all the way until Patrolman John Kranz appeared at Lenox Avenue and 121st Street with a pistol and headed off the car with the five men in it.

Two of the men got away, but the three policemen arrested three, two of whom were wounded and were taken to Harlem Hospital. The third man, said to be the driver of the car, who said he was Steve Nicinik, 25 years old, of 233 East 123d Street, was locked up, and the police went to look for the others.

ELEVATED STATION ROBBED

Two Men Force Agent to Sell Tickets While They Steal $224.

While one robber stood menacingly in front of the ticket booth on the uptown elevated station at Grand and Allen Streets last night, Harry Volinsky, the agent, told the police, another, who had threatened him through a small hole in a rear door with a pistol, robbed the safe of $224, the day's receipts. Volinsky added that the robbers had compelled him to continue the sale of tickets while the hold-up was in progress.

Shortly before 9 P. M., he said, there was a knock on the door. When he looked toward the hole, he saw the muzzle of a pistol trained on him. A voice warned him that if he didn't open the door he would be shot. He threw open the door and a well-dressed young man came in, and pressed a pistol against his body. Then he reached into the safe and took the money. The robbers then hurried down the stairs to the street, as Volinsky, who lives at 228 Henry Street, continued to sell more tickets.

Then he called up the night office of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and reported the robbery. He gave descriptions of both men.

Insurance Companies Adopt New Jewelers' Policy as First Move.

Officials representing the leading insurance companies underwriting jewelers' risks agreed yesterday at a conference upon a new form of jeweler's all risk floater policy to be known as the "American form."

In connection with the underwriting of the new policy, it was said, the companies planned to run down and prosecute vigorously, thieves, hold-up men and perpetrators of fraud incidental to the property of the insured.

of all of them. It will supplement instead of duplicating their organization. It will be more flexible than the Anti-Saloon League. While working openly in some respects, in others it will be more secret than any incorporated organization can be.

"The new movement seeks not to eliminate nor even to injure, but to save and utilize the Anti-Saloon League for certain useful work which it can still do if it will fight its enemies and stand by its friends, and which the American P. P. P. P. Alliance has no desire to undertake and is not equipped to do. It will profit by the experience and avoid the weaknesses of the Anti-Saloon League, will use whatever is fundamental in the league's philosophy and employ whatever is of permanent and general value in the league's methods, while revising and adapting them to meet new conditions. It will take up the dry question where the league has dropped it and will deal with some questions and say and do some things the league cannot and would not dare say and do. It aims to arouse, educate and serve on a deeper, broader issue to which prohibition, though incidental, holds a key, the same dry Protestant churches, pastors and people who have looked to the Anti-Saloon League for leadership on the dry question.

"Regularly, beginning with the Fall, when the active work of laying the foundation will start, the plans, policies, purposes and special utterances of the 'American Prohibition Protestant Patriotic Protective Alliance' will find expression through The Fellowship Forum, published in Washington.

"This publication, which has grown 'from an idea to a million in four years,' is already the world's greatest Protestant inter-fraternal newspaper, and probably has more circulation than any dozen to fifteen of the leading journals of as many of the largest Protestant denominations. It prints the news of all the leading Protestant fraternal orders, but is not owned or officially controlled by any of them. Its control is vested in individuals all of whom are thirty-third degree Masons.

"The outstanding feature of the American P. P. P. P. Alliance is that it has been so carefully worked out that it involves nothing that can possibly be distorted into an issue of creed, race or color. None of the objections which are urged against other Protestant patriotic movements can possibly apply to this. It does not attack any church or religion.

"It assumes a sane, sound position which is incapable of successful attack by raising simply an issue of fact, viz., whether the purpose or activity, general or special, of any individual, group or organization, or of any person or persons, official or not, in fact, representing or claiming to represent, any organization, ecclesiastical or otherwise, is in fact anti-Protestant. If it is, then the right of Protestants to defend themselves, their lawful and legitimate activity and their principles and their institutions against injury is incontrovertible."

VEILED PROPHETS HAIL NEW LEADERS

Hamilton, Ont., Man Elected Grand Venerable Prophet in the Only Contest.

OTHER OFFICERS MOVE UP

Coolidge's Letter, Brought by Airplane, Read to Delegates, Who Pledge Loyalty.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 24.—John P. Mackay of Hindoo Koosh Grotto, Hamilton, Ontario, was elected Grand Venerable Prophet of the Supreme Council, Mystic Order Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, today, at the thirty-sixth Supreme Council session, on the Steel Pier here. Thirty thousand members of the order, representing 164 grottoes in the United States and Canada, are here for the meeting.

The office of Grand Venerable Prophet is regarded as the stepping stone to that of Grand Monarch, and was the only one for which there was a contest, the other officers automatically moving up one post.

Besides Mr. McKay, there were two other contestants for the office of Grand Venerable Prophet, Dr. Henry E. Christenbery of Amra Grotto, Knoxville, Tenn., and Oliver Wald of Sahara Grotto, Indianapolis, who later withdrew.

The other officers of the Supreme Council, as they stand now for the coming year, are George Treadwell, Sha Limar Grotto, New Orleans, Grand Monarch; Fred P. Walther, Al Sirat Grotto, Cleveland, Deputy Grand Monarch; George J. Brenner, Merlin Grotto, Saginaw, Mich., Grand Chief Justice; Charles M. Colton, Lalla Rookh Grotto, Rochester, Grand Treasurer; George E. Hatch, Lalla Rookh Grotto, Rochester, Grand Secretary; John A. Derthick, Long-I Grotto, Brooklyn, Grand Master of Ceremonies; Edward W. Libbey, Kalipolis Grotto, Washington, Grand Keeper of Archives; Edwin H. Dyer, Omar Grotto, Boston, Grand Orator; Charles E. Minsinger, Gul-Reazee Grotto, Portland, Ore., Grand Captain of Guard; Lamar Field, Hinda Grotto, Montgomery, Ala., Grand Standard Bearer; Joseph B. Siebes, Yusef khan Grotto, Akron, Ohio, Grand Marshal; Miles S. Gregory, Jinnistan Grotto, Los Angeles, Grand Alchemist; Clinton G. Nichols, Syria Grotto, Hartford, Conn., Grand Steward.

President Coolidge sent a personal message of greeting to the Supreme Council yesterday by Representative Ralph Updike, who came from the capital in an airplane.

The message was addressed to Grand Monarch Ittner, and was read during today's session. The President wrote:

"My dear Mr. Ittner:

"May I impose upon you to request that at the opening of the Supreme Council session a few days hence, you will express my greetings to the great gathering of the Veiled Prophets who will be, at that time, assembled. I hope their conclave may be an occasion of interest and benefit to all of them individually and may inure to the advantages of their great order.

"Most Sincerely,

"Calvin Coolidge."

In reply to the message, Grand Monarch Ittner asked Representative Updike to convey to the President an expression of the "devout loyalty of the order to the United States, the principles which it represents, the flag and the public schools."

The Supreme Council authorized the appropriation of $10,000 at the rate of $2,000 a year for a memorial to George Washington at Alexandria, Va. The memorial, it was said, will cost several million dollars and is being erected by the Masons of the country to Washington, who was a Masonic leader.

Memorial exercises were held for the the late Sidney D. Smith of Hamilton, N. Y., one of the founders of the order, who was Secretary of the Supreme Council for thirty-four years, and who last year was made Secretary Emeritus.

The new Deputy Grand Monarch, Judge Fred P. Walther of the Court of Common Pleas, Cleveland, today visited the court of Recorder Joseph Corlo, who invited Judge Walther to preside. Several persons were arraigned on minor charges. Judge Walther was lenient, imposing only fines and then placing the defendants on probation, with the fine suspended.

In the band competition this afternoon first prize was won by Syria Grotto of Hartford, with Al Sirat, Cleveland, second, and Hindoo-Koosh of Hamilton, Ontario, third.

TWO OF THE HARRIMANS SEEK PARIS DIVORCES

Mrs. Lillie Harriman Havemeyer and Mrs. Ethel Harriman Russell File Petitions.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 24.—Mrs. Henry Potter Russell, the former Ethel M. B. Harriman, today filed a petition for a divorce in the Seine Tribunal. Pending the final court decision, she got the guardianship of the children. Her address here is 12 Rue Jean Goujon.

Mrs. Frederick C. Havemeyer, the former Lillie Harriman, of 38 Avenue Gabriel, has filed a petition in a Paris court against her husband.

It was reported from Paris in April that Mrs. Havemeyer would soon start action for a divorce, but the petition of Mrs. Russell will surprise friends of the Harrimans in this city. Mrs. Russell went to Paris early in the Spring to join Mrs. Vincent Astor, an intimate friend for many years, who recently returned from Europe.

Mrs. Havemeyer, whose first husband was the late William R. Travers, from whom she was divorced, is a daughter of Oliver Harriman and a sister of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Stephen H. Olin. She was married to Mr. Havemeyer, who was a Catholic, by the Rev. Father Michael C. O'Farrell of Holy Innocents Church in West Thirty-seventh Street. She was a Presbyterian. The fact that she was divorced was not in question, because of the death of her husband.

Mr. Havemeyer is the son of Henry O. Havemeyer. He was graduated from Yale in 1900 and is a member of the Knickerbocker, Racquet and Tennis and other clubs here. His home is at 34 East Thirty-seventh Street.

Mrs. Russell, then Miss Ethel Harriman, daughter of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, and Mrs. Astor sailed in June, 1917, to serve overseas as nurses with the American expeditionary force. She was a débutante of the season before, and was presented first at Newport, then here and at Washington. It was in France that she and Mr. Russell, who was serving as a Lieutenant, became engaged. Their engagement was announced late the following January and they were married within a few days.

Mr. Russell, who is the son of Mrs. Charles Howland Russell of 50 West Eleventh Street, is a grandson of the late Bishop Potter. He was graduated from Harvard in 1915 and is a member of the Knickerbocker and other clubs. His home is at 45 East Sixty-third Street. He is a brother of Miss Geraldine E. Russell and Charles H. Russell.

PERU IN NEW NOTE AGAIN SCORES CHILE

NAMES OFFICIAL DELEGATE

Demands for a Fair Plebiscite in Tacna-Arica Dispute Are Renewed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—In a new note to President Coolidge, as arbiter in the Tacna-Arica dispute, the Peruvian Government has reiterated some of its previous allegations of "intimidation" on the part of Chile and renews Peru's demands for a fair and equitable plebiscite, but announces its intention to participate in the plebiscite.

After announcing that the Government of Peru considers the petitions previously presented do not involve an amendment of the Coolidge arbitral award, and declaring it does not concur with the arbitrator "when he asserts that the fundamental petitions in its appeal are beyond the powers of the arbitrator," the note asserts that the aim of the Peruvian presentation "is to establish in the territory subject to the plebiscite a situation of at least relative equity, inasmuch as absolute justice would be an impossibility after the acts of intimidation and terrorism of which the Peruvians have been the victims and which have created a situation sui generis in the Provinces, and from which in all fairness the only way out would have been the return of the Provinces to the rightful owner."

"Such a situation of equity," the note continues, "is all that Peru asks for and it is to be regretted that the honorable arbitrator, in all his wisdom and who had and has unlimited powers to determine the conditions of the plebiscite, should have considered it convenient not to use as yet precisely the most important of them all, thus placing one of the parties in a dominant position and leaving the other in one of evident inferiority.

"In view of the foregoing, Peru did not deem it necessary to specifically request, in the presentation of her case, the evacuation of the territory because it relied on the justice of the arbitrator in the event of the rejection of the Peruvian thesis that a plebiscite would not be in order owing to the time elapsed since it should have been held, and owing also to the recalcitrant attitude of Chile and to the acts committed by that country against the Peruvian population, that the arbitrator would impose such conditions for the plebiscite as would tend to compensate Peru for the evident injustices committed against her during the unlawful occupation of her territory."

Expects Removal of Guards.

In addition to this claim for guarantees arising from unequal position of the two States in the territories in dispute, the Peruvian Government reiterates that "it would seem reasonable to expect" that the arbitrator would not forget the "main feature that stands out above all others in modern plebiscites, namely, that of removing the armed forces of both the interested parties as well as the heads of their administrative bodies."

The note then repeats the claim that those expelled from the disputed territories should be allowed the right to vote, pointing out that the arbitrator himself has admitted that expulsions have taken place, "though not in a number sufficient to warrant a ruling that the plebiscite would be out of order."

Seek 'True Popular Decision.'

"The Government of Peru with all due respect for the arbitral decision which has been rendered," the note says, "finds no reason to change the above opinions which have been expressed and will maintain in its integrity its claim concerning provision of those guarantees which are absolutely indispensable for the holding of a true plebiscite, the execution and results of which will be acceptable to the world at large and which Peruvian citizens may attend on a footing of absolute equality with those of Chile so that the referendum shall express the true popular decision contemplated in the Treaty of Ancon."

In conclusion, the note says:

"Notwithstanding the foregoing observations, which reflect, though imperfectly, the feelings of the Peruvian people, the Government of Peru, whose high sense of duty both for itself and its international obligations has prompted it to accept the award, takes note of the statements contained in the last communication from the honorable arbitrator to the effect that 'the foregoing observations, however, are without prejudice to the exercise of the powers of the plebiscitary commission,' powers which 'guarantee to every qualified voter full assurance of personal protection as well as the assurance that his vote may be freely cast and will be fairly counted'; that 'the plebiscitary commission shall have in general complete control over the plebiscite'; that it will 'prevent fraudulent voting'; has full powers 'involving the qualifications of voters and the prevention of fraud,' insisting also that 'ample provision is also made for appeal from the plebiscitary commission to the arbitrator,' and, lastly, that the arbitrator 'will leave nothing undone which scrupulous care and attention on his part can accomplish in securing a fair election and equal justice to both parties.'"

The note ends with the announcement of the appointment of Manuel de Freyre Santander as the Peruvian delegate to the plebiscitary commission.

SEEKS TO CUT MILK COST.

C. O. Ewing Tells Dealers' Meeting That Economy Will Aid Consumer.

Economy in operation and standardization of equipment for milk dealers will eventually lessen the cost of milk for the consumer, according to a statement made yesterday by C. Oscar Ewing of Louisville, Ky., President of the International Association of Milk Dealers, the Eastern District of which is holding a two-day conference at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Mr. Ewing pointed out that the association, composed of 300 milk firms, is working in conjunction with the Department of Commerce.

Among the other speakers at the first day's session were: J. F. Watson, Executive Vice President of Borden's Farm Products Company, Chairman of the Eastern District of the association; R. E. Little of Chicago, Secretary of the association; Patrick D. Fox, President of Borden's Farm Products Company; W. R. Forster of Hamilton, Ontario; J. H. Mills of Cleveland; H. N. Neal of Louisville, Ky., and Carl H. Kennedy of Philadelphia.

ASKS ELECTION INQUIRY.

Yonkers Committee Dissatisfied With Conduct of Referendum.

Counsel was retained yesterday by the Citizens' Committee for a City Manager of Yonkers, which recently made an unsuccessful effort at a special election to substitute a City Manager for Mayor, to investigate the conduct of election officers at the recent referendum.

It is the intention of the committee, which met with Chairman Hampton Ewing of 33 Belmont Terrace, Yonkers, to request District Attorney Arthur Rowland of Westchester County to find who was responsible for instructing election inspectors and officers that voters did not have to sign their names to votes at the special election held on May 29, when the City Manager proposition was voted down by a safe majority.

HOMERIC BRINGS NOTABLES.

Sir Henry Wood Comes to Conduct Los Angeles Orchestra.

C. S. Dewey, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, returned yesterday from Paris on the White Star liner Homeric and was taken off at Quarantine by a Coast Guard cutter which landed him at the Battery. He had nothing to say on the French war debt or any other subject and left immediately for Washington.

Other passengers arriving on the liner were Major and the Hon. Sir John H. Ward and Lady Ward, who will visit Lady Ward's mother, Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, and go later to St. Ann's River, Canada, on a fishing expedition.

Sir Henry Wood, the veteran English conductor, who has wielded the baton for the Queen's Hall Orchestra, London, for more than thirty years, arrived with Lady Wood on his way to Hollywood to conduct a series of concert programs by the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra. It is twenty years since his last visit to America, Sir Henry said, and he could hardly recognize the city as the view from the harbor had changed so much.

He expressed his admiration of the work on the younger American composers and said he intended to present "Through the Looking Glass" by Deems Taylor with his orchestra, when he returns to London. Sir Henry said he admired jazz music because it was so full of life, but he, himself, could not enter into such a medium.

Lady Maxwell, whose stage name is Nora Delaney, comes for a vacation after playing for sixteen months in London. She will spend her time seeing the sights of New York, she said. Sir Herbert Austin, Member of Parliament for Birmingham, and Mrs. Herbert Walker, wife of the President of the Old Dominion Line, were also passengers. Captain J. Roberts, R. N. R., D. S. O. the Homeric's commander, said the voyage had been fine, without sighting icebergs or sea serpents. The ship brought 361 passengers and [illegible] sacks of mail.

REYBURN APPLAUDS COOLIDGE ON THRIFT

Head of Lord & Taylor, Sailing for Europe, Says President Deserves Nation's Thanks.

Among the passengers who sailed yesterday on the Cunarder Mauretania, for Cherbourg and Southampton, was Samuel W. Reyburn, President of Lord & Taylor, who went for a six weeks' trip to England, France and Switzerland, accompanied by his wife and two daughters, Miss Frances and Miss Martha Reyburn. In an interview on board the Mauretania before sailing Mr. Reyburn said:

"As a merchant I am glad of the opportunity offered me of publicly endorsing the splendid talks recently made by President Coolidge on the subject of thrift. It seems to me that those who hastily interpret President Coolidge's sentiment to mean the drastic or complete cutting down of all expenditures do him a grave injustice, for President Coolidge in word and in deed has frequently given evidence of his firm belief that trade and the unhindered flow of goods constitute the lifeblood of a nation.

"President Roosevelt reminded us that thrift was the judicious use of time and money. To my mind thrift is not synonymous with parsimony, but with prosperity. It is not a negative force, resulting in the refusal to buy and in the stagnation of business, but a constructive force, which implies health, strength and vigor in the economic system and which lays the foundation of that courage and confidence which have made the remarkable economic development of the United States possible.

"The more farsighted the business man the more fully he realizes that thrift is the very foundation for the continuous and growing success of his business. Experience teaches us that along the line that overbuying or purchasing beyond one's resources inevitably results in disaster. If the manufacturer oversells the jobber or middleman, he loses a customer for some time to come. An oversupply of merchandise on the shelves does not increase the good-will of the purchaser toward the supplier who influenced him in making this extravagant commitment. The retailer who oversells the customer injures himself as much as he may injure his purchaser.

"Business men are coming to look upon their sales more and more from a two-fold point of view. First, that each transaction should be carried on at a reasonable profit. Second, that each sale to a customer should be such as to build up his good-will. We feel in Lord & Taylor's that our business is absolutely dependent for its existence upon the good-will of our customers, and we fully realize that unless our relations with our customers are based on the idea of thrift, or judicious buying, we shall lose their good-will and injure ourselves as much as we injure them.

"The idea of extravagance is sometimes associated with the extension of credit and the use of charge accounts. Credit, like every other constructive force in our civilization, is subject to abuse. A well-run store which extends credit as a matter of fact, carefully and systematically watches the purchases of charge customers so as to discourage their buying beyond the danger point, which has been determined for each customer from the information which he has furnished. Indeed, the retailer who encourages his customers to make extravagant purchases may easily find himself in a position where he cannot realize on the accounts owed him, and therefore he fails in business.

"These principles are so fundamental, and so generally accepted by an intelligent and enlightened American public, that they have no news value except in the light of specific events or conspicuous exceptions. The unethical trader who attempts to rush the public into purchases, regardless of future consequences, is the exception rather than the rule.

"I firmly believe that the majority of modern business men govern their business policies by the desire to combine present profits with the good-will of their customers—that is to say, thrifty or judicious purchasing today, leading to thrifty and judicious purchasing on a larger and more profitable scale at some future date.

"That is what I understand as the meaning of the idea voiced by President Coolidge, and this is the policy upon which I believe the future prosperity of this nation rests. President Coolidge deserves our applause for his timely emphasis of this basic principle."

Others leaving in the Mauretania were Miss Virginia Gildersleeve, Dean of Barnard College; Mrs. Donn Barber, widow of the architect; E. V. Lucas, the English novelist; Mrs. Percy Rockefeller, Miss Winifred and Miss Faith Rockefeller and the Hon. H. W. Brooks, British Naval Attaché at Washington.

The Mauretania sailed at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and between 3,000 and 4,000 people were at the pier to see the ship away.

JOLTED OFF AUTO, FALL KILLS A BOY

Knocked Down by a Taxi, Man Dies After He Is Taken Home.

Frank D. Unelle, 12 years old, of 170 East 103d Street, jumped on the rear of a delivery automobile last night at Second Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street. He clung to the door of the vehicle until the automobile struck a rut in the pavement. The jolt broke his hold and he fell to the street on his head. The driver of the automobile, Louis Liebowitz, employed by a wet-wash laundry, heard the cries of spectators and stopped. He carried the boy into a drug store and Dr. Banno was summoned from Reception Hospital. The boy was dead when he arrived. His skull had been fractured, Dr. Banno said.

Sperios Dementos, 32, of 508 West Forty-second Street, was knocked down by a taxicab yesterday morning. Harold Liebman, driver of the machine, took Dementos to the French Hospital in West Thirty-fourth Street. A physician there said he was suffering from abrasions, and Liebman then took the victim to the latter's home. In the afternoon Dementos died.

Daniel Rankin, 8 years old, was running across the street with several school chums in front of his home at 514 West Fifty-first Street last night, when he was knocked down and killed by a taxicab. Michael Ferrone, chauffeur of the machine, of 1,726 Lexington Avenue took the boy to Roosevelt Hospital where Dr. Blackman said death was due to a fracture of the skull. Policeman Leach arrested Ferrone on a technical homicide charge.

NEW ORIENT LINER HERE.

The 20,000-Ton Oronsay Arrives to Begin Special Northern Cruise.

The new 20,000-ton liner Oronsay of the Orient Line, which operates between London and Australia via the Suez Canal, arrived here yesterday to make a cruise to Norway, Sweden and Denmark under the management of the Raymond & Whitcomb Company of Boston and New York.

The chief features of the Oronsay are the spacious decks and the latest appliances for lowering and raising the lifeboats by motor power. There are thirty boats on the top deck which are lifted clear so that passengers can walk under them and have the entire width of the ship for games. The boats are nested one inside the other to economize on space and the two motor boats are equipped with wireless which has a radius of fifty miles in case of their getting lost.

The Oronsay has eight decks of which seven are used for passengers. In her first class there is accommodation for 600 passengers, and 1,400 in the third class. No second class are carried. The Oronsay is the first of the Orient Line vessels to be built with only first and third-class cabins. The Oronsay is commanded by Captain Owen Owens, R. N. R., and has a crew of 465 officers and men. Her dimensions are 630 feet long, 75 feet beam and 47 feet depth of hold. She is an oil burner with twin screws and geared turbines.

SAYS DRUG VICTIM LEFT ACCUSING NOTE

Mrs. Wheeler Wrote That During Had "Doped Her Drink," Prosecutor Declares.

Insists Couple Took Cantharides as a "Lark"—Burial Services Today.

Mrs. Ethel Wheeler of Harrington Park, N. J., who died in the Englewood Hospital from an overdose of cantharides on Monday night, wrote a note a few hours before her death saying she feared Maurice During had "doped her drink," according to a statement made last night by A. C. Hart, prosecutor for Bergen County. During, 25-year-old son of Mrs. Eleanor L. During, well-to-do real estate dealer, is under arrest on the charge of murder.

The authorities said that During had admitted buying a half pound of powdered cantharides for $1.50 and a vial of tincture of cantharides for 25 cents in a drug store in a town near Hackensack on Monday. A signed statement, it was announced, had been obtained from the druggist. Prosecutor Hart said that During telephoned to Mrs. Wheeler Monday, took her riding in his car, stopped at a road house near Fort Lee for drinks and there put the drug in her glass.

Mr. Hart denied a statement by During's mother that Mrs. Wheeler had "run after" the young man.

"It was his practice to telephone to her; she did not call him," said Mr. Hart. "We have information to show that on Monday she intended to break off her friendship with him. It is not true that she supplied him with liquor. The evidence is that he was a heavy drinker and carried a flask. We found a bottle of gin in the pocket of his coat at his home in Harrington Park. It is not that Mrs. Wheeler voluntarily took cantharides. During bought the drug and gave it to her."

Mrs. During, who has a real estate office and restaurant at 40 East Tenth Street, Manhattan, but lives in Harrington Park, made the following statement at her home:

"Prosecutor Hart said in his statement that the druggist has confessed to selling this drug to my son. He did not say that Mrs. Wheeler was with my son at the time he bought it. I do not believe that either of them had used any of this drug until Monday, when they were both taken violently ill. From what my son told me, they went to a roadhouse and took this powder in their coffee as much for a "lark" as anything else, probably not realizing the effect it would have upon them. Maurice's mouth and throat were burned because of it. He became ill at the same time as Mrs. Wheeler. He went to Dr. Grimes, in Dumont, who administered emergency treatment. Had Mrs. Wheeler done the same thing instead of insisting on going home first and then sending for a doctor and waiting for an ambulance to take her to the Englewood Hospital I think her life would have been saved. As it is she wasted several hours before receiving the best of treatment."

During's attorneys, McKay & McKay, advised him to make no statement. Dr. Ralph Gilady will report to Prosecutor Hart today on an analysis of the dead woman's organs. Herbert Wheeler, her husband, who is a fur buyer for R. H. Macy & Co., visited Harrington Park yesterday, but would make no statement. Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in an Englewood undertaking shop. The body will be taken to Medbury, Mass., for burial.

ARREST MAN WANTED FOR SLAYING CHILD

Farmhand Denies Stabbing New Jersey Girl of 11 to Death—Held for Extradition.

Through a circular sent out by County Detective George Totten of Somerset County, N. J., New York detectives yesterday arrested a man wanted for the murder, April 9, of Josephine Krysowaty, 11 years old, near her father's logging camp at Neshanic, N. J. The man under arrest is John Durchak, alias Dorcheek, of 7 Bowery, who had been employed as a farmhand by the Krysowaty family.

Durchak is charged with stabbing the girl fifteen times as she came from her father's barn near the logging camp. Following the attack he fled into woods on the mountain. The girl was taken to Somerset Hospital in Somerville, where she gave a detailed description of the attack and of her assailant. She died two weeks later.

Circulars offering a $500 reward and containing a minute description of Durchak were sent throughout the East. One of these came to the attention of Detectives Cronin and Cowley of the Fifth Street Station, who noted that the fugitive was described as having a peculiar stiffness about the knees.

For six weeks they had been watching employment agencies on the east side, as Durchak had obtained work on the Krysowaty farm through one of these, and yesterday they saw a man of Durchak's description reading the farm labor wanted bulletin. They had already learned that Durchak had been looking for work. They arrested him and took him to the Fifth Street Station, where after an hour of stiff grilling Durchak admitted his identity and said he left the Neshanic farm on April 9, but denied all knowledge of the murder.

County Detective Totten was notified, and Durchak will be held for extradition.

PLEADS FOR SPEEDER WHO MADE HER WIDOW

Mrs. Whiting Asks Leniency for Kalthoff, but Judge Gives Him Prison Term.

Despite a plea for leniency by Mrs. John Whiting of 315 Lincoln Avenue, Brooklyn, in behalf of Carl Kalthoff, who made her a widow on New Year's morning by killing her husband with his speeding auto, Justice William F. Hagarty, in the Brooklyn Supreme Court, yesterday decided that Kalthoff deserved prison punishment. He was sentenced to an indeterminate period in the penitentiary.

A jury recently convicted Kalthoff, who is 22 years old and lived at 8,343 107th Street, Richmond Hill, Queens, of manslaughter in the first degree. Testimony at the trial showed that Whiting, 40 years old, was hit by an auto racing at forty miles an hour along Fulton Street. The car sped on and Whiting's body, wedged beneath the auto, was dragged a block, when a policeman stopped the chauffeur, Kalthoff. He declared he was unaware he had run over any one. In the car with him was a group of merrymaking friends.

When Kalthoff was arraigned for sentence yesterday, Mrs. Whiting was present and held a whispered conversation with Assistant District Attorney Frederick Knopff, who informed the Court that Mrs. Whiting felt that Kalthoff had been punished sufficiently, and that she had no desire to have him sent to prison. Knopff said Kalthoff had paid $1,000 to the widow.

"Despite this plea, reckless driving must be stopped," declared Justice Hagarty. "However, I won't send this man to Sing Sing Prison, but to the penitentiary instead. Meanwhile I will write a letter to the Parole Board giving my views on this case."

MACRI CASE TRANSFER ARGUED BEFORE COURT

Judge Booth to Hear More Precedents Today—Prosecutor Assails Press Reports of Trial.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 24.—Decision to order the retrial of Olympia Macri transferred to another county or to have it again held in New Haven County was not made by Judge John R. Booth of the Superior Court today, but he asked the opposing counsel to produce Miss Macri in court tomorrow morning, when he will meet the lawyers, allow them to quote a few more precedents and take the motion for a change of venue under final consideration. It is expected that he will wait two or three days before announcing his decision.

State Attorney Arthur Alling today criticized features of the publicity at the first trial. He said that, after the killing of John Bagnano by Miss Macri, there was a publicity lull, but that as soon as the trial began, a swarm of reporters "stepped on the gas," producing "the wildest articles." He said one reporter's privilege of entering the court room was taken away, while another newspaper man was rebuked openly by the presiding Judge.

Mr. Alling referred to some of the press representatives as "professional agitators." These conditions, he said, made it impossible for a fair and impartial jury to be secured in New Haven County.

Joseph Koletsky, counsel for Miss Macri, told Judge Booth that the transfer of the trial to another county would involve tremendous expense, that such a thing had never occurred in all Connecticut jurisprudence, that the newspapers which made the misstatements were not New Haven newspapers, but were circulated in other counties of Connecticut just as much as in New Haven County and that New Haven newspapers circulated in other counties. He said that Connecticut statutes do not permit transfer to another county without the consent of the accused.

Man of 70 Picking Cherries Falls to Death.

FREDONIA, N. Y., June 24 (AP).—William Miller, 70 years old, prominent fruit grower of this city, was killed today when he fell several feet to the ground from a tree in which he was picking cherries. He had just climbed into the tree and stepped on a dead limb.

INVESTIGATES ACID BLAST.

New Jersey Chemist Thinks Marble Chips Were Responsible.

Investigations were started yesterday by the police, the Bureau of Combustibles and Dr. Albert E. Edel, Essex County Chemist, into the explosion of two containers of hydrofuoric acid, which killed two men and injured two others in Newark Tuesday, when they were trapped in an auto in which they were carting the acid.

Samples of the acid at the Charles S. Cooper & Co. chemical plant, at 348 Van Buren Street, Newark, where the liquid had been obtained, were taken by the chemist for analysis.

The victims of the accident had come to Newark in an auto and purchased the acid at the plant. They had placed it in their auto and had been making a turn in the street in front of the chemical plant when the jugs exploded. The acid was to have been used to clean monuments.

After a survey yesterday Dr. Edel advanced the theory that chips of marble from the monument works might have been left in the jugs and that when the acid was placed in them it might have produced sufficient carbonic acid gas to force the caps of the jugs and send the acid flying throughout the car. He will make the analysis to see if his theory is justified.

PLAN PORT CHESTER ROAD.

Truck Highway for New York-New England Traffic.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 24.—In order to provide another artery for the heavy traffic that flows between New York and New England, the Westchester County Park Commission has adopted plans for the construction of a truck highway between New York and Port Chester, according to information given out yesterday at its offices in Bronxville.

The new route will be known as the Pelham-Port Chester Highway and will run from the New York City line along the Boston Post Road through Pelham Manor as far as Kings Highway and Main Street, New Rochelle, after which it will follow over an entirely new route parallel to the western side of the New Haven Railroad tracks to Port Chester.

Property for the new route is being acquired, according to Jay Downer, chief engineer of the commission. The route is one of many approved by the commission as part of its $22,000,000 park and highway program.

FINDS INDIAN BONES OF 1,500 YEARS AGO

Heye Foundation Excavator Digs Up Algonkian Graves on Frontenac Island.

AUBURN, N. Y., June 24.—What is believed to be one of the most important discoveries of Algonkian remains ever made in New York State was announced today by Donald A. Cadzow of the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, New York City, who has been working in the Finger Lakes region for the past two years.

On Frontenac Island, the only island in Cayuga Lake, Mr. Cadzow has discovered and quietly explored an Algonkian burial ground, 116 feet long by 90 feet wide. The island lies off the village of Union Springs, Cayuga County.

"From a scientific standpoint it may rival any discovery ever made in the search for Algonkian remains," Mr. Cadzow said. "I roughly estimate the skeletons I found to be 1,500 years old and of the first period. We found fourteen skeletons, all being prone, instead of flexed or bent, as the Algonkians and Iroquois of later periods.

"Evidence that the early Algonkians were cannibals is found in the fact that we found broken and burned human bones mixed in a singular way with those of animals."

Mr. Cadzow has been associated with the Heye Foundation for a number of years in an archaeological survey in Alaska, the Southwest, and lately in this region. All of the bones and relics found have been shipped to the museum.

The finds, besides many skeletons, include stone implements, some of them not identified; one large perforated winged bannerstone made of white limestone, the first to be found in place with a burial site in the middle Atlantic; carved stone objects resembling deer heads; beaver incisors, a small notched flint arrow point, several antler flakers, bone arrow points, and the bones of swans and other birds.

"In one grave, said Mr. Cadzow, "we found a skeleton in the phalanges of the right hand of which rested a small bone spoon, three inches from which, resting on bedrock, were three small beaver teeth, an imperfect barbed bone harpoon point and an antler flaker. Under the left hand was the small perforated winged bannerstone. Touching the right fibula lay the crushed skull of another adult person, face downward, but no other bones traceable to this individual were found."

The village of Union Springs has guards on the island, and it has been posted against trespassers.

NEW BISHOP CONSECRATED.

Dr. William J. Hafey Is First Head of Raleigh Diocese.

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP).—The Right Rev. William J. Hafey was consecrated the first Bishop of the newly created diocese of Raleigh, N. C., at the cathedral today. Archbishop Michael J. Curley was the consecrating prelate, with Bishop Thomas M. O'Leary of Springfield, Mass., and Bishop Michael J. Keyes of Savannah, Ga., acting as co-consecrators. Bishop Hafey is a native of the diocese of Springfield. He will assume his new duties July 1.

Bishop Hafey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Hafey of Chicopee, Mass., his two sisters, the Misses Norah A. and Rosa M. Hafey of Chicopee, and his two brothers, James E. of Chicopee and Francis I., of Miami, Fla., were present.

LABOR ORGANIZER OUSTED.

Supplanted by Silk Workers Pending Inquiry Into Spying Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., June 24.—Pending the investigation of charges made by Casemere Pileanus, said to be a representative of the Department of Justice, that Adolph Lessig, former Secretary of the I. W. W. and an organizer for the Associated Silk Workers of Paterson, had been in the employ of a private detective agency and spying upon the workers, Lessig has been requested to withdraw temporarily from office.

George Robertson, a well known figure in the silk strike of 1913, has been appointed to fill Lessig's place temporarily. Meanwhile, Lessig, who denies Pileanus's charges, has engaged as counsel, Addison P. Rosenkrans, who was counsel for the workers in the last silk strikes.

Harrison Hits Republicans on Sugar

CHICAGO, June 24 (AP).—Denunciation of the National Administration's action on the sugar tariff was voiced here today by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi. He characterized as "deplorable" the part played by Senator Reed Smoot in framing the sugar tariff and said it was significant that the Utah Senator visited the White House the day before President Coolidge took action on the recommendation of the Tariff Commission that the import rate on sugar be reduced.

WOMAN KIDNAPPER SILENT ABOUT BOY

Mrs. Jones Insists That She Does Not Know Where Von Maluski Lad Is.

QUESTIONED FOR 3 HOURS

Prisoner Refuses to Talk to Prosecutor — Judge Collins Urges Examination Be Pressed.

Mrs. Harold Jones, who was convicted on Tuesday in Judge Collins's part of General Sessions of the kidnapping of three-year-old Raimonde Von Maluski on March 29 from in front of his home at 600 West 178th Street, insisted yesterday to a woman probation officer that she was not the kidnapper, although Judge Collins had warned her that unless she revealed the whereabouts of the boy a heavy sentence would be imposed.

The woman will be arraigned for sentence on Friday. The penalty for kidnapping runs from ten to fifteen years' imprisonment. Judge Collins had requested Assistant District Attorney John L. MacDonnell and the probation officer to exert every possible means to make the convicted woman tell the whereabouts of the boy, for whom a continuous search by the police has proved fruitless. Mrs. Jones refused to receive the prosecutor in her cell in Jefferson Market Women's Prison, and it was decided to depend on the woman probation officer to induce her to talk.

When the probation officer first called at the prison yesterday Mrs. Jones sent word to her that she would speak to nobody unless her lawyer, Philip Ruggo, was present. Mr. Ruggo agreed to go to the prison, and for three hours the probation officer questioned Mrs. Jones, but without result.

"I must say now, as I have all along said," the probation officer later quoted the woman as saying, "that I have no knowledge whatever of the boy. I didn't steal him, and I don't know where he is. The jury made a terrible mistake in finding me guilty of the boy's kidnapping. I hope that fact will be proved some day."

A report on the woman's statement was made to Judge Collins and Mr. MacDonnell, but both insisted that the evidence against her had convinced them that she was the kidnapper. Judge Collins urged that efforts be continued to obtain information before she is arraigned for sentence.

BUILDING WORKERS DISPLEASED AT HYLAN

Union Agents Say Promises of Wage Rises Made by the Mayor Are Too Small.

Business agents of the bricklayers', carpenters', stone cutters', iron workers' and other trades organizations which have members employed in the city's service went away from the City Hall yesterday expressing displeasure over the outcome of a conference they had held with Mayor Hylan and Budget Director Edward W. Buckley on the question of the adoption by the city of "the prevailing rate of wages."

According to the union leaders, Mayor Hylan promised to recommend wage increases ranging from 50 cents to $1.50 a day to some of the crafts. The labor men were displeased, they said, because the wages were not brought up to the rates paid by private contractors. The labor men said they would accept the advances, however, and fight for more when the 1926 budget was made up.

It was said that the Mayor pleaded lack of money in declining to award the full demands. Examiners of the Board of Estimate, who investigated the wage claims of the trade unions, reported against the rates demanded by the crafts. The decision of the city authorities was based on the investigation made by the examiners. The recommendations will be presented at the next Board of Estimate meeting.

TOM LAWSON AT DEATH HAD NOT A 5-CENT PIECE

Sons of Boston Financier So Declare at Hearing in the Probate Court.

BOSTON, June 24 (AP).—Thomas W. Lawson, financier and writer, once reputed to have a fortune of $20,000,000, died "without a 5-cent piece," counsel for his two sons announced today in Suffolk Probate Court. Lawson died in Boston on Feb. 8, leaving no will.

Judson Hannigan, appearing for Arnold and Douglas Lawson, the sons, asked the Court to appoint them administrators. The four daughters consented to the appointment, which was made by Judge William M. Prest. Mrs. Marion Lord of Brookline, one of the daughters, was represented by counsel. The administrators were ordered to furnish surety of $1,000.

James E. Cotter, representing the Federal National Bank of Boston, told the Court that the bank held $49,000 in notes of the Trinity Copper Company endorsed by Lawson.

Pantano Visited in Cell by Lawyer.

OSSINING, N. Y., June 24.—Anthony Pantano, who was twice convicted of complicity in the murder of the West End Bank messengers in Brooklyn, was visited in the Sing Sing Prison death house today by Staley Richter and former Judge Robert S. Johnstone, counsel believed to be making preparations for his appeal for a third trial. It was a coincidence that the Kings County Grand Jury was making an inspection of the prison at the same time.

Infantorium Keeper Freed.

Upon producing a Health Department permit to keep children as boarders, Mrs. Lena Perri, 44 years old, of 327 East 124th Street, was discharged yesterday by Magistrate Norman J. Marsh in Harlem Court. At the same time the case of Mrs. Mamie Stoffel, 38 years old, of 41 East 115th Street, who was arrested, together with Mrs. Perri, on June 12 by agents of the Children's Society, charged with boarding children without a permit, was adjourned until July 7.

Amundsen Keeps the Faith with Thousands of Gimbel Customers Throughout the United States

Two days ago we thought that the thousands of transpolar postcards bought from us and mailed to Spitzbergen to be carried on the Amundsen expedition had been left behind 150 miles from the Polar Pole.

Yesterday we had the first word from Amundsen. It is reproduced above. Faced with the necessity of discarding practically everything to lighten the load for the dash to safety, Amundsen brought the cards home.

It would seem, therefore, that many Americans will soon be in possession of the priceless souvenir we promised them more than a year ago.

Gimbel Brothers (who distributed the cards, not alone without profit, but with considerable cost to themselves) congratulate Amundsen upon his achievement in keeping the faith and the persons who will be the recipients of the cards.

APPROVES FINDINGS AGAINST $1 GAS LAW

IN LITIGATION 11 MONTHS

Contention of Brooklyn Company Is Upheld—Case Expected to Be Taken to Supreme Court.

Judge Marcus B. Campbell, in the Federal court in Brooklyn, yesterday approved the findings of Special Master Almet Reed Latson in the action in which the Brooklyn Union Gas Company was plaintiff, holding that the so-called dollar gas law was unconstitutional and confiscatory. In a long opinion, in which he went into the report of the Master, Judge Campbell made some slight modifications but no material change in the Master's findings.

The Judge took up separately the two main contentions advanced by the company—first, that the law impairs obligations of valid existing contracts in violation of the Constitution, and, second, that the law is confiscatory and deprives the plaintiff of its property without due process of law. As to the first contention, the Court held that the statute in that respect does not violate the Constitution.

Discussing the second contention, the opinion quoted from the report in the case of Willcox vs. the Consolidated Gas Company, in which the Court said that there were cases where the rate was so low that there was no doubt of confiscation. Judge Campbell declared that the present case comes under that exception.

"Reluctant as any court should be to declare a statute of this character confiscatory until it has been demonstrated so to be during a test period," the opinion read, "I am of the opinion that the plaintiff in the action at the bar brought itself within the exception to the general rule that is laid down in Willcox vs. Consolidated Gas Company."

Sustaining the Master that the one-dollar gas rate fixed by the Public Service Commission in 1923 was unconstitutional, the opinion stated that the value of the franchises could not be included in making up a rate base. The question was, could gas be manufactured at a one-dollar rate and provide for the maintenance of the plants at a profit.

"It is not the province of this court to prescribe rates. The question with which we are concerned is to determine whether the rates prescribed by the Legislature are confiscatory," the opinion continued.

After reviewing the evidence presented by the company to show that the rate was confiscatory, Judge Campbell stated: "In the case at the bar it appears that the act is confiscatory even if gas of the standard of 537 British thermal units is required to be furnished at $1 per 1,000 cubic feet; therefore if the standard is declared unconstitutional and the provision as to the rate sustained, the Public Service Commission would be obliged to establish a standard which they could constitutionally require to be furnished for the prescribed rate, and that would mean gas of a much lower rate than that required at the time of the passage of the statute."

It is expected the case will be carried to the United States Supreme Court before it is finally settled.

Judge Campbell appointed Mr. Latson a Special Master in July, 1923, after the Brooklyn Union Gas Company had applied for a temporary injunction restraining the Public Service Commission and the Attorney General from enforcing the provision of the one-dollar gas law pending the outcome of the present action. The company was obliged to put up bond to guarantee consumers of a refund in case its contention failed. After hearing much testimony from both sides the Special Master returned his report about six weeks ago.

WIFE OBTAINS SEPARATION.

Decision Also Grants Custody of Children to Mrs. Ecob.

Justice Norman S. Dike in the Queens Supreme Court yesterday handed down a decision in favor of Margaret Byrnes Ecob of Bradish Avenue, Bayside, in the suit for separation brought by her husband, Robert Gilbert Ecob of 100 Sanford Avenue, Flushing, an architect with offices at 33 West Forty-second Street. Under the decision the two children, Robert Gilbert Jr., 2 years old and John Lathrop, 1 year old, were placed in custody of Mrs. Ecob, with opportunity for Ecob to visit them. A provision is also made whereby Ecob will be allowed to have the children as they grow older with him for such times as may be mutually agreed upon by the Ecobs.

The Ecobs were married on Oct. 15, 1919 at the First Unitarian Church in Flushing by Mr. Ecob's father, the late Rev. Dr. James H. Ecob. Mrs. Ecob is the daughter of James C. Byrnes, examiner with the Board of Education of this city.

1,750 STORES IN MERGER.

$7,500,000 Retail Grocery Deal Is Reported in the South.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 24.—(AP)—Reports that a merger of 1,750 retail grocery stores in the South would probably be consummated soon were confirmed today by J. M. Fly, president of the National Association of Chain Grocers. He said more than $7,500,000 would be involved.

Although declining to divulge the names of the several chain stores interested in the proposed consolidation, Mr. Fly said those companies now operate in Atlanta, Washington, Jacksonville, New Orleans, Memphis, Little Rock, Norfolk, Birmingham and Nashville.

Mr. Fly said he understood New York capitalists had been interested in the plan.

CITY BREVITIES.

Brig. Gen. Johnson Hagood and his staff, and Colonel M. G. Spinks, commanding officer of Fort Tilden, will be guests of honor at American Legion Day, next Thursday, during the Old Home Week celebration at Far Rockaway. A treasure hunt will be held in connection with Children's Day on Wednesday.

Announcement was made yesterday of the establishment of the James Monroe Chair of International Relations to be a part of the Wythe-Marshall-Monroe School of Government of the College of William and Mary in Virginia, and to be affiliated with the Yorktown World Forum.

Classes in the Summer course offered by the School of Business and Civic Administration of the College of the City of New York will be started in the Commerce Building at Lexington Avenue and Twenty-third Street, this evening.

It was announced at a dinner in the Ridge Club, Seventy-second Street and Ridge Boulevard, Brooklyn, last night, that $38,055 had been contributed or pledged toward a $45,000 building fund for the Bay Ridge Y. M. C. A., Fourth Avenue and Senator Street, Brooklyn. The campaign ends today.

The drive to raise $200,000 for the new wing of the Lutheran Hospital in Brooklyn is expected to go over the top, it was announced last night at a meeting in Trommer's Hall, in Bushwick Avenue. Yesterday, the seventh day of the drive, netted contributions amounting to $14,479, bringing the total to date to $148,431.

The annual assembly of the Hebrew Orthodox Rabbis of America and Canada, composed of 138 rabbis, will meet in this city Aug. 27 and 28, it was announced last night, following a meeting of the assembly executive committee in the office of Rabbi Simon Finger, at 108 East 103d Street.

CALL JACK DURAND ROBBER

Chicago Lads Say He Led Them, but Foster-Mother Denies It.

CHICAGO, June 24 (AP).—Mrs. Scott Durand, wealthy society woman, today defended her adopted son, Jack, 20 years old, against charges of three confessed robbers that he had been their leader in burglaries and robberies on the North Shore, including the hold-up of Miss Hester White, daughter of F. Edson White, President of Armour & Co., in September.

"Jack is in California working as an assistant camera man," she said. "I know he didn't do it. He is married and is working hard and faithfully. I never heard of the three young men who accuse him."

Mrs. Durand said her adopted son went to California early last Fall.

Police search for Jack Durand has been started on the Pacific Coast as the result of the alleged confessions by the three youths.

Two of the youths were arrested in an attempt to hold up a taxicab driver. On one the police said they found a letter addressed to Durand, threatening a confession unless a division was made.

F. Edson White, in the robbery of last September, lost jewels valued at several thousand dollars. They were taken from his daughter Hester during a party. Three automobile thefts and a $5,000 burglary of the Hugh McLennan home also were confessed.

REFUSE KLAN PARADE PLEA

Patchogue Trustees Say It Would Hurt Saturday Trade.

Special to The New York Times.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., June 24.—The village trustees at their regular weekly meeting last night refused permission to the Ku Klux Klan to hold a parade here on the afternoon of Saturday, Aug. 1. Daniel Owens of this village appeared before the trustees in behalf of the Klan and asked for a permit for the parade. E. R. Bellman, Chairman of the trustees, asked him how long the parade would last.

"From one and a half to two hours," Owens answered. In response to another question he informed the trustees that it was the Klan that requested the permit.

It was refused on the grounds that Saturday was a big day for the merchants here and that it was not fair to them to block the streets with a parade. The trustees offered to issue a permit for Sunday or some other day of the week. Owens said that he would consult with other Klansmen before accepting.

OUT ALL NIGHT LIKE PAPA.

Taxi Driver's Son Found Asleep in Pushmobile on Street.

Kenneth Saloon Jr., 7 years old, of 618 East 176th Street, the Bronx, son of a taxicab driver who works at night, showed indications yesterday of adopting his father's business by staying out all night in his pushmobile.

Kenneth's machine, with its driver inside asleep, was found by Patrolman Sweeney of the Simpson Street Station at Wilkins Avenue and Boston Road shortly before daylight. He took him to the Bronx Children's Society. Soon afterward his father, who had returned home to find him absent, claimed the child.

DE KAY COMES TO NEW YORK

His Right to Leave Rhode Island on Bail Likely to Be Questioned.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. June 24 (AP).—John Wesley De Kay, brought here Monday from England to face three indictments against him in connection with the failure of the Atlantic National Bank of Providence more than twelve years ago, and who was held in bail totaling $25,000, is in New York City, having left Providence last night.

De Kay's departure from Rhode Island is expected to raise the question of whether he has the right to leave this State without permission of the Court.

PASSPORT TALE FALSE, SAYS MISS MACSWINEY

Recognizes Authority of United States, She Declares—Denies Hunger Strike Threat.

Miss Mary MacSwiney, sister of the late Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork and Irish Republican leader, issued a denial yesterday of statements which had been credited to her in Chicago several weeks ago that she had no passport and "had no intention of ever getting any" and that she would go on a hunger strike if arrested here. Miss MacSwiney stopped in New York while on her way to Syracuse to lecture.

Miss MacSwiney took particular exception to the portions of the interview which spoke of her starting a hunger strike. She said:

"While I am here I am subject to the laws of the United States, and I would have no justification for going on a hunger strike in protest of those laws. I recognize the authority of the United States. In Irish affairs it is different; I do not recognize the British authority in Ireland."

The question of her coming here without a passport Miss MacSwiney characterized as "utterly absurd."

"To say that I 'was not aware I needed any' is utterly absurd," she said. "I trust that I am not such an ignoramus as to attempt to come here without a passport or to think that I do not need one."

SAYS HE HIT PRISONER.

LaGuardia Accuses Detective of Breaking Prisoner's Jaw.

Detective Omar Ames, 28 years old, of 282 East 137th Street, the Bronx, was arrested yesterday in the Morrisania Court on the charge of felonious assault made by a man whom Ames had arrested for disorderly conduct. The detective was held in $1,000 bail for examination July 1, when Timonti Rossi, 31 years old, of 2,615 Third Avenue, the Bronx, the complainant against Ames, will also be examined.

Mrs. Bertha Ames, the detective's wife, was the complainant against Rossi, who, she testified, annoyed her with attentions until her husband arrested him. Congressman Fiorella LaGuardia declared Ames beat Rossi so severely in the Alexander Avenue Police Station that he suffered a broken jaw. Ames denied this. He declared he struck Rossi in the street when the latter resisted arrest.

OFFICE BOY GETS $20,000.

Four Months in Employ, St. Louis Lad Shares in Employer's Will.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 24.—An office boy who had worked for his firm only four months will receive approximately $20,000 from the estate of his employer, it was decided yesterday by Circuit Judge Falkenhaimer.

Eight employes of Charles Herboth, who died Jan. 2, 1924, are entitled to shares in his $742,282 estate under the decision. The suit was filed to construe Herboth's will in which he bequeathed one-third of his estate to "people of my employ." This included William Hays, the office boy.

Moss to Head Kiwanis International.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 24 (AP).—John M. Moss of Milwaukee, Wis., will be the next President of Kiwanis International. He was the unanimous choice of the nominating committee today. The election will be held Thursday. Mr. Moss presented the report of the committee on construction of the Harding Memorial in Stanley Park, Vancouver, B. C., pointing out that the memorial "is being erected to the memory of a Kiwanian, the idea was conceived by a Kiwanian," and the architect, sculptor and construction firm all are Kiwanians.

No Such Free Homes

As St. Rose's Home on the Lower East Side of New York, or Rosary Hill Home on the Westchester Hills, an hour away from the city, exist from North to South in the United States.

They are for cancer-cases that are destitute and pronounced incurable; and absolutely no pay is received from relatives or the State.

The reasons are beneficial to the patients, and the public mercy is the softest mercy for them, as many letters of harsh indifference prove.

Flat Shape Balloons—Uniflex Cord Construction

MILLER discovered that by reducing internal friction heat, balloon tires would have still greater endurance. And that by building the tire in the flattened shape it takes when under load, the tread would wear down evenly—every bit of rubber in it would be used—thus giving an astonishing amount of additional mileage. The new patented Miller Flat Shape Uniflex Cord Balloon has both these features.

A remarkable test of the new Miller FLAT SHAPE Tire

These two tires were made and run on the same car at the same time and under identical conditions:

Round shape balloon tire. Note the distortion when under load.

Miller Flat Shape Balloon tire. Built to shape it takes when under load. No distortion.

Round tire after ordinary service. Note the excess wear due to uneven flexing and distortion.

Miller Flat Shape tire. Same number of miles. Result—slow, uniform wear and tire good for many more miles.

Start saving on tires and tubes today—put on Millers. There's a dealer near you—look for the Miller sign.

A complete line of balloon, regular passenger car and heavy-duty truck and bus tires. Tubes and accessories.

The New CHRYSLER FOUR

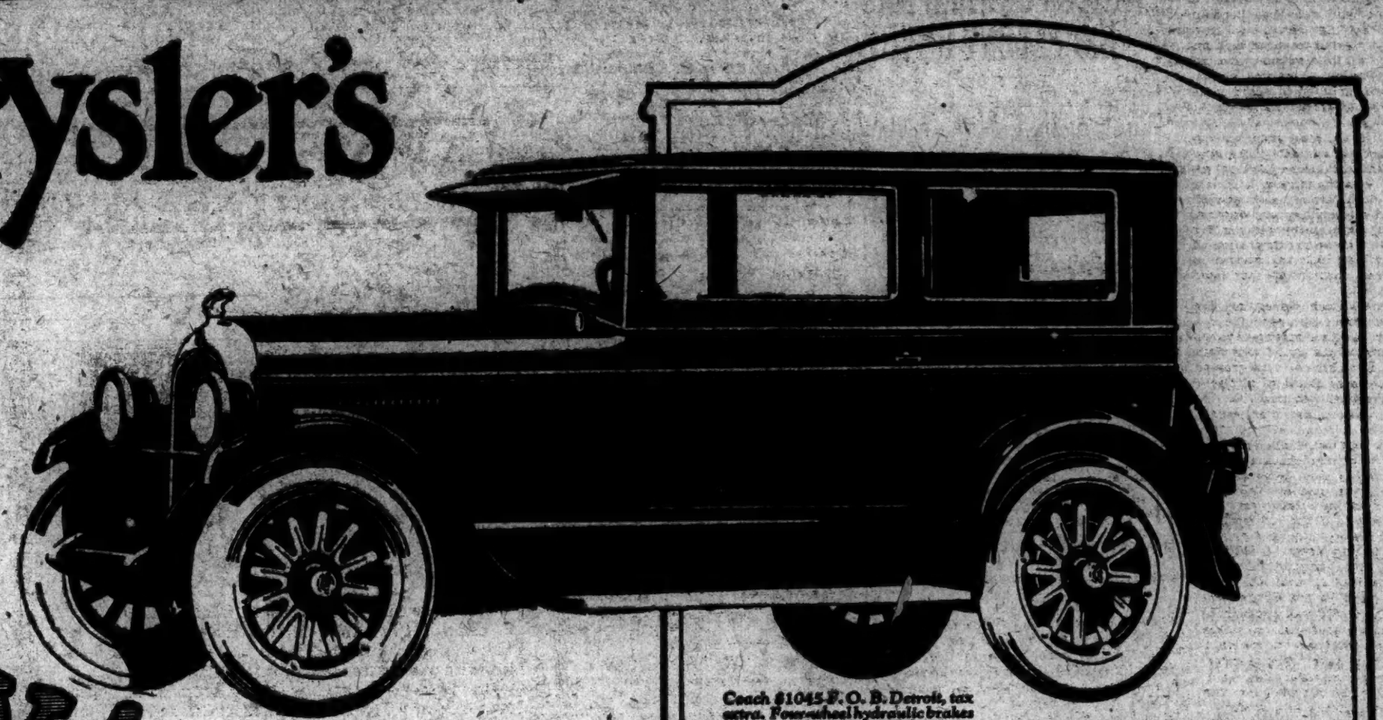
Now Ready!



Coach $1045 F. O. B. Detroit, tax extra. Four-wheel hydraulic brakes optional. Body by Fisher.

$895 Touring Car
F.O.B. Detroit, Tax Extra

Walter P. Chrysler's full conception of what a four-cylinder car should be has now become a reality.

Mr. Chrysler announces the new Chrysler Four, companion car to the Chrysler Six. It is here, ready for your inspection.

Whether you are a car owner or not, by all means see this new Chrysler creation. Ride in it. Get to know the latest Chrysler achievement which the master car builder identifies with his own name.

It will amaze you, for it is our firm conviction that the new Chrysler Four represents a better and finer combination of power, speed, fuel mileage and charm of appearance than any other four in the world today.

For four years Chrysler-created products have steadily advanced to the very fore-front of the four and six-cylinder fields.

Chrysler engineering, Chrysler manufacturing quality and Chrysler value eclipsed all previous production records for cars that might be considered comparable.

Every step of that irresistible advance was part of the process in preparation for the production of the new Chrysler Four answering the insistent public demand for another Chrysler.

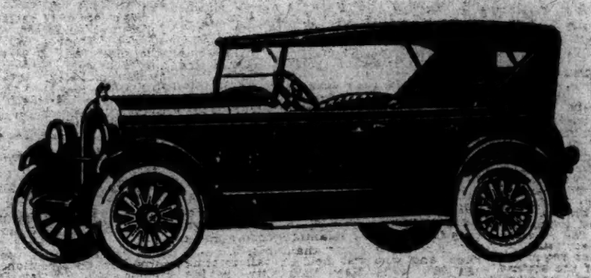
The basis for the beauty of the new Chrysler Four is the dynamic symmetry which Chrysler engineers were first to translate into beautiful motor car design in the Chrysler Six.

The wonderful riding qualities of the new Chrysler Four cannot be described. You must experience them to know what an advance has been made in the four-cylinder field. It is enough to say that a ride will amaze and delight you.

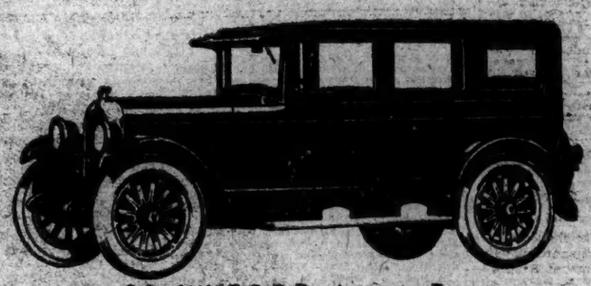
And when you ride you'll notice the absolute quietness of the four-cylinder engine, you'll find no rumble or tremors in the body of the car.

Here is a car you can truly drive all day without fatigue. It is hardly ever necessary to shift gears, except for starting from a dead stop. When shifting is necessary it is made clean and noiselessly by the matched transmission gears and easy clutch action.

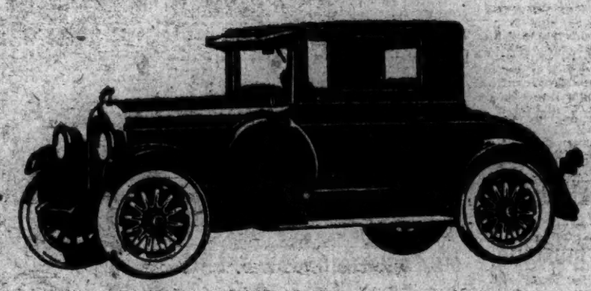
There has never been the like of the new Chrysler Four at anywhere near its price. Be prepared for a great revelation.



Touring Car $895 F. O. B. Detroit, tax extra. Four-wheel hydraulic brakes optional.



Sedan $1095 F. O. B. Detroit, tax extra. Four-wheel hydraulic brakes optional. Body by Fisher.



Club Coupe $995 F. O. B. Detroit, tax extra. Four-wheel hydraulic brakes optional. Body by Fisher.

Far ahead in power, speed, fuel mileage, beauty; in safety, ease and complete and perfect roadability.

First car of its price with the option of hydraulic four-wheel brakes at slight extra cost.

Delivers 38.5 horse-power—83 per cent more power certainty and performance than its official rating.

Positive full force-feed lubrication, giving far more efficient lubrication with no increase in oil consumption.

Unusually sturdy, rugged frame.

Engine completely isolated from chassis with floating platform spring in front. Rubber bushings and pads in rear—no metal to metal contact.

Steering mechanism designed especially for balloon tires.

Marshall Field and Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney Made Directors of the Metropolitan.

Stockholders Adopt Another Innovation at Special Meeting, Marking Change in Policy.

The Metropolitan Opera Company adopted another innovation yesterday when its stockholders, at a special meeting at the Metropolitan Opera House, Thirty-ninth Street and Broadway, elected Marshall Field and Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney to the Board of Directors. The decision to put younger men on the directorate is in keeping with recent moves, indicating a marked change in policy. Among other things the Metropolitan has announced in the last few weeks that it has commissioned American talent to write an American opera.

Both Mr. Field and Mr. Whitney were elected to fill vacancies of several years' standing. There remain one or two more vacancies to be filled—the exact number could not be learned yesterday—and it is likely that the stockholders will turn again to the younger generation if it decides to fill them. An announcement following the election of the new directors reads:

"At a special stockholders' meeting of the Metropolitan Opera Company, held yesterday at the Opera House, two new members, representative of the younger generation, were added to the Board of Directors—Messrs. Marshall Field and Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney.

"Both are serious music lovers. The former is also a member of the Board of Directors of the Philharmonic Society. Mr. Whitney is a son of Harry Payne Whitney.

"The other members of the board, all of whom were elected, are as follows: Edmund L. Baylies, Rawlins L. Cottenet, Paul D. Cravath, George Eastman, Robert Goelet, Frank Gray Griswold, Frederic A. Juilliard, Otto H. Kahn, Alvin W. Krech, Clarence H. Mackay, Edward T. Stotesbury, Harry Payne Whitney and Henry Rogers Winthrop."

Mr. Field is a grandson of the founder of the Marshall Field fortune. In 1920 he took charge of the $120,000,000 Field estate, of which he was the principal heir. He is interested in the arts, scientific exploration, charities and sports, and has been a liberal contributor to expeditions, notably the Sargasso Sea expedition of William Beebe, and Asiatic expeditions for the Field Museum of Chicago. He also has made generous contributions to Beckman Street Hospital and to other charitable institutions. He was elected Chairman of the Board of the Beekman Street Hospital.

Mr. Field was elected a director of the Bank of the Manhattan Company in 1922, re-elected a director of the Guaranty Trust Company in 1923, elected a member of the Executive Committee of the Investment Bankers Association of America in November, 1924, and was invited by Captain Roald Amundsen to serve on an advisory committee on Amundsen's plans for his recent polar flight. He is President and director of Marshall Field, Glore, Ward & Co., Inc., and a director in the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company, Columbia Gas and Electric Company, Illinois Merchants Trust Company, Marshall Field & Co., Illinois, and the Thirty-eight Wall Street Corporation, of which he is President.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney was elected a director of the Guaranty Trust Company on Jan. 8, 1925, succeeding Samuel W. Reyburn, who resigned to become a Class B director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York City.

RIVAL CONDUCTORS EMBRACE ON STAGE

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—Two rival Italian opera conductors met for the first time this morning during a rehearsal on the stage of Covent Garden. They darkly surveyed each other while the terrified leading artists, choristers, supers and stage hands stood in the background expecting the temperamental worst. One was Leopoldo Mugnone, who came from Naples to take the place of the other—Sergio Failoni— as chief conductor.

Suddenly the seventy-odd-year-old Mugnone opened his arms wide. Failoni rushed into them with tears streaming down his face. They embraced, warmly kissed in Latin fashion—and those standing about breathed easy again. At Mugnone's earnest request Fialoni withdrew his tendered resignation and will remain as assistant during the balance of the Italian opera season.

Mugnone conducted for the first time tonight in "Aida" and was enthusiastically received, along with Elisabeth Rethberg, who has proved to be the vocal dramatic sensation of the season.

JERITZA STILL TRIUMPHS.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—Jeritza continues to score successes at Covent Garden. Among them, however, can scarcely be rated "Fedora," which was given last night. But if "Fedora" was a failure, it was the fault of Giordano, who wrote the music for Sardou's melodrama and not of Jeritza, who has to sing it.

One criticism was that, as she wore no hat in the church scene in "Tosca," that she might better show her hair, she wore in this play of nihilist plots in Imperial Russia dresses of 1925, that she might more properly display her style.

MAE MURRAY'S SALARY.

Film Actress Reported Signed With Ufa at $350,000 a Year.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 24 (AP).—The Los Angeles Examiner today said that Mae Murray, motion picture actress, has signed a year's starring contract with Ufa film interests of Germany calling for an annual salary of $350,000. Her present contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will end in about eight weeks, The Examiner said.

Vast Audience Hears Goldman Band

The increasing crowds at the Goldman Band concerts on the New York University campus show how well rooted the popularity of the organization is. Last evening the slope was a solid sea of faces. As the weather grows warmer Mr. Goldman expects record attendances. The program he gave last evening began with Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" and included the "Peer Gynt suite. Edith Ewald, soloist of the evening, was heard in an aria from "La Gioconda." Mr. Goldman's composition, "The Emblem of Freedom," transcribed for the band, met with a great reception. The next concert will be tomorrow evening.

Prince of Wales Fails to Cut Birthday Cake As African Pastry Gets Firm Grip of Knife

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, June 24 (AP).—The greatest gathering of school children ever brought together in South Africa was reviewed today by the Prince of Wales. It is estimated that the children numbered 35,000. It took the Prince a good half-hour of hard walking in and out of the lines of the children to inspect them.

Despite the great strain he is undergoing the Prince is maintaining perfect health. After the inspection of the school children he visited the Turfontein racecourse. The royal visitor was advised to place a bet on Jubiland II, which won the Prince of Wales Cup. He disregarded the advice and consequently backed a loser.

The Prince last night danced until a late hour in the Town Hall. It was his birthday, and prior to his departure he cut his own birthday cake. The ceremony took place in the Mayor's parlor, in the presence of a small company.

The Prince was in a merry mood. Responding to a request that he cut the cake he replied:

"I'll do anything you like."

The two top layers of the cake were removed and the Prince then plunged his knife up to the hilt into the pastry. He found, amid the laughter of those present, that he was unable either to cut the cake or to pull out the knife.

The chef came to the Prince's rescue and proceeded to cut up the cake. The Prince was presented with the first slice. The remainder was divided into hundreds of small pieces, which were carried on trays to the entrance of the parlor, where rich and prominent women of Johannesburg clamored with outstretched arms for portions to be kept as souvenirs of the visit to Johannesburg of the heir apparent to the British throne.

WINTER GARDEN HAS EXCELLENT REVUE

"Artists and Models, Paris Edition" Displays the True Folies Bergere Touch.

18 Gertrude Hoffman Girls In Graceful Chorus Entwining—"The Rotisserie' a Feature.

ARTISTS AND MODELS (Paris edition), a revue in two acts and thirty-four scenes. Book by Harold Atteridge and Harry Wagstaff Gribble; lyrics by Clifford Grey and music by Alfred Goodman, J. Fred Coots and Maurice Rubens. At the Winter Garden.

PRINCIPALS — Walter Woolf, Phil Baker, Billy B. Van, Brennan and Rogers, Lulu McConnell, George Rosener, Herbert Corthell, Aline MacMahon, Llora Hoffman, Teddy Claire, Beatrice Swanson, Jane Carroll, Andrew Jochim, Eleanor Willems, Herbert Ashton, Sunshine Jarmann, Caites Brothers, Sid Silvers and eighteen Gertrude Hoffman Girls.

A revue of particularly outstanding excellence came to the Winter Garden last night. It is "Artists and Models, Paris Edition."

Before anything else is said, it is perhaps well to inform patrons of the previous editions of "Artists and Models" that there still in evidence the Folies Bergere touch that is perhaps the reason so many good Americans go to Paris before they die.

The chief characteristic of the new revue, at least to one observer, is its speed. A number is barely finished—the word barely is used, as one says, advisedly—before the next one is unveiled, which is also an advisedly employed word. The effect is that the few numbers that are not too entertaining are quickly forgotten and that the numbers of great appeal exert their charm of sweet memory for many minutes after they have left the Winter Garden life.

For those who care for that kind of thing, and a representative of the negative has yet to appear, the Gertrude Hoffman girls seemed to please most last night. They are eighteen in number, comely, agile, tireless and given to graceful chorus entwinings. Some of their effects have been seen here before—even done by themselves—but the novelty of their endeavors is a minor virtue in the light of their other charms.

There are many beautiful scenic and chorus effects in the new production. Thus there is the number called "Pastels," in which three rows of Gertrude Hoffman girls are displayed in appropriate poses; the essay known as "The Rotisserie," in which a number of young women are shown, as in the window of a restaurant, as fowl prepared for the sacrifice, or as broilers, as both Broadway and the program knows them; and the much-encored exhibition called "The Promenade Walk at the Beach," which is a progression across the stage of all of the chorus and most of the cast in characteristic steppings.

The comedy offerings are good for the greatest part, though there are numbers that are thus and thus. Best, the audience decided, were Phil Baker, grown to full stature as a comedian, though with the assistance in a box of Ted Silvers, who was unmentioned in the program notation; Lulu Mac Connell and Herbert Corthell, as might be expected; Aline MacMahon, in a mild and reminiscent fashion; Brennan and Rogers, in new material to their familiar method, and George Rosener and Jane Carroll.

Walter Woolf was the manly singer of the evening, and has retained both the genteel dominance of appearance and the appealing timbre of voice for which he is known. Two dancers new to Broadway, calling themselves the Caits brothers, stopped the show for some moments in its second half. And there was a dancer, Teddy Claire, who offered stops of an outstanding nature.

There were some tunes that will probably be heard from again, certainly by those who lay themselves open to cabaret and radio lures, and a mechanical effect, involving the making of mechanical noises with a "Flex-a-Tone" by the audience.

The new revue at the Winter Garden will, in all probability, be known for some time to come as the best offering that has as yet been made there.

MAY BRING MOSCOW OPERA.

Morris Gest Plans to Present Art Theatre's Musical Studio.

The Moscow Art Theatre Musical Studio closed its fifth season in the Russian capital last week, according to a cable received yesterday by Morris Gest, who plans to present this company in America next Winter, provided the Ministry of Fine Arts in Moscow permits the company's departure. The regular season ended on June 16 with a performance of "Carmencita." For the final performance on June 19 a new bill, entitled "Love and Death," which included Rachmaninoff's "Aleko," was presented.

"Aleko" created a profound impression. It is an example of the vigorous early style of the most eminent of living Russian composers. Like the other short operas in the program, it was inspired by Russia's greatest poet, Alexander Pushkin, whose work, "The Gypsies," gave Nemirovitch-Dantchenko himself the idea for the libretto. That was in the days before the founding of the Moscow Art Theatre, when young Dantchenko was rated as Russia's leading playwright and novelist and Rachmaninoff was Rimsky-Korsakoff's favorite pupil. "Aleko" tells a story of love, jealousy and hate among the passionate Romany tribes.

In addition, "Love and Death" includes "The Fountain of Bakchi-Saria," which the composer, Arensky, made from another poem of Pushkin, and "Egyptian Nights," a mimo-drama which Gilerre has drawn also from Pushkin.

The production of this new bill after the regular season, although in strange contrast with American customs, is in accord with a long established tradition of the Moscow Art Theatre. Frequently, in the course of the twenty-seven years' history of the institution, productions of importance have had their premiere before an exacting audience in May or June, on the last night of the season.

Newspapers just arriving report the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Moscow Art Theatre Musical Studio. That mile-post in the career of the new company fell on May 16, its début having been made on that date in 1920 in the midst of Russia's great famine year, with Lecocq's "The Daughter of Mme. Angot."

ADOPTS A CONTRACT FOR VENDING RIGHTS

I. R. T. Approves Competitive Bidding for Privileges on Its Lines—To Run 18 Years.

The Transit Commission approved yesterday the contract form for vending privileges on the subway and elevated lines of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. The contract, open to competitive building, will run for eighteen years from Nov. 1, 1925, in accordance with an order of the commission.

When the Transit Commission required competitive bidding of the B. M. T. in 1924 and approved a contract between that corporation and Barron G. Collier, Inc., the final figures represented an increase of more than $3,000,000 over the original offer. The Collier Company agreed to pay a minimum of $15,000,000 for fifteen years.

Under a contract with the Interborough, Artemus Ward, Inc., makes a fixed annual payment of $900,000 plus 10 per cent. of the gross receipts, which in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1924, amounted to $1,390,034. A proposed revision of its contract with Artemus Ward, Inc., was submitted to the Transit Commission by the Interborough last November. Under the proposed revision the Ward company would have increased payment for the four remaining years of its contract by $420,000 a year, making a total increase of $2,100,000.

As a basis for a new contract it offered to increase its fixed minimum payment for three years to $1,350,000, plus 45 per cent. of the gross receipts from advertising, in excess of $1,000,000, and 10 per cent. of its receipts from all other sources above $1,000,000. For the next year the additional percentages were changed to 45 per cent. from gross receipts from advertising over $1,200,000, and 10 per cent. above the gross receipts over $2,000,000. For each of the remaining eleven years the Ward Company was to be increased to a fixed minimum payment of $1,800,000, plus 45 per cent. of the gross receipts from advertising in excess of $1,450,000 and 10 per cent. of all other gross receipts above $2,300,000.

The Transit Commission disapproved the proposed revised contract last February and subsequently ordered the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to prepare a form of contract for competitive bidding. The bids will be received up to noon June 30, 1925, and will be opened by Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough, or a Vice President of the Interborough, in the presence of the Transit Commission.

SAYS REMUS PAID $2,000 FOR PRISON 'SOFT JOB'

Ex-Clerk of Atlanta Testifies Bootlegger Agreed to Pay $7,000, Divided 3 Ways.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 24.—For the first time in the investigation of graft conditions at the Federal prison here, George Remus, Cincinnati bootlegger, was brought to the front today when it was testified that he had paid Father Thomas P. Hayden, former chaplain, $2,000 for special privileges.

This testimony was given in the trials of Hayden and L. J. Fletcher, former deputy warden, on charges of accepting bribes in return for "soft jobs" at the penitentiary. The graft investigation already has led to conviction of former Warden A. E. Sartain, and Lawrence Rheil, an alleged aid in the transaction. Fletcher was acquitted and is now being tried on another charge of a similar nature.

The Remus case was only incidentally mentioned, but is believed to be the forerunner of other testimony which will bring the millionaire bootlegger to the stand.

Particular interest is attached to what Remus may say. It is rumored one of the main objects of the recent visit here of Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General, was to see Remus. Although the object of the visit is not known, it is reported to have been the result of an agreement by Remus to make a full confession of his anti-prohibition activities and probably to expose prison conditions.

Admitting that he received $2,000 in bribes from Mannie Kessler, Morris Sweetwood and Remus, wealthy prisoners of New York, W. F. Hall, former clerk in the office of L. J. Fletcher, former deputy warden, took the stand today.

Hall declared the prisoners agreed to pay $7,000, which, he asserted, was to be divided among Fletcher, Hayden and himself. Fletcher was to receive $4,000, Hayden $1,000 and Hall $2,000, he testified, but he could not say whether Fletcher or Hayden ever received the money, although he himself got his $2,000.

NEW CHAPLIN FILM.

"The Gold Rush" to Be Shown at the Mark Strand in August.

Charlie Chaplin's new picture, "The Gold Rush," will be presented some time in August at the Mark Strand Theatre, according to a statement issued yesterday by Joseph Plunkett, Managing Director of the theatre. The exact date will be announced later.

At the conclusion of the negotiations between Moe Mark, President and general manager of the Mark Strand Theatres, Hiram Abrams, President of the United Artists Corporation and Arthur Kelly, personal representative for Mr. Chaplin, the following statement was issued:

"A contract was signed Wednesday by the Mark Strand Theatre with the United Artists' Corporation for the premiere and exclusive showing in New York of Mr. Chaplin's 'The Gold Rush.' The photoplay is the longest Mr. Chaplin has ever produced."

For North American Theatres.

Application was made yesterday at Dover, Del., for papers of incorporation for the North American Theatre, Inc. Winthrop H. Kellogg of 24 Broad Street, attorney for the company, said that $5,000,000 of preferred stock would be issued and 500,000 shares of common stock of no par value.

Mr. Kellogg added that there might be some announcement by the company within the next few days of the theatres included in the venture, but that he did not feel free to disclose further details at this time.

Condemns American Films in India.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ALLAHABAD, June 24.—American films dominate the Indian market in the opinion of the editor of the Pioneer, causing a grave state in the British film industry. Ridiculous representations alleged to be English scenes by transatlantic artists, constantly cause offense to India, the newspaper says and give to Indians a wrong impression of English life. "It would be deplorable if the infant film industry of India fell into the hands of America," adds the Pioneer.

OFFICERS OF UNIONS GO ON TRIAL TODAY

ASK FOR 'FAIR CHANCE'

Bookkeepers' Organization Protests Hiring of Strikebreakers at Dressmakers' Offices.

Seventy-seven officials of Locals 2, 9 and 22 of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union will go on trial today at the Hotel Cadillac on charges growing out of the May Day meeting held under the auspices of the local unions at the Metropolitan Opera House where speakers praised communism and the Russian Soviet Government.

Louis Hyman, Chairman of the Joint Action Committee of the three locals, said that he and his associates would answer their accusers if they were given "a fair trial, to which members of the press are admitted."

"We will not stand for any star chamber proceedings, however," he said. "The joint board officials have made this a public matter by broadcasting their charges in the press even before they officially notified us. They have raised the cry of 'communism' and posed as patriots striving to free our union from radicalism. We want a chance to refute these charges publicly; to show that this cry of 'Red, Red,' was raised simply to gain public sympathy; that the real issue in this fight is democratic management of our union, for which we have been fighting for years."

The rules of the international, it was said yesterday, provide for executive sessions in the trials of suspended officers, and it was indicated yesterday that this rule would not be changed for today's proceedings.

Morris Sigman, President of the international union, in a statement yesterday, asserted that the meeting of "shop chairmen" called by the suspended officials on Tuesday night in Manhattan Lyceum brought together about 1,000 persons, the majority of whom were not shop chairmen "and not even cloak or dress makers." He declared that the meeting included carpenters, painters, furriers and members of other crafts, who represented a mobilization of the entire city strength of the Communists.

According to Mr. Sigman, the international union held two meetings Tuesday night, attended by 600 shop chairmen who sustained the action of the joint board and the international union in suspending the "Communist disruptors."

Secretary Ernest Bohm of the Bookkeepers, Stenographers and Accountants' Union announced yesterday that members of his union who had been employed in the office of Local 22 have been compelled to join the union because they were locked out while non-union bookkeepers and stenographers were employed by the union.

Mr. Bohm, in a letter to Local 22, appealed to the union to protest against the action of its officers "and to demand the immediate withdrawal of the strikebreakers who are handling your books and your money and that all the workers who are members of our union be taken back to work so that the office of Dressmakers' Union 22 may again be a union office."

DEMPSEY IS FORCED TO PAY DAWES TAX

Germans Collect $6,000 for Exhibitions He Gave in Berlin at $15,000 a Week.

PARIS, June 24 (AP).—Jack Dempsey is reported to have told friends here on his arrival from Germany with $22,000 and a grievance that he was "a victim of the Dawes plan."

Dempsey contracted to give exhibitions in Berlin for $15,000 per week. He worked for two weeks, less one day, and received $25,000 from the impresario who staged the exhibitions.

Tax collectors, however, immediately interviewed the world heavyweight champion after he received his payment, and before the conference with them was over Jack was obliged to sign his autograph to a check for $6,000 for income tax and a special tax instituted under the operation of the Dawes plan.

FIGHT BUILDING PROJECT.

Murray Hill Section Residents Ask to Be Made Parties to Suit.

Residents of the Murray Hill section applied in the Supreme Court yesterday to be made parties to a suit brought by the 237 Madison Avenue, Inc., for a review of the action by the Board of Appeals of the Department of Buildings concerning the erection by the corporation of a twenty-two-story business building on the lots at 257 to 261 Madison Avenue.

The property owners seeking to appear in the case are Charles L. Riker, George F. Baker, George F. Baker Jr., Florence B. Loew, Gherardi Davis, William Skinner and Joseph F. Stillman, who own residences in the section. They contend that the status of the neighborhood as a restricted residential district will be seriously affected if the business building is permitted there.

An affidavit by Mr. Riker, which is similar to those filed by the other property owners, states that two violations of the zoning regulations have already been found against 257 Madison Avenue, Inc., owner of the three lots in question. He stated that in February, 1920, when an antique concern opened galleries at 257 Madison Avenue, a permit was refused and later the place was closed by the Fire Department. He said that similar action was taken against a restaurant opened in the basement of 261 Madison Avenue.

Mr. Riker said that the corporation filed plans for its proposed building on Sept. 6, last and that the Board of Appeals decided against it. The present proceedings to review the action of the board were then taken. The case is to be heard on July 1.

SAYS OFFICER CLUBBED MAN

Wife Complains Declaring Husband Is in Serious Condition.

Complaint was made in the Police Court in Bayonne, N. J., yesterday by Mrs. John J. Bowen, wife of a contractor, of 60 West Fiftieth Street, Bayonne, against Mounted Patrolman William Gibson. According to the complaint, Gibson clubbed the contractor when the latter attempted to enter fire lines last Wednesday to reach a lumber yard on business.

Bowen has been in bed, attended by a physician, and has had the last rites of the church administered, so serious is his condition as a result of the alleged clubbing, according to the affidavit submitted by Mrs. Bowen. The attack was made without provocation, it is charged.

Gibson was still on duty last night. Date for hearing has not yet been set.

American Army Retains Polo Title—Giants and Robins Divide Again; Yanks Win

U. S. ARMY FOUR WINS BY 6-4; KEEPS TITLE

Again Conquers British Team in International Military Championship Series.

CONTEST FULL OF THRILLS

Rain Makes Field Hazardous and Captain Dening of Britons Is Injured in a Fall.

BIG CROWD DESPITE DRIZZLE

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—America retained the international military polo championship trophy at the Hurlingham Club this afternoon when the United States army team defeated the British army four 6 to 4 in one of the most exciting games ever seen in England. The game was played in a heavy, drizzling rain and on a soggy field, making the sport very hazardous. Numerous narrow escapes from injury and one casualty were directly caused by the dangerous condition of the field. Captain J. B. Dening, captain of the British team, suffered a concussion when he fell from his horse in the midst of a scrimmage.

The American team won the first game Saturday, and the third, which was to be played next Saturday in the event of a tie, is now unnecessary. Instead, the Americans will play a picked team from India. Although the game was not so much of a society event as the one played Saturday, there nevertheless was a capacity crowd, which came in raincoats and with umbrellas, hoping to see the British tie the score. The unusual number of Americans surprised the British and at the first goal a mighty cheer went up all over the stands.

The American Ambassador and Embassy Staff again were present. The American players were made to feel at home when each good play brought shouts of approval in the American style, so that the British, usually subdued in their expression of approval, were soon inspired warmly to cheer their own team.

Americans Too Speedy.

The British team played much better polo than in the first game, and it was apparent they were determined to even the score. However, the terrific speed and at most times brilliant accuracy of the Americans generally kept them on the defensive. The British made a desperate effort to speed up their play and succeeded frequently, but spurts were not enough to defeat the Americans.

Captain C. H. Gerhardt made the first score for the American team, putting the ball squarely between the posts almost immediately after the opening play. He again scored at the end of the first period from a melee in front of his goal. As the American team had all its own way in the first period, the British had the better of it in the second period, although they only succeeded in scoring one goal. The famous McCreery brothers were the outstanding players of the British team and long runs downfield brought the crowds to their feet twice.

In the third period the British, playing at top speed and with several clever attacks, brought the score to a tie. The first four of the game was against Major A. H. Wilson of the American team forcing them to hit out from behind their own line.

The American speed which swept the British off their feet in the opening play was again in evidence in the fourth period, Major Wilson scoring. The excitement by this time reached a high pitch and when the fifth period opened everyone was on his feet. It was in this period that Dening fell from his horse. He now was unable to continue and his place was taken by Major Lockett.

The Americans in Lead.

Another goal in the sixth brought the score to five to four in favor of the Americans, although for a few minutes it seemed as if the British would again tie the score. Several tries were missed by a few inches. In the last period Gerhardt again scored in the first minute of play while the British narrowly missed several goals.

The game as a whole produced some curious incidents. Two collisions which took place were between two members of the same team and the British missed two free shots from forty yards, usually looked upon as practically certain goals.

Speed and accuracy of stick work were the outstanding characteristics of the American team—in fact in two words, speed and accuracy can sum up the reason why America won the championship again.

The suggestion that the American ponies were faster, was disproved by the second game, wherein the British ponies appeared quite as speedy as the Americans. Major Beard, Captain of the Americans, told THE NEW YORK TIMES after the game it was wonderful sport, and the British team played a much better game, keeping them constantly on the alert. There is a great deal of interest in next Saturday's game between the Indian players and the Americans. The American team is returning to America July 4.

SUMMERALL PRAISES TEAM.

Col. Haskell Also Commends Major Beard for His Generalship.

Major Charles T. Summerall, commanding the Second Corps Area and the highest ranking officer in the United States Army, and Colonel William N. Haskell both paid tributes to the American Army polo team yesterday upon learning that the four had successfully defended its international military championship against the officers of Great Britain by winning the second game of the series at Hurlingham, England.

"The army team was carefully selected from the entire service," said General Summerall. "It was backed by the army with the single purpose of retaining the world's military championship, and naturally we are all gratified over their victory."

Colonel Haskell, polo representative of the Second Corps Area, issued the following statement:

"To Major Louis A. Beard, Captain of the team this year and a member of the 1923 team, who has been a material factor in the two American triumphs over Great Britain's best army polo players the world's military championship, is due great credit. He faced the difficult task of transporting both human and equine players across the Atlantic and bringing them out on the field for the crucial test in the finest form. He never lost sight of the main chance—the championship series against the British Army four.

"His wisedom in husbanding the supreme efforts of the team despite the temptation to show the English followers of polo the team's strength in the preliminary games is a great object lesson to polo generalship."

HARVARD ATHLETES IN FIRST WORKOUT

Five Stars Practice for Meet With Oxford-Cambridge—Later Join Yale Team.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 24.—Although practice for the Harvard-Yale track team for its meet against Cambridge and Oxford in the stadium July 11 does not start officially until tomorrow, five Harvard athletes did their first workout since the Yale meet in the stadium this afternoon. They were Captain Henry Dunker and John Potter, shotputters; Alfred Miller, the stocky sprinter; Captain-elect Willard Tibbetts, intercollegiate two-mile champion, and Leonard Robb, hurdler.

These men went to Swampscott later to join the Yale team at the new Ocean House, where the quarters of the combined Harvard-Yale team will be maintained until the morning of the meet. All the American athletes will practice here tomorrow.

It became known today that John Watters, former intercollegiate champion, can work out here only two weeks ends before the combined meet. In order to make sure of his college degree, Watters is at Harvard Engineering camp in New Hampshire and will have only Saturdays to perform here. Ellsworth Haggerty, intercollegiate mile champion, also will be retarded in preparation, as he is tutoring a young boy out of town.

President Coolidge, the British Ambassador and other dignitaries are to be invited to attend the meet. President Coolidge's Summer quarters at Swampscott are in the vicinity of the training quarters of the Harvard-Yale team.

MARSHALL RETURNS FROM CHESS TOUR

Reports Receiving Challenge From Alekhine and Expresses Willingness to Play Match.

Prize-winner in both of the international chess masters' tournaments at Baden-Baden, Germany, and Marienbad, Czechoslovakia, Frank J. Marshall, United States chess champion, returned here yesterday from Havre on board the steamship Paris of the French Line and was greeted at the dock by a delegation of members of the Marshall Chess Club. A reception in his honor will be held tonight at the club, when he will give an exhibition of simultaneous play.

Returning from Marienbad, Marshall stopped in Paris and there met Alexander Alekhine, winner of the Baden-Baden tournament, who desires to come to America next winter and to play a match with Marshall. The latter yesterday expressed his willingness to play, but added that American chess players, if they wanted such a match, must raise a fund approximating $5,000.

The American champion looked in the best of health after his absence of three months and it is his intention to spend the summer at Atlantic City, as has been his custom. While abroad, Marshall divided the fifth and sixth prizes with Dr. Tartakower of Vienna at Baden-Baden and the third and fourth prizes with Carlos Torre of this city at Marienbad.

Altogether he contested a total of thirty-five games in these tournaments, with a total score of twelve victories, twenty-one draws and only two losses, which were to Alekhine and Reti at Baden-Baden. The champion, who was accompanied by Mrs. Marshall, displayed with pride a silver cigarette case which was presented to him by the Marienbad Chess Club as a special brilliancy prize for the game he won from Yates of England in the tenth round.

BANTAMS FIGHT TONIGHT.

Midget Smith to Meet Goodman in Dexter Park Stadium.

Midget Smith, westside bantamweight, who not so long ago ranked as one of the foremost champion contenders, will make a bid to regain his high rank tonight when he faces Charlie Goodman, Brooklyn fighter and conqueror of Carl Tremaine, in a ten-round bout at the Dexter Park Stadium in Brooklyn. The show is for the benefit of the building fund of the Mary Immaculate Hospital.

Smith recently put up a spectacular battle against Bud Dempsey. He has been in hard training for weeks, and is confident he will show that he has regained his old form. Goodman is reported to be in good fighting form also.

Another ten-round feature will see two of Mickey Walker's challengers in action, when Paul Doyle, Bath Beach welterweight, faces Jack McVey, negro boxer. In another ten, Tommy Milton and Murray Layton, rival flyweights, will oppose each other. Mike Reilly and Harry Gaba will meet in a six, and Lou Sigil and Lou Presto will clash in the opening four.

GIANTS AND ROBINS AGAIN BREAK EVEN

OSBORNE SHINES IN SECOND

Holds McGraw's Men to Four Hits While Mates Batter Nehf to Win, 9-1, Before 25,000.

By HARRY CROSS.

In regard to the current disturbance at the Polo Grounds between the Giants and Robins, the best that can be said for the New Yorkers is that they are just about holding their own. The two neighbors split another double-header yesterday, the Giants winning the first, 8 to 3, while Tiny Osborne gave the champions one of the most humiliating experiences they have had this season, beating them 9 to 1.

The mingled cheers and groans of some 25,000 fans added considerable commotion to the affair, and the lack of brotherly spirit which has cropped up between the New York and Brooklyn players has now extended into the grandstand. Robin fans threaten Giant fans and New York supporters chatter unkind remarks about Brooklynites. If they could take their attention off the ball game long enough there might possibly be a good set-to.

Kent Greenfield outpitched Burleigh Grimes in the opening game and held the Robins at bay while the Giants were poking Grimes for fourteen hits, including impressive home runs by Jackson and Frisch. Captain Frank jarred his into the lower right field stand in the fifth with two runners on.

The concluding encounter of the afternoon was distressing. Tiny Osborne, also known as Tanglefoot and Duckwing, had one of his good days and he held New York to four hits. The big Robin would have had a shut-out but for Jimmy Johnston's wild throw to first in the ninth, which let Terry home with the only New York run of the game.

Giants Show Rare Speed.

The Giants were seized with the speed mania in the first game and stole six bases on Taylor, the Robin backstop. That's about the snappiest bit of base running they have shown this season. They stole no bases in the second game for the very good reason that they did not get on the bases often enough.

Art Nehf's pitching was apple pie for the Robins in the second game and they knocked him out of the box in the fifth. John Wianer was the first relief and the damage executed on him consisted mainly of a home run by Fournier into the upper stand in the sixth.

Taylor's double and a single by Grimes tied the score in the first of the fifth, but not for long. In the last of the fifth, after Young and Southworth had uncorked infield hits, Frisch larruped a homer into the stand. There's three more.

Snyder singled in the sixth and was forced by Greenfield. Young's double sent Kent to third and he scored on South's sacrifice fly. Frisch was hit by a pitched ball and Terry's single pushed Young home. Frisch going to third, Hollocher scored on a double steal. Brown drove in Wheat with another Robin run in the eighth.

In the second game, the Robins nicked Nehf for four hits and three runs in the second inning. Brown singled and reached second on Meusel's fumble. After Cox flied to Kelly, Ford walked and De Berry's double scored Brown. Osborne's single scored Ford and De Berry romped in on Johnston's. Two more came in the fourth when De Berry singled and scored on Osborne. Johnston forced Osborne and stole second. Stock's double scored him and Stock went over on Wheat's single.

Robins Keep Right On.

Even that didn't satisfy the Robins. Brown doubled in the fifth and scored on a single by Cox. After Nehf departed, Wianer was greeted by Ford with a single. Cox scored on a wild pitch and Ford went to second. De Berry sacrificed and Ford counted on a second hit by Osborne. Tiny was not only in great pitching form yesterday but his bat was swinging with wild abandon.

Then came Fournier's big punch in the sixth, when he pumped one of Wisner's twisters into the upper stand in right.

There were two slight riots yesterday between the players, both of which were under control before they got started. When Grimes hit Frank Frisch in the first game it caused much talk between the two which lasted all afternoon. Ross Young and Jimmy Johnston, colliding at third base, also had numerous remarks to make to each other.

ITALIAN FUND SALE BIG.

Advance of $75,000 Already Received for Bouts on July 2.

The advance sale for the Italian Hospital Fund boxing show at the Polo Grounds on July 1 has exceeded $75,000 and is expected to reach $100,000 in another day or two, according to an announcement made yesterday by the promoters. Practically all details for the carnival have been completed with the exception of selecting an opponent for Jimmy Slattery, crack Buffalo light-heavyweight, who has been signed to appear in a special six-round battle. Promoter Humbert Fugazy expects to close that match today.

Miss Wethered Quits Major Golf Play, "Simply Because I Choose To," She Says

LONDON, June 24 (AP).—The Daily Express says that Miss Joyce Wethered, British women's golf titleholder, has decided to quit championship play because she is tired of it. The paper quotes her as saying:

"I have no reason that would appeal to the masculine mind. I am stopping playing simply because I choose to. I am tired of it for the time being. There is no mystery about it. I am not going to emigrate or marry; I have simply exercised a woman's prerogative of doing something without the slightest regard for what anybody thinks and because I want to please myself."

If Miss Wethered, empress of golf, has retired from championship competition, her decision will disappoint American golfers who have been eager to see her play. Although she never has contemplated a trip to this country, there were hopes that she might be induced to enter the tournament for the American title at St. Louis next Fall. Her brother Roger has made several trips to the United States as a member of Walker Cup teams, but though an excellent golfer he lacks his sister's brilliancy in competition.

Her game attracted special attention when she defeated Miss Glenna Collett, American star, in the recent British women's championship by playing fifteen holes in even fours and followed this by winning the title in a thirty-seven-hole match with Miss Cecil Leitch, during which each did the difficult Troon course in 75 twice.

If Miss Wethered retires there probably will not be an opportunity for an informal world's brother and sister championship, the possibilities of which have occurred to some golf galleries because of the feats of Edith Cummings of Chicago, former women's national champion, and her brother Dexter, Yale's intercollegiate titleholder.

PIRATES AND CARDS DIVIDE TWIN BILL

Hornsby Hits 3 Homers and Brings Total to 21—St. Louis Wins, 11-3, Then Loses, 7-6.

ST. LOUIS, June 24 (AP).—The Cardinals divided a double bill with the Pirates here today, losing the second game, 7 to 6, and winning the first, 11 to 3. Manager Rogers Hornsby, leading major league circuit hitter, bagged three home runs, the last coming in the ninth inning of the second contest. Morrison was pitching and one man was on base. His total for the season is now twenty-one. Hornsby's first homer was in the opening inning of the first game with none on and the second in the sixth with two on. J. Smith, Wright and Carey also got homers.

Heydler Suspends Grimm.

President John A. Heydler of the National League yesterday suspended Charley Grimm, first baseman of the Chicago Cubs, for five days and fined him $100 for his dispute with Umpire Frank Wilson in Chicago Tuesday. In the game against Cincinnati Grimm was called out on a third strike, and the player's protest resulted in his expulsion from the contest.

Boxing in Canarsie Tomorrow.

Ansell Bell, negro bantamweight, and Jackie Gordon will wind up their training today for their ten-round bout, which will feature the inaugural show at the Golden City Arena in Canarsie tomorrow night. Two other ten-rounders also are on the card. In one, Willie Suess will face Benny Hall of St. Louis, while the other will be between Sig Keppen and Sammy Aaronson.

TWO AD MEN BATTLE 23 HOLES IN TOURNEY

E. J. Barber Finally Conquers J. H. Absel at Cooperstown—Other Favorites Advance.

Special to The New York Times.

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., June 25.—A 23-hole battle between two Jerseymen marked the second round of match play today in the annual tournament of the Golf Association of Advertising Interests. J. H. Asbel of Orcola and E. J. Barber of Englewood were the combatants. Victory went to Barber on the fifth extra hole.

Louis Goldman of New York, the medal winner, and the two other favorites, Roy Barnhill of Fox Hills and Clair Maxwell of Apawamis advanced with comparative ease. Goldman put out J. O'Connell of Boston, 5 and 4; Barnhill defeated W. Walsh of Long Island, 7 and 5, and Maxwell disposed of W. Manning of Chicago, 3 and 2.

In the second round of the women's championship Mrs. W. S. Bird of Sleepy Hollow defeated Miss E. Ellert of New York, 3 and 2.

Bill Haring of Shackamaxon, playing in the third sixteen, holed his iron shot on the first hole for the first eagle ever made there.

The other results:

First Beaten Eight—H. H. Proskey, North Hempstead, defeated C. Hedges, New York, 7 up; D. S. Stewart, Dunwoodie, defeated T. W. Nye, Dunwoodie, 3 and 2; J. H. Ford, Gedney Farms, defeated H. Murphy, Essex County, 7 and 6; Rasmussenhaar, New York, defeated W. Campbell, Canton, Ohio, 3 and 2.

Second Sixteen—W. Jenkins, Leewood, defeated D. L. Hedges, Colgate, 5 and 4; S. Bird, Sleepy Hollow, defeated A. Sullivan, Essex Falls, 3 and 2; W. R. Hotchkins, Montclair, defeated D. W. Tebbetts, Boston, 2 up; E. J. Murphy, New York, defeated J. Lynch, Chicago, 1 up.

Third Sixteen—H. Ruggles, New York, defeated L. A. Weaver, North Hempstead, 2 and 1; W. F. Haring, Shackamaxon, defeated C. Cavanaugh, New York, 5 and 3; G. Manning, Chicago, defeated J. Barber, Englewood, 3 and 7; Nelson Peabody, Woodland, defeated U. Dice, Pittsburgh, 2 and 1.

STATE BANK GOLFERS WIN.

Gain Second Leg on Krech Cup in 5-Man Team Play.

The five-man golf team representing the State Bank won the annual competition for the Alvin W. Krech Cup, which was the feature event on the program of the officers' golf tournament of the Bankers' Athletic League of New York, played over the Englewood Golf Club course yesterday. Nine teams entered the competition to ring the coveted trophy, but the State Bank team, composed of W. L. Richard, H. C. Richard, T. M. Sherman, W. L. Ball and Maurice Newton, turned in the low total and thus gained their second leg on the trophy. Equitable finished second and New York Trust third. Chase, which won the trophy last year, was not up with the leaders this time. State won in 1923 and Guaranty Trust in 1922.

The prize for the low individual gross score of the day was won by Richard Hanson of Equitable, who had a 76. Second low gross went to H. F. Kenney of New York Trust with an 80. The low individual net winner was H. G. Stensreen of Coal and Iron National Bank with a score of 68, 17—85.

There was also a three-ball competition which resulted in a tie between State, represented by H. B. Richard, W. L. Richard and T. M. Sherman, and the New York Trust Company, represented by Frank Wheeler, H. V. Kennedy and S. T. Boyd. The two teams had a score of 71. There was also a two-ball competition which resulted in a tie between State Bank and Equitable with 73 each. It was decided to toss for the honor and State won. F. H. Gates and R. W. Stubbell played for the State team and Richard Hanson and A. E. Lauckner for Equitable.

Pickups and Putouts

Virgil Barnes, who was suspended in Pittsburgh last week for violation of training rules, was reinstated by Manager McGraw yesterday. His sprained ankle is improving rapidly and he will be in shape to pitch in a week. He has promised not to slip on any more cakes of soap.

Eddie Farrell got into both games for a brief time. The young Pennsylvanian fields with all the grace and smoothness of Tilly Shafer, who used to decorate third for the Giants years back.

Pep Young broke away from his hitting slump with a loud bang. He got four hits in the first game, one a triple and one a double. Pep is too skillful a hill player to stay in a slump as long as he did.

The Giants started many a double steal yesterday which they did not finish.

It seems that Osborne's only deficiency is wildness. The Chicago Cubs turned him loose last season for that reason. Moving to Brooklyn has completely subdued Osborne, and so it must have been Chicago that made him wild.

Eddie Brown helped himself to six hits during the afternoon. Billy Southworth caught six flies in centre in the first four innings of the first game.

The same clubs will lock horns again this afternoon, but in only one game. Who the pitchers will be for New York not even Mr. McGraw knows. He wishes he did.

YANKS, MINUS RUTH, BEAT SENATORS, 5-3

Huggins Orders Week's Rest for Babe, Who May Play Only at Intervals This Season.

GAME WON IN THE SEVENTH

Hugmen Score All Their Runs in This Frame Off Ogden—Jones Subdues Champions.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Babe Ruth, brooding gloomily in a dark corner of the dug-out, saw the Yankees snuff out the Senators today, 5 to 3, in the second game of the series. The Bambino was benched to rest his weary frame, but the Yanks went on without him and scored all their runs in the seventh inning when it was not so quiet along the Potomac.

Ruth was laid on the shelf because his ankles and legs have weakened under the strain of chasing flies and running out base hits. He will be idle for at least five days, maybe a week, but even after that he will not play every day unless he shows marvelous recuperative powers.

The truth of the matter is that the Yanks have ceased to count on George Herman as a vital and dependable factor in the fight to get within the first division money. In the score of games since his comeback on June 1, he has shown that his enormous form, greatly weakened by his weeks of reclining on a valise in St. Vincent's Hospital, cannot stand the gaff of the daily grind.

Although he feels no pain or discomfort as he runs, bends, throws and slides, the operation and subsequent convalescence have sadly enfeebled Ruth's legs. These valuable assets, generally the first to feel the effects of a ball player's aging, were none too good this Spring when he reported at St. Petersburg.

Suffers Pain in Ankles.

Weeks spent on the flat of his back took their toll, and Ruth, when he finally donned a uniform, was barely able to run. When sprinting around the bases he gave the effect of feeling pain from his efforts, but the real fact is that his legs were so desperately weak that it was all he could do to lurch along at faster than a trot.

Yesterday he began to suffer pain in his ankles, and Huggins this evening announced that he would give the Bam a rest.

"I am not going to take a chance of ruining Ruth as a player," said the Miller "simply because he is a great box office asset. His condition is none too good. True, he has showed an improvement since he came back into the game, but it will take him all year to recover from his sickness. Then he will need a long winter of rest and strict training, and by next Spring he ought to be all right again.

"The Babe is 31 and, like many another player, the ailment which made an operation necessary has weakened his legs. He is not in the condition to play regularly for any length of time."

While Ruth is idling, Bob Veach will play right field against right-handers and Ben Paschal against southpaws.

With Ruth absent, Bucky Harris took a gamble on Sam Jones and started Curly Ogden against the Hugmen. Curly has won no games to speak of since the Senators won the championship, but he was a good fellow when he had it and Harris figured that possibly he had it today.

This theory was perfectly sound until the Yanks knocked it lopsided in the seventh. Sam Jones was holding the Senators down to a 3 to 1 lead and when the Yanks opened five runs into his lap it was time for the post-mortem investigation of the tragedy.

Wanninger Opens Fire.

Wanninger started the big doings with a double against the right-field fence. Squire Jones outfooted a bunt to Ogden, and Wanninger drew rein at third. It was a simple matter for him to score on Dugan's single to left, which also advanced Jones to second.

Gehrig, back to his old tactics, Combs again a bunted, and Ogden, picking up the ball, saw nothing better to do with it than fling it over Bluege's head at third. Goslin snatched the pill up in short left and speared Jones in the back as he plowed into the plate.

This pair of Senatorial miscues put Dugan on third and Combs on second and they tallied when Meusel singled to right. Bob died a-stealing, but Gehrig walked and Schang conveyed him to third with a one-baser to right.

The idea that Mr. Ogden might be slightly dull and void flowered in Bucky Harris's bean at this interesting moment and so he sent Allan Russell to relieve the pitcher. While serving up to Ward, Gehrig and Schang peeled off a double steal, Lou sliding into the home terminal.

The Senators scored a run in the first on McNeely's walk, Harris's single and a fielder's choice, which nobody else, stated, in less technical language of a futile effort by Gehrig to head McNeely off at the plate when he was already there. Jones twisted out of further danger, but wandered into more annoyance in the second when he walked three men and let Ogden mace him for a single. The Senators didn't score for the simple reason that Ruel tried to go from first to third on the hit and found that Combs possessed a tossing arm.

Goslin Gets a Triple.

In the eighth Goslin tripled and scored on Judge's infield out. Peck walked after Bluege had singled, and there was a great fuss when Joe Harris came up to bat for Ruel, with Leibold running for Peck. Joe smacked a husky fly, which Veach dragged down to earth out in distant right. Then Ruether batted for Russell and grounded to Ward.

Much throbbing of the public pulse in the ninth. McNeely singled; but was forced by Harris, who moved to second on Rice's out and scored on Goslin's second three-bagger. Judge walked, placing the tying run on first, but what of it?

Intercollegiate Golf Title Is Won by Yale Team

YALE PLAYERS WIN COLLEGE GOLF TITLE

Finish Tourney With 1,269 Score—Princeton Is 2d, Williams 3d in Play at Montclair.

CUMMINGS TIES FOR MEDAL

Is Even With Stratton as 32 Qualify for Individual Championship, Which Starts Today.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 24.—Another trophy emblematic of athletic superiority was started New Havenward today to add to the congestion of the Yale trophy room. It was the big silver cup which annually goes to the institution whose representatives turn in the four low aggregate scores in the 72-hole competition of the Intercollegiate Golf League.

The Yale team, led by Dexter Cummings, the individual champion, won the title hands down with a commanding lead of eleven points over its nearest rival, Princeton. The winning total of the Eli quartet was 1,269, while that of the men from Nassau was 1,280, which enabled it to nose out Williams College by a single point and Dartmouth by three strokes. Harvard, one of the favorites before the 1925 event started over the Montclair Golf Club course yesterday, fell down badly, due to the collapse of two of its most dependable linksmen, Captain Clark Hodder and Charles Pierson, and trailed in a poor fifth with a total of 1,295.

The four other colleges that entered teams for the competition—Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Wesleyan and Penn State—finished far in the rear of the first five and in the order named.

The thirty-six holes played today wrote finis on the team championship, but it also furnished the starting impulse for the most important part of the week's proceedings. The double round, in addition to having a bearing on the team title, determined the thirty-two qualifiers for the individual championship which will be decided by match play starting tomorrow morning.

Dartmouth Qualifies Five.

When noses were counted at the cessation of hostilities the results showed that Dartmouth was leading in numbers with five men eligible, Yale and Williams coming next with four, followed by Princeton and Syracuse, each of whom qualified three, and by Harvard and Pennsylvania, who will be represented by two men each. There were nine other colleges which qualified a solitary man, but among these are several of the most likely candidates for the title now held by Yale. They were Washington University, St. Louis, with a most worthy knight in the person of Eddie Held, a former public links champion and an outstanding figure in Western golf affairs; the University of Washington, ably represented by A. J. (Jack) Westland, a young "husky" who defeated Bronson Stein for the Washington State amateur title last year and also finished second in the State open; Tulane, with G. Fred Lamprecht, who has been cleaning up consistently in the South of late; the University of Alabama, with Bob Baugh, runner-up for the Southern intercollegiate title this year; the University of California, represented by the stalwart Lauren Upson, who holds the Pacific Coast intercollegiate title, and Wesleyan, certain to be somewhere in the hunt, with Stephen Berrien as its knight.

With so many sharpshooters gunning for the medal it is all the more to the credit of Cummings that he succeeded in tying for the medal. His rival for the honor was E. P. Stratton of Williams College, a Brae-Burn golfer, who has held the Massachusetts State junior title. Their scores for the two rounds played today were as alike as the proverbial two peas, each taking a 77 for their morning round and following that up with a 75 in the afternoon, giving them totals of 152.

Close on their heels came Henry W. Comstock of Williams and Held of Washington "U," tied at 155. In getting up into the running Held overcame a difficult handicap by turning in a 78, the best score made during the day and a score that prophesies no easy road for the men who have to face him during the next few days. Lamprecht and Frank E. Wattles Jr. of Yale were tied for fifth, a stroke higher, the latter losing an excellent chance for the medal by taking an 82 for his second round after starting off with a brilliant 74 in the morning.

Many Stars Fall.

Westland, Baugh and Berrien followed with 157s to show for their strenuous efforts and then came two Tigers, Burton Mudge Jr., the Princeton leader, and L. E. Hart, who was obliged to withdraw. The last men to get in the championship flight were Mark Stuart of St. Johns, S. K. Allman of Pennsylvania and J. B. Parker Jr. of Princeton, all of them with totals of 165, which was the notch at which the thirty-two places was used up.

There were some notable college linksmen who were left out as a result of the low scoring, the most prominent being Clark Hodder of Harvard, the Crimson leader, who had three rounds under 80 offset by finishing round of 90. Regarded as a certain qualifier when he set off for his last round, Hodder ran into one bad hole after another and his card was a curious one with 6s and 7s abounding. There were a number of others of prominence in the list of failures, Pierson of Harvard being one, but there was some excuse for his high scoring, for he was only recently innoculated and was in no fit condition even to be around, let alone try to play.

In tying Stratton for the medal Cummings had his work cut out, for it was not through consistently good golf. He was continually wandering off the line, and the Montclair course isn't the kind that permits much of this to go on without exacting penalties. Only his brilliant recoveries when he was in trouble up to his shoulders and the sinking of long putts saved him. He started the morning round with a fifteen-foot putt for a birdie at the first hole and then offset it by failing to get down his putt for a 4 at the third. The holing of a twenty-footer gave him his par at the fourth after being in trouble off the tee, and he was again in trouble at the long sixth although he managed to get his par. He played the next three holes in two under par figures, but took a 6 at the eleventh, where he hooked into the woods and a 4 at the twelfth, where he required three putts. Two pars, the second by means of a long putt, and then another 6, due to another bad drive. He was one over par on the next three holes, finishing with a five.

Is Continually In Trouble.

In the afternoon round he was out in 36, in spite of two 6's and a 5 on the first hole, but he was continually in trouble coming in and only the dropping of putts of considerable size enabled him to get a 39 home. Stratton had two well-played rounds, except for a rough patch starting at the thirteenth hole in the morning, where he ran into a 6 and four 5's.

The first-round cards:

Out—
Cummings	3	4	5	4	4	3	4	4	36
Stratton	5	4	3	5	4	5	4	4	39
In—
Cummings	3	5	4	4	4	6	3	4	5—39—77
Stratton	4	5	3	6	5	5	3	5	4—40—79

The second round cards:

Out—
Cummings	5	4	3	5	2	6	4	3	6—36
Stratton	4	4	4	5	3	4	4	4	4—36
In—
Cummings	5	4	3	4	6	5	3	5	4—39—75
Stratton	5	5	4	4	5	3	4	5	5—39—75

In making his 73 Held played beautiful golf all the way and except for the fourth hole, where he took a 7 by driving into the woods and taking three putts, he was never far away from par. He had a birdie 3 at the seventh, reaching the green with a drive and pitch, and another birdie on the ninth, where he sank a fifteen-foot putt. After turning he got a birdie 3 at the tenth by pitching dead to the pin, but he missed putts at the twelfth and fourteenth holes.

His card:

Out	4	4	4	7	3	5	3	2	4—37
In	3	4	4	4	5	5	3	4	4—36—73

At the business meeting of the association E. W. Haley of Williams was elected President for the coming year, H. S. Stimson of Harvard Secretary and George Hackl Jr. of Princeton Treasurer. The Merion Cricket Club was awarded first choice for the 1926 tournament, with Wykagyl second choice.

Miss Browne Quits Golf, Starts East to Regain Net Laurels

LOS ANGELES, June 24 (AP).—Miss Mary K. Browne, former national tennis champion and runner-up last year for the national women's golf championship, was on her way East today. She has laid aside her golf clubs in favor of the racquet, with which she hopes to regain the net title she held nearly ten years ago. It was learned that Miss Browne intends to participate in all forthcoming Eastern tennis tournament, including the America versus England matches for the Wightman Cup, which will be held in August at Forest Hills, L. I. She will play in the doubles with Miss Helen Wills, national singles champion.

MANION LOSES GOLF TITLE.

Trans-Mississippi Champion Bows to Anderson on 19th Green.

OMAHA, Neb., June 24.—(AP)—James Manion of St. Louis, who won the title last year, was defeated in the first round today by Don Anderson, also of St. Louis, in the Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament. Anderson played the champion to a standstill, being square at the ninth hole and the same at the end of eighteen, winning the nineteenth hole.

The summaries:

First Round—Don Anderson, St. Louis, defeated James Manion, St. Louis, 1 up (19 holes); Bob McKee, Des Moines, defeated Lawson Watts St. Louis, 1 up; Frank Watts, St. Louis, defeated C. Bronson, Minneapolis, 5 and 4; W. H. Ingham, Des Moines, defeated Ralph Dold, Omaha, 2 and 1; Gene Slattery, Omaha, defeated Adrian Howard of Minneapolis, 6 and 5; Dr. Albison, Minneapolis, defeated Joe Tucker, Lincoln, Neb., 1 up; Arthur Bartlett, Ottumwa, Iowa, defeated L. Par 72.

TROON, Scotland, June 24 (AP).—Over the rolling green fairway and fearsome sand dunes of Prestwick, where more than sixty years ago a few sturdy Scottish golfers organized the first of the open championships, the British title event will have its annual renewal tomorrow with competitors from three continents and as many islands.

In all, eighty-three golfers have qualified in the seventy-two-hole struggle In the list are three who have come from America to try for the trophy, Macdonald Smith, Jim Barnes and Joe Kirkwood. Title delegation is the smallest to hold favor for the British title since the war, but the British do not consider the trio any the less menacing to the pride and prestige of their own game.

So highly do they regard the prospects of an American once again winning the championship that they have made one of the trio, Smith, favorite in the betting at odds of 5 to 1. Barnes and Kirkwood also are among the players against whose chances of capturing the cup rather short odds are offered.

Three times in the last five years an American has won the British open title, and in each of these five championships Americans have filled two of the first three positions at the finish. Even though only three transatlantic professionals have entered the running this year, similar results would surprise no one on this side.

Irish Star in the Lead.

There are a number of other capable golfers from allen ports who hold promise of championship form. From the Irish Free State there is Moses O'Neill, who led all the rest from the qualifying round ended last night with the best score of 146.

From France comes Arnaud Massey, who fourteen years ago won the British open event, the first foreigner to do so, and there is also Aubrey Boomer, a native of Jersey and now attached to the St. Cloud Club of Paris.

All the great British professionals, save James Braid and George Gadd, who failed to qualify, are entered, and the chances of ten or more of them are highly considered. This select group includes Abe Mitchell, George Duncan, A. Compston, the two Whitcombe and several others of their general caliber. The weather prospects are ideal. Brilliant sunshine looked down upon the Ayrshire coast today, as it has done almost steadily for months; the sea was almost as calm as a lake, so slight were the winds which can have such a powerful influence on golf in this neighborhood.

Bunkers Are Many and Bad.

The Prestwick course, which has been altered since the last time it was the scene of the open championships a few weeks prior to the outbreak of the great war, is fast, keen and tricky, and unless rain falls tonight, tomorrow and Friday, it is likely that many golfers will throw away their hopes in trying to make their pitches stick to the greens and their putts keep in proper line and go the proper distance.

The course measures 6,644 yards and par is 72. Some holes fringe the sea; others run dangerously near the railway, and there are bunkers galore, one of them, "The Cardinal," being the vastest and most dreaded bunker that nature and the whims of golf architects ever united to produce. It stretches across two fairways, fully one hundred yards long, then makes a semi-circle and stretches back again, the whole being in the shape of a huge pocket. Outside of the pocket there is the fairway—inside a patch of awful rough, perhaps fifty yards square, and at the top of the pocket runs a little river that traverses the course from one end to the other.

Favorites to Compete at Velodrome in 100-Kilometer Contest Tomorrow.

A field of twenty-six cycling teams will go to the post in the 100-kilometer (62½ miles) team race which will be held at the New York Velodrome tomorrow night. Among the favorite combinations are Franco Georgetti, crack Italian rider, and Alec McSmith; Cecil Walker and Harry Horan, Alf Goullet and Bobby Walthour, Freddie Spencer and Harris Horder, Pete Moskops and Orlando Piani, Anthony Beckman and Willie Grimm, and Ray Eaton and Willie Spencer.

Navy Crew Welcomed Home; Sylvester Is Elected Captain

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 24.—Members of the Naval Academy crew, victors at the Poughkeepsie regatta on Monday, were welcomed warmly on their return to Annapolis this afternoon, preparatory to their departure for their different ships. John Sylvester of Denver, Col., has been elected captain of the crew for next season. He rowed No. 6. Sylvester is a fine student as well as an oarsman, having stood among the first two or three in his class ever since he entered the Academy. He has learned all of his rowing under Glendon Jr., starting in the plebe crew of 1923 and rowing for the last two seasons on the varsity. The graduation of the class of 1925 cuts the Navy varsity in half, those who are leaving being Schieke, Bell, Chillingworth and King.

HOMANS AGAIN WINS JERSEY GOLF TITLE

16-Year-Old Player Captures the Junior Crown for 3d Time, Beating Beger, 2 Up.

CONVENT, N. J., June 24.—Eugene Vanderpool Homans of the Englewood Golf Club, a nephew of Wynant Vanderpool, President of the United States Golf Association, today won the New Jersey State junior championship for the third straight year over the Morris County Golf Club links.

The final this year was closer than in 1923 or 1924, for Homans had to go to the home green to win by 2 up over F. J. (Chick) Beger of the Municipal Golf Club, Weequahic Park, Newark. Homans was 16 years old last February.

Homans and Beger fought a close match most of the way. The former was 2 up on the first three holes and, after the next three were halved in par 4's, Beger won the seventh and eighth and they turned all square. Beger sank a twelve-foot putt for a 4 to win the tenth, but Homans, with a birdie 4 on the 513-yard eleventh, squared the match. Getting off the line on his tee shots then cost Beger the twelfth and thirteenth. He got one of these back on the fourteenth, but Homans left practically no openings on the last four holes.

The cards:

Out—
Par	4	5	3	4	4	4	5	4	5—38
Homans	4	6	3	4	4	4	5	6	5—41
Beger	5	6	4	4	4	4	4	5	5—41
In—
Par	5	5	4	3	4	3	4	3	4—35—73
Homans	5	4	5	3	6	4	4	3	4—38—79
Beger	4	5	6	4	5	4	4	3	5—40—81

In his semi-final round Homans played three under par for eleven holes and quickly squelched W. B. Sullivan of Essex Fells, the qualifying round medalist. Beger won a 19-hole semi-final from Quincy Ryan of Baltusrol, when the latter's approach shot on the first extra hole was trapped.

The summaries:

Championship Eight (Semi-Finals)—Eugene Homans, Englewood, defeated W. B. Sullivan, Essex Falls, 3 and 7; F. J. Beger, Municipal, defeated Quincy Ryan, Baltusrol, 1 up (19 holes).

Final—Homans defeated Beger, 2 up.

Second Eight (Semi-Finals)—John Gwaltney, Baltusrol, defeated Owen Winston Jr., Somerset Hills, 1 up; Reggie Rollinson, Colonia, defeated J. J. Mullan, Roselle, 5 and 3.

Final—Rollinson defeated Gwaltney, 2 and 1.

Third Eight (Semi-Finals)—F. C. Reynolds Jr., Essex County, defeated Elliott Shanley, Essex County, 3 and 1; William Hayes, Point Pleasant, defeated F. F. Lawrence, Canoe Brook, 1 up.

Final—Hayes defeated Reynolds 3 and 1.

Fourth Eight (Semi-Finals)—J. C. Blanchard Jr., Essex Fells, defeated M. B. Ford, Essex Fells, 2 and 1; William Goodlove, Ridgewood, defeated Paul Williams, Upper Montclair, 4 and 3.

Final—Blanchard defeated Goodlove, 4 and 2.

HULBERT ON HIS WAY WEST.

A. A. U. President to Inspect District Headquarters on the Coast.

Murray Hulbert, President of the Amateur Athletic Union, left last night for the Pacific Coast, where he will attend the national A. A. U. track and field championships which will be held in San Francisco July 3, 4 and 5. While on his tour, President Hulbert also will visit various A. A. U. district headquarters in the West and Middle West. His first stop will be at Los Angeles, where he will confer with officials of the Southern Pacific Association.

Later he will go to Portland, Ore., to pay his respects to the Pacific Northwest Association, and on his return to the East will visit the Inter-Mountain Association in Salt Lake City, the Rocky Mountain Association in Denver and the Western Association in St. Louis. With this tour Mr. Hulbert will have completed a visit to every A. A. U. district in the nited States this year.

FISCHER FALTERS BUT WINS AT NET

Philadelphia Star Beats Stratford of California in National College Tennis.

LANG OF COLUMBIA LOSES

Is Put Out by Chandler, Who Will Meet Thalheimer, the Conqueror of Ingraham of Harvard.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—Two Western tennis stars advanced to the semi-final round of the national intercollegiate tourney at the Merion Cricket Club at Haverford today. Louis Thalheimer, representing the University of Texas, defeated W. W. Ingraham, Harvard, 6—3, 11—9, and G. E. Chandler, California, defeated Jerry Lang, Columbia, 6—2, 6—4, in the fifth round.

Cranston Holman, Stanford, defeated John Whitebeck, Harvard, 6—3, 6—1, and Carl Fischer, Osteopathy, won from Gerald Stratford, California, 6—3, 7—5.

On Friday Thalheimer will play Chandler, the winner to meet either Carl Fischer or Holman, contenders in the other bracket for the championship. Tomorrow's play will be in doubles only.

Thalheimer today played his usual passing game and scored repeatedly with his backhand. On several occasions he drove his Harvard rival from side to side, then, getting him out of position, lobbed for an easy kill. Ingraham played well at the net, scoring several placements. By employing a steady chop, which puzzled the Texan to a great extent, he forced the games into long deuce affairs before conceding them.

Ingraham First to Score.

Thalheimer, however, came through in the later stages of the match to win from Ingraham, who had trouble at critical stages in putting over a strong drive which would have meant a sure point for him. Ingraham took the first two games of the opening set, but Thalheimer then ran off four successive games, using his passing shots to advantage.

The Harvard player used some effective overhead drives to win the seventh game. The Texan broke through the Easterner's service to lead at 5—3, and won the set on his own service in the ninth. In the second set the Crimson star rallied when facing match point, and prolonged the set to twenty games before reaching a verdict. Thalheimer led at 5—4 and 15—40. He had match point, but netted twice, and the game went to deuce. Brilliant play featured the match from this point on, with each man taking his own serve, several games of which were decided at love.

With the score 9—all and 30—all, the Texan scored an ace and then won the game when Ingraham outed. The final game, the twentieth, was decided when the representative of the Lone Star State scored a pretty placement and was aided by two errors.

Fischer Rallies to Win.

Fischer, who once held the title, started off well against Stratford but struck a streak of erratic playing and seemed on the road to defeat when he suddenly rallied and ran out, the victor, in brilliant style.

Chandler displayed fine all-round court ability in his match with Lang, being effective both at the net and in back court. Possessing a severe service and a peculiar cut on his drive, Chandler had the Columbia athlete on the go all through the match. He took the lead at the start and kept it throughout. Lang showed to advantage in the fourth and sixth games of the first set, which he won by some pretty work at the net.

In the second set the play was close, each contestant winning on his own service until the count was 4—all in games. Then Chandler took the lead at 5—4 on his service and broke through Lang's service to win a love game, which resulted in the set and match.

The point score of the Chandler-Lang match follows:

FIRST SET.

Lang	0	4	4	4	2	2	4	1	23	2

SECOND SET.

Chandler	6	4	4	4	3	4	3	5	4	41	6
Lang	4	6	1	6	5	5	5	3	2	0	37	4

Winfield Steeplechase Captured by Carabinier at Aqueduct

CARABINIER WINNER OF WINFIELD 'CHASE

French-Bred Jumper Takes Aqueduct Feature Easily From Vox Populi II.

SERENADER IS A VICTOR

First Home in Castleton Handicap, Shouldering 140 Pounds—Lightship Also in Front.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Running in the interest of J. C. Byer, a Pittsburgh steel manufacturer, although carrying the colors of Thomas H. McCreery, the French-bred gelding Carabinier yesterday afternoon won the Winfield Steeplechase Handicap at the Aqueduct course, carrying top weight of 153 pounds and conceding from fourteen to twenty pounds to his three opponents. He ran the two miles in 4:12 1-5 over a baked and dusty course and earned $3,325 for his new owner. The McCreery entry of Carabinier and Thorndale was the 4-to-5 favorite. McNair had the leg up and rode a well-judged race.

Mr. Byer is a new recruit to steeplechasing and both Carabinier and Thorndale were included in the sale made by Mr. McCreery, who had them under lease from the estate of the late Julius Fleischmann. It was reported at the track yesterday afternoon that the purchase prices were $20,000 for Carabinier and $15,000 for Thorndale. It was Carabinier's second straight victory, he having won the Meadow Brook Steeplechase Handicap at Belmont Park his last time out.

While the race through the field was the stake feautre of the day, a better contest developed in the Castleton Hightweight Handicap, in which William Daniel's Serenader, by Bachelor's Double—Golden Harp, led a field of eight home over the course of six and a half furlongs. He carried top weight of 140 pounds, gave away from four to thirty pounds and won in a driving finish by a length and a half from Robert L. Gerry's three-year-old Peanuts, in under 110 pounds. The winner was ridden by Johnson and was the 2-to-1 favorite.

Boatman Makes the Pace.

Only four went to the post in the Winfield Steeplechase Handicap and three of them kept well together through most of the journey. Thorndale was never a factor. He was outrun all the way and came home twenty lengths behind the third horse.

The four were away evenly and Mergler showed the way on the Brookmeade Stable's Boatman for half the course. McNair did not hurry with Carabinier and the gelding, which is probably the best jumper in the country, was rated along in third place four or five lengths back of the pacemaker. When ready McNair took him to the front at the last and won breezing by three parts of a length from H. W. Maxwell's Vox Populi II. Boatman tired toward the end and Vox Populi II, also French bred, easily took the place by a matter of ten lengths.

The horses were at the post for five minutes before the start of the Castleton Handicap, principally because of the bad acting of Serenader, which simply refused to face the webbing. When finally sent away they were in fine alignment. Peanuts was the first to show from his post position on the rail, but he was pinched back and before he could get going again he was in last position. He had all the bad racing luck of the field, as he was interfered with when Lucky Play crossed over at the quarter pole in the homestretch. Despite all his difficulties, he ran a remarkable race, although he was in under a comparative feather.

The Belair Stud's three-year-old filly Beatrice, with 118 pounds up, was the early pacemaker, but did not have the foot to stay with the leaders. Lucky Play took the lead around the turn, giving way to Serenader in the stretch drive. The three placed horses made a brilliant race down the long homestretch. Serenader handled his heavy burden well, but in the stretch he bore over, impeding Peanuts and Lucky Play. Both Colitletti and Clarence Kummer filed claims of foul, but they were not allowed. The fractional times of the race were as follows: 0:23 2-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:12 1-5, 1:18 2-5.

Man o' War Filly Wins.

W. M. Jefford's Man o' War filly Lightship gained an easy victory in the mile race for the Chesterbrook Purse, in which only three went to the post. The race was limited to the three-year-olds, and her opponents were H. C. Fisher's Panic and William Ziegler Jr.'s filly Gamble. The colt conceded nine pounds to the fillies and failed to beat either of them.

Lightship, which was the 2-to-7 favorite, had McAtee in the saddle and he took her into the lead in the first furlong. The three made a pretty race of it for a part of the run down the homestretch. Gamble made a game effort and drew up on Lightship under punishment. McAtee gave his mount a couple of tastes of the whip and she drew away to win by nearly two lengths. A length and a half separated the other two. The race was run in 1:39.

The Rancocas Stable's Eric had to be many pounds the best of the field of twelve two-year-olds that ran the five furlongs out of the chute in the opener. Like most of the Negofols, he doesn't like to break and was one of the last to get going. Once he did get under way he was many lengths back of the leaders and Laverne Fator had a task to find a hole to get through. He had to take the colt all over the track to gain a clear passage finally. When free he closed rapidly and was up to take the money by a head from Light View. Mrs. W. M. Jefford's Golden Broom filly South Wind made up a lot of ground to take the show money by a length from Gareth, which stopped after showing early speed. The winner was the 7-to-5 favorite.

Flying Ebony Being Pointed For Latonia Derby Saturday

LATONIA, Ky., June 24 (AP).—Flying Ebony, Kentucky Derby winner, will be a starter in the $25,000 Latonia Derby next Saturday. This seemed assured yesterday when William Duke, trainer of the Cochran horses, wired asking for stable reservations for the crack three-year-old. If Flying Ebony wins the Latonia event he will be the first horse to take down the extra $5,000 offered by the Kentucky Jockey Club to the owner of the horse winning both derbies. Indications are that eleven horses will face the barrier in the Latonia Derby.

Place and show: Serenader, 4 to 5, 3 to 5; Peanuts, 3 to 1, 8 to 5; Lucky Play, 3 to 5.

MAJOR SWEEPS KING FROM TENNIS COURT

Springs Surprise by Beating Ranking Star in Two Short Sets at Travers Island.

TILDEN GAINS THE FINAL

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., June 24.—Cedric Major established himself as one of the ablest tennis players in the metropolitan district today. In the fourth round of the Eastern New York State championship on the New York A. C. courts at Travers Island, the West Side Tennis Club representative defeated Dr. George King at 6—4, 6—4, thereby earning the right to meet Vincent Richards in the semi-final tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Dr. King ranks twelfth in the country and second in this section. There are some who think he ought to be placed higher in the national list and there is no gainsaying the fact that the metropolitan star has the game to carry him higher. He is one of the smoothest, most polished exponents of the California style of play in the East, with a first class service, powerful ground strokes and a volleying ability that makes him a serious menace every time he goes to the net.

This is the player that Major, an unranked performer in both the national and metropolitan list, defeated this afternoon. The West Side man is not a newcomer. He is one of the best known players around New York, but he has never gone far. Apparently he now is headed up the ladder. In the metropolitan clay court championship last week he showed the calibre of his game by taking the first set from Manuel Alonso and leading him at 5—0 in the third set. He has had his difficulties in coming along in this tournament against players of considerably less ability than King, but against none of them did he play the sort of tennis that he showed today.

Major Matches Rival's Attack.

Major met Dr. King at his own style of play, matching him drive for drive and volley for volley. It was his ground strokes that carried him to victory, that broke up King's rushes to the net and that kept the New York A. C. star on the defensive a great part of the time. King did not get the pace in his smashing drives nor could he maintain as good length on his shots in the furious rallies from back court. Major simply pasted everything, passing his opponent again and again and putting the ball away quickly. Only in the most desperate efforts was King able to keep the ball in play.

King was not as steady as usual and did not seem to be able to get as much pace on his shots, but this was owing largely to the fact that he was up against the sort of shots that did not give him time to get set. Hurried in his stroking and forced to make many of his shots from a cramped position as Major's pounded his baseline, he could not help but make errors. His service did not stand up against the west side man as well as it usually does, for Major thrived on speed and pasted it for placements again and again.

William Tilden reached the final round of the championship, defeating Ralph Bagge at 6—2, 6—3, 6—1 in the semi-finals. He awaits the winner of the match between Richards and Major and the final will be played Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The champion was at his best today. At the start, and particularly in the final set, he played tennis of the most brilliant sort. Bagge, playing a game that would have made Tilden a good players, was helpless against the bewildering speed and deception of the other.

Takes First Five Games.

Tilden took the first five games with a rush and then slowed down. After Bagge had taken the next two games he brought the set to an end. Bagge's reverse twist service and chop strokes enabled him to carry the second to all on service in the second set. Tilden, playing Baggs at his own game and chopping constantly, went away into the lead, pausing to drop another game before taking the set. In the third set the champion thrilled the gallery with the beauty and perfection of his play. Of the nine points he scored in the first two games he won seven on placements and another on a service ace. Bagge was completely helpless to hold off the Philadelphian's attack and a great part of the time was watching the ball cut the corners or shoot across court on a stinging volley placement. One game was all that he got though he still was playing the best tennis he was capable of, that is, the best that Tilden would let him play.

The doubles championship got under way with Tilden and Donald Strahan of Philadelphia and Elliott H. Binsen and Herbert Bowman heading the upper and lower halves, respectively. Tilden and Strahan drew a bye and in the second round defeated W. C. Wells and B. Symonds at 6—0, 6—2. Binsen and Bowman advanced by eliminating H. C. Winter and E. W. Wilson at 6—1, 6—0.

Singles—Fourth Round—Cedric Major defeated Dr. George King, 6—4, 6—4.
Semi-final Round—William T. Tilden 2d defeated Ralph Bagge, 6—2, 6—3, 6—1.
Doubles—First Round—Elliott H. Binsen and Herbert L. Bowman defeated H. C. Winter and E. W. Wilson, 6—1, 6—0; Anton F. Von Bernuth and Harry Wolf won from Hodgman and Moore by default.
Second Round—William T. Tilden 2d and Donald Strahan defeated W. C. Wells and B. Symonds, 6—0, 6—2.

MISS STINE BROKE RECORD.

A. A. U. Finds Her Leap of 17 Feet Set World's Broad-Jump Mark.

In a recheck of the performances made in the women's tryouts at Paterson, N. J., last Saturday for the metropolitan team which the A. A. U. will send to Pasadena, Cal., for the national women's track and field championships on July 11, it was discovered by local officials yesterday that Miss Elizabeth Stine of Teaneck, N. J., a student at Savage School, had smashed the world's record for the running broad jump. Miss Stine won the event with a leap of seventeen feet.

An examination of the records disclosed that the world's mark is credited to Mejsil Kova of Czechoslovakia who, in the Paris Olympics, cleared 5.16 meters—approximately 16 feet 11⅛ inches.

Post and Paddock

There was an epidemic of claims in the first race at Aqueduct yesterday afternoon, thirteen having been dropped into the box. The Rancocas Stable lost Eric, the winner, to William B. Stafford for $4,000. Mrs. O. C. Rasch's Light View, which ran second, was claimed by J. D. Odom for a like sum. Robert L. Gerry lost Apostle, which he bred himself, to John McCumbridge for $4,000.

The present claiming rule is raising havoc with the racing at Aqueduct, it being one of the causes of the heavy scratching. The overnight entry was sixty-two, an average of twelve for a race. A third of the entry was eliminated by scratching, leaving forty-one to go in the six races, an average of less than seven to a race.

Laverne Fator, who is leading the jockeys on the metropolitan tracks, added another victory to his score with Eric in the opener. He was second once and unplaced once with his three mounts.

Herman Black, who is a resident of New Jersey but a large stockholder in the new Coney Island race track just outside of Cincinnati, was at Aqueduct yesterday after returning from a visit to the Ohio city. He reported that everything will be in readiness for the opening of the new course on Monday, July 6.

Gifford A. Cochran's Flying Ebony and H. C. Fisher's Swope were shipped to Kentucky yesterday to run in the Latonia Derby on Saturday. The Rancocas Stable's Silver Fox did not go. There were eleventh-hour changes of mind. Sam Hildreth had Silver Fox all ready to send to the car and then decided not to. William Duke did not want to send Flying Ebony after his defeat on Tuesday, but Mr. Cochran gave the word to ship him.

Four first choices made their backers happy by coming home in front.

Books for the Empire City meeting, which will begin at Yonkers on Wednesday, July 8, have been distributed to the horsemen by Secretary George W. Gall.

Aga Khan's Zionist Is First In the £5,000 Irish Derby

CURRAGH, Ireland, June 24 (AP).—The Aga Khan's Zionist won the Irish Derby, for £5,000, run here today. Mrs. W. Raphael's Warminster was second and B. L. Slocock's Brighter London was third. Eight ran. Zionist is by Spearmint out of Judea.

MRS. SOHST WINS IN TITLE TENNIS

Mrs. Pritchard Also Gains Semi-Final Round in Connecticut State Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., June 24.—As a result of today's matches in the Connecticut women's tennis singles championship tournament on the New Canaan Country Club courts Mrs. W. H. Pritchard of New York will meet Miles Anna Page of Wayne, Pa., in the upper half of the semi-final round and Mrs. Theodore Sohst of Brooklyn will meet Mrs. Bennett Bronson of Waterbury in the lower half. Following Mrs. Bronson's impressive 6—1, 6—3 victory over Miss Martha Ewers in the third round today, the possibility loomed of a Connecticut woman winning the title for the first time since play for the cup began.

Mrs. Sohst had little trouble disposing of Miss Caroline Bannister of New York in today's third-round match, but Mrs. Pritchard had a real battle on her hands to win from Miss Croma Winn of Mountain Lakes. Both played a careful back-court game, Mrs. Pritchard taking the first set, 6—4, and losing the second, 2—6. In the third Miss Winn, leading 4—3, abandoned her careful game and went to the net to make killings, but dubbed her shots and lost the set and the match.

In the doubles Mrs. Edward Raymond of Bedford, N. Y., and Mrs. Sohst won the feature match from Mrs. Pritchard and Miss Winn, 7—5, 2—6, 6—4.

The juniors played one semi-final match today, Miss Virginia Hillary of Philadelphia defeating Miss Elinor Colket of Bryn Mawr, 6—1, 6—1.

Singles—Third Round—Mrs. W. H. Pritchard defeated Miss Croma Winn, 6—4, 2—6, 7—5; Miss Anne Page defeated Miss Dorothy Andrus, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Theodore Sohst defeated Miss Caroline Bannister, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Bennett Bronson defeated Miss Martha Ewers, 6—1, 6—2.

Doubles—Second Round—Mrs. Martin Vorhaus and Miss Jessie Gott defaulted to Mrs. Edward Raymond and Mrs. Sohst.

Third Round—Miss Anne Page and Miss Virginia Hillary defeated Mrs. Walter Bartlett and Miss Deirdre O'Shea, 6—0, 6—5; Mrs. Bennett Bronson and Mrs. Henry T. Eaton defeated Miss Dorothy Andrus and Miss Eleanor Colket, 6—2, 6—1; Mrs. Edward Raymond and Mrs. Sohst defeated Mrs. W. H. Pritchard and Miss Croma Winn, 7—5, 2—6, 6—4; Miss Evelyn Pitaka and Miss Marguerite Landini defeated Miss Elinor Crew and Miss Madelina Pressprich, 6—4, 6—1.

Junior Singles—Second Round—Miss Anna Page defeated Miss Barbara Humphreys, 6—2, 6—2.

Third Round—Miss Virginia Hillary defeated Miss Hope Fay, 6—1, 6—0; Miss Madeline Childress defeated Miss Theodora Sohst, 6—3, 6—3.

Semi-Final—Miss Hillary defeated Miss Colket, 6—1, 6—1.

Lacoste and Borotra Beat Fyzee and Lal at Wimbledon—Rain Keeps U. S. Stars Idle.

KING WILL ATTEND TODAY

Queen Also to Be Present When Mlle. Lenglen Meets Miss Ryan —Washer of Belgium Wins.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—A cold, drizzling rain this afternoon spoiled the Wimbledon tennis meet, but there was sufficient play to gremit Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Ryan, formerly of California, to defeat, in the ladies' doubles, the famous pair, Miss E. Colyer and Mrs. R. Lycett, better known as Miss Joan Austen.

"The children," as Wimbledon called them when they first aroused attention two years ago, seemed overawed in the first set by the reputation of their rivals. They lost it at 6—0, but in the second set they put up a really great fight. They opposed extraordinary agility with consumate court craft, but it never gave them command of the ball and in the end they lost at 6—4.

Miss Colyer's service won, however, several aces even from the great Suzanne Lenglen, and Mrs. Lycett's cross drives, delivered with great force and speed, surprised her experienced opponents.

Miss Ryan's play was disappointing, and her chances with Mlle. Lenglen tomorrow are unpromising. As for Mlle. Lenglen she always was where the ball was coming and played with all her old confidence. It was her first appearance here this year. She seemed as completely unapproachable as ever.

In the other two games the French pair, Jean Borotra and R. Lacoste, had unexpected difficulty in disposing of a couple from India, A. H. Fyzee and Jagat Mohan Lal, by 2—6, 6—3, 8—6, 6—3, while J. Washer of Belgium easily disposed of Vse Windop by 6—1, 2—6, 6—3. No American men had a chance to appear on the courts today.

Americans Unable to Play.

WIMBLEDON, June 24 (AP).—Today was a dull tennis day at Wimbledon. Ray Casey of San Francisco and John Hennessey of Indianapolis were unable to play their doubles match against R. W. Heath and A. R. Taylor owing to weather conditions.

The prospects tonight were that the event for which all the Wimbledon fans are waiting, the match between Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Ryan, would be fought out on the centre court tomorrow in the presence of King George and Queen Mary. Tomorrow's program had not been definitely determined upon tonight, but it seemed likely that Casey and Hennessey would play in their third round of the singles and that their doubles match would be held over another day.

MOESKOPS TRIUMPHS IN SPRINT TITLE RACE

Scores First Victory of Season in Championship Series, Beating Walker and Walthour.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., June 24.—Pete Moeskops, world's cycling champion, scored his first victory this season in the American sprint championship competition when he defeated Bobby Walthour and Cecil Walker in the third mile event at the Velodrome here tonight. In the heat to decide fourth place Fred Spencer, Plainfield star, trimmed Arthur Spencer, champion, and Alf Goullet.

Moeskops's victory boosted his standing, which now is as follows: Bobby Walthour, 19; Fred Spencer, 18; Pete Moeskops, 13; Harris Horder, 13; Cecil Walker, 12; Fred Spencer, 7; Alfred Goullet, 3; Arthur Spencer, 3.

The summaries:

Two-Thirds-Mile Handicap (Amateur)—Won by Albert Barnhardt, Bayview Wheelmen (18 yards); Stephen Labdos, Bayview Wheelmen (60 yards), second; Jerry Cedasco, Newark (90 yards), third; Alfred E. Sanders, Bayview Wheelmen (60 yards), fourth; Martin Derrid, Linden (80 yards), fifth. Time—1:18 2-5.

BOONE LEADS AT GOLF.

Gains Second Leg on The Times Cup With Card of 75-10—65.

Perley Boone showed the way to THE NEW YORK TIMES golfers over the Dunwoodie Country Club course yesterday, winning both the low gross and the low net prizes with a score of 75, 10—65. With his low net score, Boone gained his second leg on THE TIMES trophy and another victory will give him permanent possession of it.

In the match play for THE TIMES trophy for 1925, Tod Barton defeated C. M. Graves, 2 and 1; Rollo Ogden defeated George W. Ochs Oakes, 4 and 3; W. H. Taft 3d defeated Lieut. Col Julius Adler, 3 and 2, and the Boone-Ted Palmer match was postponed.

Boone's winning score:

Out	4	4	4	4	4	3	4	4	35
In	4	2	5	4	5	5	5	6	40—75

The other low scores of the day were: Rollo Ogden, 82, 15—67; W. H. Taft 3d, 83, 15—68; Tod Barton, 81, 23—69

THE DEBTS AND OUR TARIFF.

Americans attending the meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce at Brussels are said to have been a good deal fluttered by the speech of Sir JOSIAH STAMP. He is a financial authority of high repute. His work as a member of the commission which framed the Dawes plan was highly praised by his American colleagues. What he has to say about currency and foreign exchange is to be accepted as coming from a man highly expert in those subjects. And there is truth and force in his general argument at Brussels that the great question of world settlement after the war has to be thought of as a single whole. German reparation payments and the liquidation of the debts owed by European countries to the United States are two things technically distinct. Our Government has resolutely sought to keep them apart. Yet that they are actually related in a practical way cannot be denied. Sir JOSIAH'S plea for continued cooperation in doing constructive work to solve the entire remaining problem was sound enough.

Doubt arises when one comes to his strong implication and almost direct statement that the United States can have no hope of obtaining payment of its foreign debts unless it reduces its tariff. Words to the same effect were, by a coincidence, doubtless undesigned, uttered on the same day in Paris by the French economist and publicist M. LOUCHEUR. He specifically warned America that France could not pay her except in goods, and that tariff rates designed to keep out imports from foreign countries must be cut down. As they stand, he said, they constitute an insurmountable obstacle to the settlement of the world's financial difficulties. This is a proposition often advanced before this. It sounds perfectly logical, but the question is whether it will not break down under the weight of the facts.

No one will suppose that this newspaper is set for the defense of a protective tariff. But a consistent record of opposition to the theory and practice of protection should not be incompatible with an open-eyed study of the actual working of high customs duties. Speaking recently to this point, a former Republican member of Congress said with a melancholy smile that he had worked for two years on a tariff specifically intended to keep out foreign goods, but that he found after its enactment that they came in just the same. So they have been doing under the present tariff. One aspect of the matter which Sir JOSIAH STAMP and M. LOUCHEUR seem to overlook is triangular operations in foreign commerce. These have been explained in detail many times by Secretary HOOVER. French, English and German goods of certain kinds may not come directly to us, but they are sold in distant markets whence we import rubber and silk and tropical fruits, so that the effect is much the same on the balance of trade as if the European product had come straight to our shores. This process is still going on and there is no reason why it should not continue. Moreover, manufacturers and business men and bankers have long had a way of ignoring the obstructive efforts of lawmakers and somehow getting done the commercial and financial transactions in which all concerned find a profit.

Another factor in the case was not even mentioned by Sir JOSIAH STAMP or M. LOUCHEUR. They seem to have taken it for granted that the United States was going to close down immediately upon France and Italy and take at once from them the full amount which they might receive from German reparations. But this is to overlook the fact that in all the debt negotiations a considerable moratorium is agreed to as necessary by both sides. This will allow for a period of recuperation and experiment. What the United States demands is, first of all, a formal acknowledgment of the binding nature of the debts. The terms of their funding, with the interest payments, will be made as lenient as the case requires. It is obvious that this consideration has a significant bearing on the relation of the debts to our tariff. Ample time will be left to study the interworking of the two.

Europeans should understand, as Americans do, that there is no chance whatever of an immediate reduction of our tariff. But the liquidation of the foreign debts does not depend upon that. In time it may come, for that reason combined with others; but meanwhile the steps in European adjustment may be taken unhindered, and in the end we may be sure that the ingenuity of business men will find ways to do what has to be done.

PRESIDENTIAL HOLIDAYS.

Mr. COOLIDGE, according to reports, has entered upon his Summer vacation with the zest of a schoolboy, but also in the company of the "representa-" tives of the larger newspapers and "press associations and photogra-" phers." It is to be hoped that the retinue will interfere with the vacation as little as is compatible with the public interest. It is a good many years since one could correctly speak of a President's "vacation." In the good old days of U. S. GRANT it was possible for a President to find escape from the public eye and public business in the seclusion of his Summer home. Mr. CLEVELAND'S passion for fishing gained him many carefree days that would not have been his if he had sought his Summer recreation on land. It has been estimated that between CLEVELAND'S first Administration and ROOSEVELT'S second the amount of work—and drudgery—impinging on the President of the United States increased fourfold. That is why the President's Summer home, when there is one, has become a Summer capital. The business of the country must go on in warm weather. Politics also continues. Along with Mexico, China and the interallied debts, the Republican leaders, bent on the reclaiming of a radical West, will see to it that Mr. COOLIDGE does not put in too much time listening to the wild waves at Swampscott. He is the first President exposed to the menace of the radio. Importunity may compel him to address a nation from the mid-Victorian porches of White Court.

With the best intentions in the world the American people insists on overworking its Chief Executives. This it varies with fits of compunction and queries what is to be done about it, which lead to nothing. No amount of delegating routine Executive functions will lift the Presidency out of the rank of sweated trades. He must be reconciled to long hours seven days in the week. The nearest conceivable remedy lies in his own hands. And that is precisely by cutting down to a minimum the intrusions on his Summer rest. Mr. ROOSEVELT systematized his holidays at Oyster Bay by prescribing for himself just such a minimum of recreation. Mr. WILSON, during his first two Summers, allowed himself only brief holidays of a week or less at Cornish, N. H. By 1915 he felt the necessity of a real vacation of six weeks broken into two periods. The war Summers of 1917 and 1918 kept him at Washington; and to the strain of those years we may possibly attribute the tragic break-down of the Autumn of 1919, just as we may see in Mr. HARDING'S refusal to leave Washington in 1921 and 1922 the reason for the tragedy of the following Summer.

As head of the richest business concern in the world and in history, the President of the United States will ultimately be compelled, in justice to himself and the interests he represents, to master the lesson of rest and recreation which private captains of industry are learning. Somehow he must overcome the handicap from which the ordinary business executive is comparatively free—the duty of being always accessible, in theory, to every one of his 115,000,000 stockholders.

THE PROPHET'S MANTLE.

It is a pleasure, if somewhat of a surprise, to see Senator NORRIS happy, even prospectively, though the situation in Wisconsin, where the brethren are not dwelling together in unity, distresses him a little. As deputy leader of the now diminished Progressive-Radical bloc in the Senate during Mr. LA FOLLETTE'S absences from Washington and as the representative of personal in contradistinction to party government, Mr. NORRIS regards himself as the heir of the whole LaFollettian political estate. So he takes it upon himself to admonish the Wisconsin Progressives:

> The death of our great leader must not be taken as any disintegration in our ranks. The Progressives of the nation are looking to their brethren in Wisconsin to make no mistake at this critical hour. Petty jealousies and personal ambitions must be forgotten. The banner of human freedom that has fallen from his hand must be raised aloft and the fight carried on until happiness shall come to every home and joy be enthroned at every fireside.

This millennial sweetness is an unwonted mood for our somewhat tart Nebraska friend. It is not unlikely that some of his fellow-workers for happy homes and fireside thrones of joy will be counted at the next Congress elections among the "lame ducks," his especial abomination. The disintegration and the personal ambitions are evident among the Wisconsin Progressives. Whatever temporary expedient may be adopted, such as a succession in the LA FOLLETTE family, the dead Senator's extraordinary power in the State, a power diminished, as the election figures showed, by his exodus from the party, cannot be inherited or transmitted. Governor BLAINE, at present sunk in deep meditation, has something of Mr. LA FOLLETTE'S masterly skill with the machine. Other old lieutenants are looking for promotion. The real and bitterest fight will come in 1926 between Senator LENROOT and the Progressive candidate, whoever he may be.

The revived instinct of party integrity, the general popularity of Mr. COOLIDGE and his program of economy and tax reduction, the natural tendency of unsuccessful insurgents to return to the old camp, are encouraging to the Republicans in Wisconsin, as in three or four other States where Progressivism, usually wearing a Republican mask, has been most active. The economic contributory causes have been mitigated or have disappeared. The chief remaining trouble of the regular Republicans comes from the sacred tariff, irreverently regarded by many farmers of the Northwest as a "gold brick." Mr. LA FOLLETTE, like Mr. BORAH, appreciated to the full the blessings which the tariff doesn't give the farmers.

By the process of elimination Mr. NORRIS may yet become the leader in the Senate of a Progressive Party consisting of himself. Despite the fact that he was the choice of the Wisconsin delegation at Cleveland for Vice President; that he consented to be re-elected as a Republican Senator, though so bitter and constant an enemy of the Republican Administration that the Democratic leader of the Senate was moved to repel his attacks upon Mr. COOLIDGE, Mr. NORRIS is disqualified by his own principles from being the leader of the Progressive or any other party. It is his desire "to "abolish party responsibility and in its "stead establish personal responsi-"bility." That is, he wants no party or party government. Neither Government nor party can be successfully conducted according to that system of impotent individualism. Friends of the fireside enthronement of joy will have to depend on some more dependable millennarian.

WITHDRAWING FROM GERMANY.

The announcement that the withdrawal of all French and British troops in the Ruhr beyond the line of Oberhausen, Mülheim and Kettwig will be completed by Aug. 15 is more interesting in connection with the problems of security and disarmament than when considered as compensation for fulfillment of the Dawes plan. The agreement in London last Summer between the French and Germans provided that the Ruhr should be progressively evacuated. This has proceeded according to schedule. The fear has recently been expressed in German circles, however, that the Allies' note to Germany about violations of the disarmament clauses in the Versailles Treaty might be used as an excuse for prolonging the occupation of the Ruhr. The note, to be sure, stated specifically that the Allies were prepared to carry out the evacuation of the first zone of occupation (including Cologne), which would normally have been turned over to the Germans last January, so soon as the Germans fulfilled the breaches of the disarmament clauses specified in detail in an annex to the Allies' note. For practical reasons, however, the Ruhr region had to be evacuated before Cologne.

The line to which the Allies will soon withdraw leaves them still in occupation of Ruhrort and important shipping points on the Rhine railroads. The presumption is that these also will be relinquished in the near future. The French apparently have accepted whole-heartedly the conciliatory attitude which characterized the text of the Allies' note about disarmament, and are disposed to give the Germans the benefit of the doubt. The solution has been passed to Germany—that is, it has been made plain to her that the sooner she complies with the disarmament stipulations the sooner will her territory be evacuated. This is an encouraging change from the old-time suspicion which saw in every German hesitation a cause for French harshness.

There is little doubt that France and England are both anxious to withdraw from Germany as soon as this is politically practicable. Unless Germany ignores completely the requests in the Allies' note on disarmament, there is no reason why Cologne and the entire "first zone" of occupation should not be evacuated by Autumn. Especially is this likely if the security treaty now being discussed in London, Paris and Berlin is put into effect. The relation between security and disarmament has often been overlooked, and the effort has been made to deal with each problem separately. It stands to reason, however, that the more thoroughly Germany is disarmed the less is the need for excessive precautions as to security. Conversely, the more effective the treaty of security the less concern need there be about minor infringements of disarmament clauses. By the same token, the more thorough the guarantees of security the less important is it to prolong military occupation of German territory. Successful negotiations as to the Franco-German frontier may therefore hasten the withdrawal of the last French and Belgian soldiers at the mouth of the Ruhr and of the British troops in Cologne.

THE MAJOR ISSUE IN NEW JERSEY.

Three years ago in New Jersey the post-primary State conventions of the Republican and Democratic parties were held in October, and the ensuing campaign resulted in the election of Governor EDWARDS (Dem.) as United States Senator by a plurality of 89,133 and of Judge SILZER (Dem.) as Governor by a plurality of 43,894. Their opposition to the Volstead act, and nothing else, was the cause of their victory. Two years earlier Mr. HARDING, the Republican candidate for President, had carried New Jersey by a plurality of 353,450. The primary was moved back to June this year, and the two parties held their State conventions on Tuesday, again at Trenton. The Republicans, who must have known that the leading issue in the campaign would be modification of the Volstead act, avoided naming it, and limited themselves to a pledge to give their "official" and "moral" support to "the enforcement of the Constitution and of all laws," repeating, too, this assurance for what it might be worth: "We pledge our-"selves to maintain or change the "State enforcement act to harmonize "with the national act." In brief, there was no change from the cautious position taken in 1922, although it had cost them a Governor and a United States Senator. The wording of the plank was not precisely the same, but once more they wanted to have credit for standing boldly for enforcement of the Volstead act by implication. Also, they wanted to get credit for willingness to make a change in the State enforcement law if the Volstead act were amended—something they did not, however, propose.

Once more the Democrats left no room for doubt about where they stood on the issue of prohibition. In 1922 Governor EDWARDS had urged that a declaration for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment be put in the platform. He was not heeded. Tuesday the Democrats took the plunge: "We advocate the elimination of the "Eighteenth Amendment from the "Constitution." Again they urged modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of light wines and beer. To meet the Republicans on their own, if not their only, ground they declared for "the enforcement of all laws." The major issue, then, is clean cut: Wet or Dry? The Republicans would like to substitute for it a protest against Hagueism, the rulership of Mayor HAGUE of Jersey City in the Democratic Party, which, it is charged, would cast its baleful shadow over the Commonwealth if A. HARRY MOORE, the Democratic candidate for Governor, were elected. The question naturally arises, How could the Democratic boss impose his will on the State if the Legislature were Republican, as it has been during the Administration of Governor SILZER? Hagueism is not really a new issue in New Jersey. The Republicans have experimented with it before. In their convention of 1922 ex-Governor STOKES declared that "Hudson "County Democracy offers no pan-"acea to the voters of our State, but "is the Tammanyization of our Com-"monwealth." At the Democratic Convention on Tuesday Governor SILZER, affirming that the Jersey City Mayor "has never asked me to do a "single thing that I wasn't able to "do cheerfully, frankly and conscien-"tiously," said that the people paid little attention three years ago to the cry that he was HAGUE'S candidate.

Hagueism, whatever there may be in it as a symbol of boss rule, cannot be regarded as a major issue in the New Jersey campaign, which is to go on for more than four months. It is different with Wet or Dry. The Democrats have made that a major issue by taking the advanced ground of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and by declaring again for light wines and beer. If the Republicans have a real conviction on the subject, they should welcome the challenge. Hagueism can hardly make a deep impression on an electorate that knows there is friction in the Republican household about the leadership of Senator EDGE, which his address in the party convention indicated he was not willing to surrender, in fact would still assert. The platforms of both parties are tentative and may be revised at an adjourned meeting next week, but the Democrats will take no backward step as regards the Volstead act. Their challenge will be put in the forefront of the battle and it must be taken up. To command success Senator WHITNEY, the Republican candidate for Governor, must have a united party behind him. The Coolidge vote, like the Harding vote, will not be much of an argument in a Volstead act campaign. Opposition to prohibition cuts through party lines. Commissioner MOORE, the Democratic candidate, will have no chance of election unless a majority of the New Jersey voters are of the same opinion still on the irrepressible issue.

A CURE FOR PESSIMISM.

If one is particularly depressed over the present state of things and anxious as to the future of our American institutions, one would find some relief in visiting our public elementary schools at this season. It is a more exhilarating experience than attending a college commencement, for the idealism of youth, still in the years of these pupils, has nothing to disturb it. There is cleanliness in these spots, however filthy and cluttered with refuse the streets about may be. There is order without a sign of discipline. There is reverence toward elders and a kindliness and courtesy which a stranger riding in a New York subway or even walking in a crowded street could not imagine to be possible in the children of this generation. And there is an expression of love of this land and of what its flag symbolizes to them that gives a most favorable augury for the future. Children of long American ancestry could not show a deeper devotion than those of foreign parents manifest. One can understand how H. G. WELLS, when he saw the children on the east side saluting the flag and pledging their loyalty in these same schools, exclaimed: "Oh, the harvest of this warm sowing!"

But it is only five hours a day for five days in a week for not more than forty weeks in a year and for a few years that most of them are subject to such influences. The ill-kept streets, the congested homes, the indecent ways of transit, the scurrilous talk and uncivilized conduct of men even in highest positions in public life, and the conduct of the adult generally with whom the growing child comes into contact outside of its home—sometimes in it—tend to dim the ideals caught sight of in the schoolroom and to quench the ardor of the youthful knight. There is a widespread movement to bring the home into more direct relation with the school, so that the parents will have benefit of the wholesome influence of the school and will in turn cooperate more intelligently and helpfully with the school in its training of the child. There are also great organizational efforts to extend the good influence of the school. But the teacher has, even with this assistance, to fight against fearful odds for the things that are essential to a better civic life.

The schools are the object of a great deal of undeserved criticism. Generally it is not the teachers who are at fault. The greatest peril is of a political interference with the selection of teachers of highest merit or an unwillingness to spend enough to secure them. Buildings and apparatus are an easy boast and are often regarded as a valuable political asset, but they will not suffice to make these places real centres of influence in the present and of hope for the future. It is to thoroughly trained, highly principled teachers, in whom the ideals of the city are incarnate, that the public must look for their realization. And while certain appointments to important positions in the educational system give grave concern lest something worse come, one has but to visit these schools today, many of them under Principals that have long been in the service and some of them in buildings that have been long in use, to have one's gratitude to the teachers refreshed and one's anxiety for the morrow lessened or removed.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Says Milk Is Not a Good Food!

One of the delegates to the American Institute of Homeopathy, now in session here, made a rather elaborate attack this week on milk as food for adults and on milk even for the very young, unless provided by a mother of the same species. By doing this, Dr. J. P. SUTHERLAND, who is a former Dean of the Boston University School of Medicine, invited the large amount of criticism he is fairly likely to get, for in all times and places, by savages, barbarians and civilized folk alike, milk has been held to be a good form of nutriment for consumers of all ages—a form that never did any harm, but was as valuable as it was innocent.

Yet there is a certain plausibility in the idea that a food so obviously and highly specialized for the use of all mammalian infants cannot be well adapted for the sustenance of more advanced years, when the requirements, it might reasonably be assumed, are considerably, if not entirely, different. So very well might conclude a visitor from another planet where the arrangements for carrying on the higher forms of life are unlike those developed here. But while such a visitor, if just arrived, probably would say that Dr. SUTHERLAND was obviously right, later observation, and especially knowledge derived from a study of the past, almost certainly would compel the conclusion that the doctor's logic is contradicted by universal experience, extending over almost innumerable centuries and covering really innumerable multitudes of people.

So far as known, the human race has indulged in milk at all ages whenever it could get it, and has judged the consequences good. It is not going to change its mind at this late day, though a thousand doctors asked it to do so instead of one. Whole races do not make serious mistakes, or, if they do, they pay the penalty of extinction more or less speedy, and the human race as yet gives no indications either of disappearance or even of degeneration.

It's Substitutes or Else Go Without.

As for the injurious effects of milk from one species on the young of another, there is something to be said for that, and logic and experience do go together in that direction for some distance, if not all the way. Dr. SUTHERLAND admits that, "at a superficial glance," human babies in civilized communities seem to thrive fairly well on cow's milk after it has been properly "modified." But how explain, he asks solemnly, "the adenoid and tonsillar troubles, the imperfect dentition, the appalling increase in the number of weak-minded children, the increase in the number of cases of dementia praecox, the wide prevalence of deficiencies in the nervous system, among the very civilized communities where this so-called perfect substitute for mother's milk is given so confidently to the growing child?"

How, indeed! Almost certainly, however, not by any one cause, and there is something more than excuse for suspecting that in the painting of Dr. SUTHERLAND'S dreadful picture the imagination was drawn on heavily for most of the darker colors.

Nobody doubts that "mother's milk" is best for all mammalian babies—that it gives them the best chance for health and long life. Yet no small number of "bottle babies" also thrive and persist, and, from present indications, as seen by some thoughtful biologists, either the human race soon must go on by the aid of the "substitute," having eliminated the strain that couldn't or wouldn't adjust itself to the new requirement, or else it will go to join the dodo and the big saurians, who also were obstinately and fatally conservative.

The Exploit Really Their Own.

Now that the two Bronxville boys who "ran away from home" last week have been found, safe and sound out in Ohio, whither they had made their independent way happily enough, and where they were "working for board and clothes" innocently enough on a farm, it is well to give their adventure the calm consideration it deserves.

That it was an adventure, personally undertaken, is no small merit in these days, when so much of boyish adventuring is done by the sterile and wholly unprofitable device of sitting in the bad air of movie theatres and watching the shadows of noble and exciting deeds on the white screen. It is not good for boys to be satisfied with that poor simulacrum of the life which, if worth raising, they aspire to lead.

These particular boys had no grievances at home, except that nothing sufficiently stirring was happening there, and, well aware that their fond parents would not sympathize with their ambitions to the extent of consenting to far wanderings into the beyond, they just went. That was reprehensible in that it caused much anxiety to their fathers and mothers, especially to their mothers, but youth is thoughtless by nature and definition and should not be judged harshly for forgetting what it knows as well as old age—when it stops to think.

Anyhow, boys can do worse things than what these boys did—things so much worse that in comparison this exploit not only seems, but is, highly commendable. They proved the possession of courage, of energy, of initiative, of self-dependence, and many a boy who lacks all these earns the praise that "he never gave his parents a moment's anxiety." Unless the parents are more judicious than the average—judicious enough to know that it is their destined task as parents to be wisely anxious, but without discouragement—that is very poor praise, and no great hope should be entertained with respect to the boy who receives it.

How Those Fish Were Killed.

One of THE TIMES'S correspondents, who evidently knows a good deal about the use of copper sulphate—"blue vitriol"—for clearing water of algae, declared in a letter printed yesterday that the recent very regrettable killing of the fish in a lake near Nyack was not due to the chemical thrown into it, but to the rapid oxygenation of the vegetation which the chemical put to death. The difference is not essential, for the fact remains that it was the putting of the copper sulphate in the lake that caused the death of the fish. As he said, however, the harm that was done resulted not from the employment of a familiar device for accomplishing a desirable end, but from the failure to exercise judgment and reason as to the amount of algicide to be used. Had it been used in proper quantities the little plants would have been destroyed without hurting the fish at all. It was done many times in the reservoirs supplying cities with water, and it is an expedient well known to the keepers of fish in aquariums, where algae are a great nuisance because they cover the glass and render seeing the creatures within difficult or impossible. But the owners of aquariums know that the thing has to be done with care, putting in just enough—which is very little—of the chemical to kill the minute forms of vegetable life and not enough to hurt either the fish or the larger plants that provide the oxygen needed by them.

Land Taxes for Subways.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is perfectly practicable to put a fractional part of the cost of new subways upon the land values, individual holdings, of New York City, as during the Administration of Mayor Low in 1903, by change of method of the Assessment Department, the full values of real estate began to be taken. They were divided into two columns, one of the total value of a parcel, the other of the value of the improvements, thus the value of the land ascertained.

It was when "full values" began to be taken, and then only, that the credit of the city was raised sufficiently to begin the building of subways.

I still have a love for New York, for I was born in and lived there more than seventy years.

FOOL.

The monarch frowned
As the fool drew near,
And said in a voice
That all might hear,
"You have hurt us, fool,
For we never thought
That a subject of ours
Could ever be bought
By one who loyalty
Never knew—
Who knew not how
To be stanch and true.

"We have loved you long,
We have loved you well.
We have laughed at the tales
You had to tell.
But this strange thing
We cannot see through.
Oh, stupid fool,
Why were you not true?"

The courtiers heard.
But could not believe
That their own dear fool
Could ever deceive.
And they looked at him, silent,
Lying apart,
For how could they know
They had broken his heart?

MARGERY BOUGHTON.

THE OPIUM PROBLEM.

The Crucial Need of Limiting Manufacture Largely Overlooked —Danger Seen in Any New Source of Supply.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

American newspapers bring tidings of the offer by Herman A. Metz of a prize of $100,000 for the discovery of a method of producing synthetically a true opium to take the place of the opium derived from the poppy plant, apparently on the theory that this will destroy the market for the natural product, discourage its cultivation, and so help in the solution of the problem of narcotics.

It is significant of the purity of Mr. Metz's motives that he, a large producer of drugs, lays down the condition that the winner of the prize must surrender all rights in the discovery, the new artificial opium to be used only under a presumably unselfish international control.

This looks plausible offhand, but there are facts and considerations which it seems to me Mr. Metz has overlooked, and which are of the utmost importance. From where I sit his proposal is not merely fallacious by reason of overlooking vital elements in the situation; it threatens a new and dangerous factor in a problem already sufficiently baffling.

Figures worked out in preparation for and in connection with the Geneva Opium Conference predicate the total needs of the world for the uses of medicine and science as 450 milligrams per capita per annum of raw opium with a morphia content of 10 per cent., for the population within reach of Western trained medical service; allowing about 30 per cent. for medicinal opium, 40 per cent. for morphine, 25 per cent. for codein and 5 per cent. for heroin. This works out to a total world need of less than 400 tons per annum. Making the absurdly extravagant allowance of 450 milligrams for every man, woman and child, civilized and uncivilized, alive in the world, the total annual "need" would be about 786 tons.

But the most conservative estimates of the world's total production of raw opium (nobody really knows how much it is, and a great deal of it is of morphia content far above 10 per cent.) show it to be certainly not less than 8,600 tons, and probably much more than that, even ignoring the grotesquely exaggerated figure of 15,000 tons a year attributed in some quarters to China.

In any event, it is beyond question that there is a total production of raw opium not less, and probably very much more, than ten times the amount required for any uses that can honestly be called legitimate. And since the only uses other than legitimate to which this stuff can be put are the uses of addiction, we have a sufficient explanation of the growing prevalence of that addiction all over the world. Once produced, it must find a market—or make one. Hence the illicit traffic.

At least one-half of this enormous production is, however, in China (where it is wholly unlawful and exists only by reason of the upset political conditions there, of which it is both effect and cause) and in India. Virtually all of the Chinese product is used in China for smoking—notwithstanding the alleged smuggling out of China, which somewhat careful investigation has convinced me is largely mythical, the legend being encouraged for various motives, political and otherwise.

Something like half of the product of India is consumed in India, for pseudo-medical purposes and in the ancient practice of eating and drinking it and almost universally feeding it to infants, as well as to lite stock—even elephants. The rest is sold—quite lawfully—by the Indian Government to other Governments, principally in the Far East (including the "farmer" at Macao to whom the Portuguese Government sells the privilege for upward of $2,000,000 a year), to be made into the "prepared" opium used exclusively for smoking.

A considerable part of the raw opium produced in Persia, Turkey, Central Asia, Afghanistan, &c., is exported (largely smuggled) into the Far East, especially into China—as witness the recent sensational seizure at Shanghai of enormous quantities of Turkish opium, together with documents disclosing the existence of a vast organization devoted to the smuggling of both opium and manufactured drugs into China. The proportion of the total production of opium devoted to the manufacture of drugs is relatively a minor part of the whole.

How will it be of benefit to create a brand-new source of a brand-new narcotic which by hypothesis is not to be used to supplant the vast amount of opium now consumed for smoking? Will it not simply release still more of the old for the already oversupplied channels of illicit trade?

It should be remembered, too, that in some of the producing countries poppy-seed is extensively used in the making of oil, for butter, cooking, soap and other innocuous purposes. Nevertheless, every seed of it is potential of an opium plant!

The cause of the overflow of morphine and the heroin that is made from morphine is not primarily the overproduction of the raw material, but the uncontrolled manufacture of the high-power drugs in the pharmaceutical laboratories of the nations which call themselves civilized—particularly Germany and Switzerland, though the others are only less concerned.

Also, and equally, the fact that in the absence of effective international cooperation, and under the delusion that these substances can be properly or safely the subject of ordinary commercial competition, each of the nations engaged in this manufacture regards it as its legitimate right to compete for the entire market. That is the principal reason for the existence of the tremendous surplus, and the surplus is the cause of the illegitimate traffic, whose only possible destination is the addict, actual or prospective.

All this says nothing of cocaine, the much more dangerous ally and rival of morphine, produced from the coca leaf, which is flowing in great quantities out of Java—not to mention Bolivia and Peru. The theoretical allowance of raw cocaine per capita per annum is 7 milligrams, which gives a total world need of about 5 tons for the population accessible to modern medicine; a little more than 12 tons if you give everybody alive his 7 milligrams. Figures of production of cocaine are hard to get and scattering, but Germany acknowledges the export in 1920 of more than 5 tons. France of nearly 3 tons. Switzerland, with less than 4,000,000 population and entitled (at 7 milligrams) to 28-1,000ths of a ton of cocaine, reported no export whatever, but acknowledged the manufacture of 1.2 tons in 1920 and 1.6 tons in 1921. Japan, entitled to 560 kilograms—a little more than half a ton—manufactured more than 2 tons in 1921 and more than 3½ tons in 1922. Japan's people are not addicted to drugs, and her cocaine does not figure in the Western markets. What became of it?

The fact upon which attention ought to be centred is that neither the United States nor any other nation party to The Hague Convention of 1912 has kept, or, as I see it, made any substantial effort to keep, the pledge that they all made in Article 9 of that convention, namely, "to limit manufacture" as well as sale and use, "exclusively to medical and legitimate purposes." Insisting upon the possession of licenses, and the collection of an import tax (both sources of governmental revenue, by the way), are not limitation of manufacture to the needs of medicine and science.

Incidentally, it is worthy of note that according to an official statement of the Narcotic Division of the Federal Prohibition Unit, dated July, 1924:

> During the period since the Harrison (anti-narcotic) law has been in operation, the actual cost of enforcement has totaled $3,520,450.94, while the amount collected as fines, penalties, &c., has aggregated $6,384,751.45, none of which is used to defray the costs of enforcement, but is turned into the general funds of the United States Treasury.

Moreover, Commissioner Haynes informed the Governors' Conference at Washington in October, 1924, that in the five years since 1919 there had been actually put into the United States Treasury under the operation of the Anti-Narcotic law a profit of $3,008,108.33 "over and above the cost of administration."

I do not know whether constitutional barriers would operate in the United States against an attempt to carry out the pledge which we assumed under the Hague convention and have not as yet complied with—to limit manufacture. That is a question for lawyers and courts. I know of no such attempt, nor of any proposal on anybody's part to amend the Constitution so as to permit the carrying out of our contract with other nations to that effect.

But I do know of something else that stands in the way. That is the absence of knowledge as to the needs of the United States or of any other country for opium or manufactured drugs for medical and scientific purposes. No effective steps toward limitation of manufacture are practicable until that knowledge exists.

The drug convention adopted by the Second Opium Conference provides for the establishment of a Permanent Central Board (in whose appointment the United States under the terms of the convention would be invited to participate), and its principal business would be to begin the collection of precisely the kind of information indispensable to the limitation of manufacture, in the United States and elsewhere.

That convention is not so good as it would have been had the American delegation stayed on the job and continued its fight to make it better. But whatever its defects, it is a material advance upon the Hague convention, and upon its ratification depends the establishment of the Central Board. It is so much of an advance, indeed, that one may doubt whether in fact it ever will be ratified by the number of particularly specified nations whose ratification is necessary under its terms.

From all I can hear at this distance, those in the United States who are in a position to move for our own adherence to the convention (with reservations, if necessary) not only are not doing so, but with a kind of grim satisfaction will do all they can to prevent it. Achilles, until now the leader, sulking in his tent, leaves the international battle line, even such as it was, not only the poorer for his absence, but materially broken and spiritually disheartened. Meanwhile "opium," in all the forms which that generic term may cover, gets a new lease of life—and is making the most of it.

Overcrowding Excursion Boats.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The elements of a tragedy like the General Slocum disaster exist in the present arrangements for handling the Sunday crowds which go down the bay to see the Statue of Liberty.

The boats which make the trip from the Barge Office to Bedlow's Island are small, old side-wheelers, which accomplish the journey at a dizzy angle. The decks are open to the elements, and in case of a rainstorm all the passengers crowd to one side, until the crew is sent along the decks to ask cooperation in righting the boat.

I came home last Sunday afternoon in a stampede which would have done credit to a rodeo. The boat back to New York was late in docking, and as a thunderstorm was gathering over the Jersey shore, several hundred people jammed themselves onto the dock. Just as the gates were opened to let the passengers aboard the storm broke and the rain deluged the crowd.

But for the persuasive oratory of a soldier who stood on a fence and appealed for the little children the crowd would have broken the barrier and swamped the boat. As it was, a chain across the gate and the threat (from the soldiers) of using bayonets merely slowed down the pace of a stampede.

I was told that every Sunday sees the repetition of the same conditions, about the worst I have ever seen in a city of crowds.

Questions Her Statistics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your London correspondent quotes Miss Gordon as having told the delegates of the W. C. T. U. in her presidential address at Edinburgh that "8,000 San Francisco longshoremen who used to consume 800 kegs of beer daily at luncheon now enjoyed 1,800 quarts of milk."

The subject is too important to pass without inquiry, for the capacity of these longshoremen indicates that they must have evoluted from an ostrich, with the faculty for extending themselves like a toy balloon, by inhalation.

A keg of beer is not a term which has a precisely uniform meaning. In New York a keg is a half-barrel, and saloonkeepers figure that they can get 248 glasses of beer out of it. This would have given every one of these longshoremen thirty-three glasses of beer for his luncheon. Assuming that he took an hour off for lunch and spent the entire time at it, he would have had to drink a glass of beer every two minutes, with three extra ones thrown in for good measure, while he was eating.

Even if the kegs were only of quarter-barrel size each man must have drunk between four and five quarts of beer during the noon hour, for which, according to Miss Gordon, he has now substituted less than a quart of milk.

Physiologists tell us that the human stomach only contains from three to five pints. Possibly these San Francisco longshoremen are "different," but one is reminded of that old saying of Uncle Esek's, "Tain't the ignorance in the world so much as 'tis the knowin' so many things that ain't so."

Wants Vanderbilt Houses Exhibited

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An old resident of New York City, who was much interested in an article and illustrations on the subject of the two Fifth Avenue Vanderbilt houses which appeared in THE TIMES for June 7, has made a suggestion which, if broadcast through the columns of some metropolitan journal as prominent as THE TIMES, might have an effect.

The suggestion is that the present owners of these buildings, which are so soon to be demolished, be requested to open these houses to the public for a few hours

MISS ANNE LOEB BRIDE IN PARIS

Daughter of Late Prof. Jacques Loeb of Rockefeller Institute Weds Edmund B. Osborne.

MARION POWELL MARRIES

Wed to Victor S. Noerdlinger at the Ambassador—Krapf-Mac Briar and Other Nuptials.

PARIS, June 24 (AP).—Miss Anne L. Loeb, daughter of the late Professor Jacques Loeb of the Rockefeller Institute of New York, and Edmund B. Osborne of Montclair, N. J., were married here today. There was a civil ceremony at the City Hall and a religious ceremony by the Rev. George W. Downs. After two months of European travel the couple will make their home at Montclair.

The engagement of Miss Loeb and Mr. Osborne was announced in January by the bride's mother, Mrs. Anne Leonard Loeb, widow of Professor Loeb. The bride is a graduate of the Brearley School and has been studying at Barnard College. She is a sister of Dr. Leonard B. Loeb and Dr. Robert F. Loeb. Mr. Osborne is a member of the class of '21 at Cornell University, and during the war served in the naval aviation. He is the son of Mrs. Osborne and the late Edmund B. Osborne.

Noerdlinger—Powell.

Miss Marion Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Charles Powell of 35 West Eighty-first Street, and Victor S. Noerdlinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Noerdlinger of 271 Central Park West, were married last night in the ballroom of the Ambassador. The Rev. Dr. Maurice Harris performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception and dance.

The bride, who was escorted by her father, wore a gown of white satin and lace with a court train and a tulle and lace veil. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Isidora Powell was her sister's maid of honor and Mrs. James A. Jonas was matron of honor.

Julius Noerdlinger was his brother's best man. The ushers were Stewart Frank, James A. Jonas, Joseph A. Holander, Chauncey M. Mayers and Richard Katz. Mr. and Mrs. Noerdlinger will spend their honeymoon in California and later will go to the Canadian Rockies. Upon their return they will make their home in this city.

Neidlinger—Walker.

Miss Marion Ruth Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund H. Walker of East Orange, N. J., was married to Lloyd K. Neidlinger yesterday in the Munn Avenue Presbyterian Church, East Orange. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Robert Brewster Beattie and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Gertrude Daily of Pittsburgh, a class mate of the bride at Sweethriar College, Virginia, was maid of honor. The other bridal attendants were Mrs. Lawrence Norton and the Misses Burd Dickson, Helen and Frances O'Brien, Grace Haigh and Eleanor Van Nuyse.

Edward Learnard of this city was best man, and the ushers were Newell G. Neidlinger, brother of the bridegroom; James Walker, brother of the bride, and Lewis Lewinsohn, George Vanderbilt and Clifford Couch, classmates of the bridegroom at Dartmouth.

After a motor trip through New England Mr. and Mrs. Neidlinger will make their home in Bloomfield, N. J.

Krapf—Mac Briar.

The marriage of Miss Isabel Marie Mac Briar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Mac Briar of Brooklyn, to Carl Scott Krapf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Krapf, also of Brooklyn, took place yesterday morning in St. Brendan's Church in Brooklyn. The Right Rev. Mgr. D. Hickey performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of old lace and her wedding veil of lace was a family heirloom. Mrs. A. Juliette Mac Briar was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were the Misses Alice F. Doyle and Katherine Doyle. Harold Graham Krapf was his brother's best man. The ushers were Bertram R. Shinton, Gerard A. Mac Briar and Jerold W. Hettrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Krapf will go to Lake Placid on their wedding trip and later will spend the Summer on Long Island, returning to Brooklyn in the Autumn.

Fogerty—Bassett.

Miss Margaret Bassett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bassett of Dover, N. J., was married to Thomas C. Fogerty of Atlantic City last night at the Waldorf-Astoria. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Torrens of Brooklyn. Miss Beatrice Bassett, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Sidney Schwartz of Paterson was best man. After the dinner which followed the ceremony the bridal couple left on a motor tour. After two months they will make their home in Atlantic City.

Poth—Grant.

Miss Ruth Elizabeth Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Grant of North Lewisburg, Ohio, and William Alvin Poth of Dayton, were married yesterday morning in the West End Collegiate Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Daniel Russell. Following their wedding trip to Lake George, Mr. and Mrs. Poth will be in Brooklyn and expect to make their home next year in Dayton.

39 Graduate at Brooklyn School.

Thirty-nine pupils received diplomas at the annual graduation exercises of Public School 142, Brooklyn, the Stranahan School, held in the school auditorium Tuesday night. The speakers were Associate Superintendent Edward B. Shallow, the Rev. R. A. McConnell of the South Congregational Church, Alderman G. J. Joyce and Father O'Brien of Our Lady of Mercy Church. It was announced that Laura Abasolo had won the Egan medal for general excellence in scholarship.

Times Choral Society Concert.

Seven hundred patients of the Montefiore Hospital attended an open air concert last night by the New York Times Choral Society. This was the last of a series of concerts that has been given by the society at hospitals and institutions in the last month. Seventy members sang a group of popular melodies and solos were rendered by Bentley Ford, Herbert Palmer and Albert G. Janpolski, choral director.

Harry S. Black Gives a Dance.

Harry S. Black gave a dinner last night in his apartment on the roof of the Plaza for General Coleman du Pont. Among the guests were General W. W. Atterbury, Percy A. Rockefeller, Charles E. Mitchell, Barron G. Collier, Commissioner Richard T. Enright, Edward F. Albee, Gerhard M. Dahl, Harry Bronner, Anson Beard, George Bolling Lee, John P. Grier, Charles B. MacDonald, M. C. Brush and S. Davies Warfield.

Fair in Aid of Babies' Milk Funds.

The annual fair and tea in aid of the Babies' Milk Funds of the Family Welfare Association of Nassau County and of the New York Hospital will be held tomorrow from 2 P. M. until 9 on the lawn of Greenacres, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Payne Whitney at Manhasset, L. I. Features of the sale will be old chintz cushions and pincushions, also live stock, vegetables, toys and fancy articles. In case of a storm the sale will be held indoors.

Daughter to Mrs. W. C. Armstrong.

Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell Armstrong of 28 East Ninety-fifth Street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, their second child, at the Lying-in Hospital on Tuesday. The child will be named Jean Campbell Armstrong. Before her marriage Mrs. Armstrong was Miss Rhoda Elizabeth Forbes, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Hall Forbes.

SOCIAL NOTES

New York.

The marriage of Miss Allen Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hamilton Gray of the Hotel Gotham, to Walter Grey Dunnington of this city will take place today at Montebello, the ancestral home of the bride's family in Orange County, Virginia.

Mrs. William H. Moore, who arrived on the Homeric, is at the St. Regis before going to Fridas Crossing. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Grant, who also arrived on the Homeric, are at the hotel to spend several days before going to their home in San Francisco.

The marriage of Miss Cornelia MacKenzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton MacKenzie of this city, to Myron Parker Burdette of Washington, will take place on July 25 at the country home of the bride's parents in Colebrook, Conn.

Judge and Mrs. Samuel D. Levy have left for the Homestead at Hot Springs, Va., where they will remain until Aug. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Richard Davis of 350 Park Avenue will sail for Europe on the Berengaria on July 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn M. Stewart, who came yesterday from their country place in Easton, Md., gave a luncheon at the Murray.

Mrs. Stephen T. Leonard has come in from East Hampton, L. I., and will be at the Weylin for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kimbel and Mrs. David Swing Starring were among those entertaining at luncheon at the Embassy Club yesterday.

MISS SERENA HAND WEDS WM. L. SAVAGE

Judge's Daughter Married at Country Home—Sybil Hyde Bride of W. G. Low 3d.

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. J., June 24.—Miss Serena E. Hand, daughter of Judge Augustus Noble Hand of the United States District Court, New York City, and Mrs. Hand, and William Lyttleton Savage of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Savage, also of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, were married in the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd here at 4 this afternoon, the rector, the Rev. H. H. Pittman, being assisted by the Rev. Alexander C. Zabriskie of New York.

Miss Margaret F. Zabriskie of New York was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Emily T. Anderson, New York; Miss Ruth Clarke, Providence; Miss Mary Douglass Hay, Springfield, Ill.; Miss Grace L. Savage of Philadelphia, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Cornelia Baird, Yonkers; Miss Marcia Washburn, New Brighton.

Ernest C. Savage of Philadelphia, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Charles C. Savage Jr. and Henry L. Savage of Philadelphia, both brothers of the bridegroom; William H. Downe, Denver, Col.; George Edgar Hackney of Philadelphia, the Rev. George A. Trowbridge, Princeton, N. J.; J. Ritchie Boyd, New York, and Cuthbert Russell Train of Washington, D. C., a cousin of the bride.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. She wore her mother's wedding dress, a beautiful gown of white satin trimmed with rare old lace. A tulle veil completed a costume pleasing in its simplicity. She carried a bouquet of peonies, white columbine and maidenhair fern.

The reception, attended by a number from Philadelphia, was at the Hand estate, where Judge and Mrs. Hand are spending the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Savage will reside in New York City, where he is connected with Scribner & Co., publishers.

Last evening Judge and Mrs. Hand entertained with a dance at the Windsor Hotel in honor of their daughter and her fiancé.

Low—Hyde.

Miss Sybil Egerton Hyde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Fillmore Hyde, was married to William Gilman Low 3d yesterday in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Morristown, N. J. The ceremony was followed by a large reception at Seldomere, the country home of the bride's parents near Morristown.

Mrs. Richard H. Cobb of Atlanta, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Rhoda Low, débutante sister of the bridegroom, and the Misses Betty Wonham, Lydia Merrill and Carol Shaw.

John Patterson Duncan of this city was best man and the ushers were Alfred George Scherer of Summit, William C. Hammond of Holyoke, Mass., John C. Orr 2d, Bayard Schieffelin, A. Newbold Morris, Winthrop Saltus and Lauder Greenway. Mr. Low, who is a son of William Gilman Low Jr., was graduated from Yale last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Low will sail on the Belgenland on July 4 for a trip through Europe.

BACHELOR DINNER BY MOTT.

Fiance of Miss Eleanor Sparks Entertains at the Yale Club.

Jordan Lawrence Mott 2d, whose marriage to Miss Eleanor M. A. Sparks, daughter of Sir Ashley and Lady Sparks, will take place on Saturday in Christ Church, Oyster Bay, gave his bachelor dinner last night at the Yale Club. Mrs. Van Duzer Burton, Miss Sparks's sister, will give a lawn party at her home in Syosset this afternoon for the bridal party, and tomorrow night Sir Ashley and Lady Sparks will give a dinner and dance for their daughter.

Among those at the dinner last night were John L. Lodge of Washington, grandson of the late United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who will be best man; Martin Scott, Marshall Oliver, Frank W. McCabe, Edward Matthews and Wolcott Warner of this city; Thomas and Hunt Howell of Southampton, Francis de Witt Pratt of Schenectady, Charles Talcott Jr. of Hartford, Coates Landell and John Lee of Philadelphia, John Penrod of Providence and Arthur Kelsey of Cleveland.

THEY MARRY AT AGE OF 74.

M. H. Stewart and Mrs. Hattie L. Cooper Engaged 50 Years Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., June 24.—Matthew H. Stewart and Mrs. Hattie L. Cooper, each 74 years of age, of Hasbrouck Heights, who were originally engaged more than fifty years ago, were married this evening in the rectory of the Reformed Church there by the Rev. J. E. Hoffman. The daughter of the bridegroom and her husband, A. V. Goetschius, were attendants for the aged couple, and the only other witness was a sister of the bride. The party went to Newark for a wedding supper and then went to a theatre. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will go to Niagara Falls on their honeymoon tomorrow.

When the couple were betrothed just after their school days, an older sister of the bride-to-be raised an objection and the couple drifted apart and married. Mrs. Cooper has been a widow twenty years and Mr. Stewart's wife died two years ago.

BERTHA TILNEY ENGAGED.

WED AND NOTIFY FRIENDS.

Dorothy Crooke and Cecil Rhodes Marry in Municipal Building.

Miss Dorothy Crooke of Evanston, Ill., daughter of Mrs. Warren Crooke of Sheldon, Iowa, was married to Cecil Rhodes of Philadelphia yesterday in the Municipal Building. City Clerk McCormick performed the ceremony, which was followed last night by a dinner for New York friends of the couple at the St. Regis.

Mr. Rhodes was graduated last week from the University of Pennsylvania. The bride, who attended the Frances Shimer School, was graduated from Northwestern University. No previous announcement of the engagement of the couple had been made and they did not decide to be married until a few days ago when they met in this city where she was visiting friends. They had been acquainted for several years. Their friends in this city were not notified of the marriage until after it had taken place.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes have gone to Philadelphia, where they will be until Saturday, when they plan to sail on the President Roosevelt for a wedding trip of two months in Europe. When they return they will make their home in Evanston. Mrs. Rhodes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Henry Rhodes of Estherville, Iowa.

PRESBYTERY SEEKS CHURCH HARMONY

Appoints Committee of Eleven to Study Complaints of the General Assembly.

3 TO ATTEND FALL SYNOD

Ithaca Meeting Will Hear Charges of Fundamentalists Against 2 Young Clergymen.

The New York Presbytery has named a Committee of Eleven to consider in detail the complaints made against it at the meeting of the General Assembly in Columbus, Ohio, last May, and to confer with the Committee of Fifteen appointed by the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Erdman, Moderator of the Presbyterian Church, to study the causes of unrest in the denomination and to try to devise means of harmonizing discordant elements.

Announcement was also made by the Rev. H. G. Mendenhall at the offices of the Presbytery, 156 Fifth Avenue, that a Committee of Three had been appointed to represent the New York body at the synod meeting to be held in Ithaca in October, where complaints lodged against the Rev. Carlos G. Fuller and the Rev. Cameron Parker Hall, young clergymen recently ordained in New York, will be heard.

The committee of eleven which was appointed by the Moderator, the Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, consists of six clergymen and five lay members. They are, the Rev. E. W. Work, Vice Moderator; the Rev. A. D. Kelgwin, the Rev. W. R. Merrill, the Rev. Tertius van Dyke, the Rev. David G. Wylie, the Rev. George J. Russell, Judge Norman J. Marsh, T. N. Pfeiffer, George H. Richards, L. L. Tribus and Peter McChesney. Dr. Work, who will preside, is also a member of Dr. Erdman's harmony committee.

The committee of three which will represent the Presbytery in Ithaca on the complaints against Mr. Hall and Mr. Fuller consists of the Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, the Rev. Dr. William Adams Brown of Union Theological Seminary, where Mr. Hall was a student, and John Foster Dulles, an elder of the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Hall is a son of Wilbur W. Hall, an elder in the Madison Avenue Church, of which Dr. Coffin is pastor. He was licensed to preach on April 13 after a stormy session in which he was questioned by Fundamentalists at length as to his beliefs and during which he refused to affirm his belief in the virgin birth of Christ, the bodily resurrection and a number of miracles, including the raising of Lazarus from the dead.

Mr. Fuller was licensed to preach last November and was received into the Presbytery from the Baptist Church. Mr. Fuller also would not affirm his belief in certain miracles.

Comment among Presbyterians here yesterday on the Erdman Harmony committee was favorable. One who has for many years been identified with the Church here pointed out that while there is not an extreme Modernist on the list there are but two Fundamentalists. These are the Rev. Dr. Mark A. MacAfee of Seattle and the Rev. Dr. L. A. McAfee of Berkeley, Cal.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN TAKE PART IN PLAY

Patients of White Plains Branch of New York Orthopedic Hospital Hold Annual Outing.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 24.—Plaster casts and metal braces did not interfere with the enjoyment by the children of the country branch of the New York Orthopedic Hospital, of their annual play and party held on the lawn of the branch today. All of the children, from little Walter Kelly, who insisted that his part in "Queen Flora's Court" was that of Monarch of the Vine, to Gertrude Peterson, who was Queen Flora, enjoyed themselves to the utmost.

Three hundred parents, friends and visitors witnessed the production of the play by the eight of the children, who wore costumes made by themselves. They paid honor to Francis Keating, the sole graduate of the school here, an annex of Public School 192, Manhattan. The boy, who has been at the country branch of the hospital for three years, was graduated with an average of 80.5, and was one of the happiest patients here.

Following the exercises for the sole graduate, which were attended by the five teachers who conduct the classes for the children here from kindergarten through grammar school, the play was given. The children, who had made their costumes of violets, snowflakes, tiger lilies, roses, jonquils and other Spring flowers, entered fully into the spirit of the play and posed for their pictures.

The country branch of the New York Orthopedic Hospital, 630 East Fifty-eighth Street, Manhattan, has 140 children between the ages of two and fifteen as patients. There are twenty adult patients. The country branch is maintained the year around and has had considerable success in the treatment of tuberculosis of the joints.

2,000 HONOR DR. THOMPSON.

Reception for Retiring Rector of Greenwich Church and Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., June 24.—More than 2,000 persons attended a reception given by the members of Christ Episcopal Church for Dr. and Mrs. M. George Thompson at the parish house this afternoon. Dr. Thompson, who has tendered his resignation as rector after thirty years of service, will retire on June 30, becoming rector emeritus. On July 4 he and Mrs. Thompson will sail for Europe, where Dr. Thompson will attend Summer lectures at Oxford University.

The parish house where Dr. and Mrs. Thompson received was decorated with ferns, flowers and vines. Refreshments were served on the lawn. An orchestra furnished music. The receiving party, in which were Wardens and Vestrymen and their wives, included John T. Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. Presley N. Guthrie Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Garrett C. Pier, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kissam Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss W. Hatheway, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus F. Blagden, Mr. and Mrs. William Jay Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Houtter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Brush, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Selden, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Ferguson and Mr. and Mrs. William E. Finch.

Two Brides Get School Diplomas.

Special to The New York Times.

MALDEN, Mass., June 24.—Two brides were among the 114 graduates of Malden High School who received their diplomas tonight from Mrs. Charlotte Wellington of the School Committee.

They were Olive Coleman Cyr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Coleman of 900 Main Street, and Edna Eylin MacDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. I. Eylin of 26 Division Street. Both girls recently were married at Nashua, N. H., secretly, but the facts soon became known and then they decided they wanted their diplomas made out in their new names. This request was granted by Head Master Thornton Jenkins.

Ambassador Sheffield in Hospital.

James R. Sheffield, American Ambassador to Mexico, was admitted to St. Luke's Hospital last night for a minor operation.

Hospital officials declined to issue any statement concerning the nature of the Ambassador's illness.

Joffre's Condition Satisfactory.

VERSAILLES, June 24 (AP).—The condition of Marshal Joffre, who became ill with a severe cold on June 2 and was reported to have taken a turn for the worse two days ago, is satisfactory.

HONOR LA FOLLETTE AS A 'GREAT PATRIOT'

The Rev. Norman Thomas, candidate for Governor on the Socialist ticket, said at a memorial meeting for Senator La Follette at the Civic Club last night that he doubted if many of the La Follette measures, with the exception of the Seamen's act, would live long.

"But, the more I look on life itself—not merely on politics, but on the activities of labor unions and of business—the finer I think it is," he said, "that a man like La Follette can leave behind him an unsullied record. His stand on the war is now closed over, both by his friends and his enemies, but he said what is now recognized as the truth—that it was a struggle between two imperialisms. He was never a pro-German in the strict sense.

"I tremble not only for the future of this country but of civilization because it is so easy today to mobilize heat and prejudice and passion."

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of The Nation, said that when he first began writing about La Follette he believed that the Wisconsin Senator exaggerated what he said was going on in the East, and that he was superficial. Later, Mr. Villard said, he realized this viewpoint was a mistake.

"Whatever mistakes he may have made," the speaker continued, "he belonged to that small minority who are eternally right. He did one of the greatest things in the history of the American people. I refer to his magnificent stand at the time of the declaration of war. How easy it would have been for him to have sided with the majority as other Senators did.

"A false report was sent out by The Associated Press regarding his St. Paul speech in which he was quoted as saying that we had no grievance in the sinking of the Lusitania. I was on the Board of Directors of The Associated Press for a year at that time and neither he nor his friends ever told me that the St. Paul dispatch was incorrect. I caused an investigation to be made and found out that it was, and a correction was sent out. He could have sued every newspaper in the United States that printed the dispatch and gotten much of the sinews of war if he had so desired.

Charles W. Erwin, formerly editor of The New York Call, said that he chanced to be at the La Follette home in Washington when the Senator died last Thursday and that while he was at the house a telegram was received from Senator Moses of New Hampshire, one of La Follette's bitterest political enemies, which read: "I can only say Freud said of Carlyle, 'A man died today.'" Mr. Erwin said Senator La Follette had what he termed the two greatest qualities in the world, intellectual integrity and moral courage.

FLUSHING GRADUATES 125.

Principal Praises Largest Class on Scholarship and Sports.

Flushing High School awarded diplomas to 125 graduates, the largest senior class in its history, at the commencement exercises in the auditorium of the school, Broadway and Whitestone Avenue, Flushing, last night. Dr. Arthur Janes, Principal, presided at the exercises and made a congratulatory address to the students, in which he complimented them for their exceptional record, both in the class room and on the athletic field. He particularly referred to the school's baseball team.

Herbert F. Margles of Flushing was the valedictorian of the 1925 class, while Donald N. Reed of Flushing made the salutatory address. The main address of the exercises was made by Gilbert J. Raynor, Principal of the Alexander Hamilton High School of Brooklyn. Following the practice of several years standing, the Faculty of the Flushing High School gave Dr. John Eidlitz Clark, one of the early Principals of the school, the place of honor on the program. Dr. Clark presented the diplomas. Invocation and benediction were pronounced by the Rev. Caleb R. Hodges, Associate Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Flushing.

A class ballot taken before the commencement exercises and the results, which were announced last night, named Thomas Casson and Jane Sooner as the most popular boy and girl among their fellow-graduates.

WELLESLEY W. GAGE.

New York Lawyer and Member of Tammany Dies at Home in Fishkill.

Wellesley W. Gage, New York lawyer, who for many years was prominent in Tammany Hall, died yesterday at his home in Fishkill at the age of 75. He is survived by a son, W. Cecil Gage, and a daughter, Mrs. Thomas B. Spencer of 103 Park Avenue. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at his late home.

Mr. Gage was born in Hamilton, Ont., came to New York while a young man and in time was admitted to both the State Bar and that of the United States Supreme Court. He took part in important litigation in his many years of practice. On several occasions he turned down nominations for judgeships from other organizations because of his loyalty to Tammany.

His wife, who died in May, 1924, was a member of one of New York's oldest families, tracing through her mother to the Poillon family, which brought from France the original Huguenot Bible.

EX-CHIEF JUSTICE CORNISH.

Maine Jurist Dies at His Home in Augusta in His 69th Year.

AUGUSTA, Me., June 24 (AP).—Leslie C. Cornish, former Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Maine, died suddenly at his home here today. He was in his sixty-ninth year. Because of failing health he resigned as Chief Justice four months ago, before the completion of his term.

Justice Cornish was appointed to the Supreme Court bench on March 31, 1907, and on June 25, 1917, became Chief Justice. He was born in 1854 at Winslow and graduated from Colby University in 1875 and Harvard Law School five years later.

Justice Cornish had been a member of the Legislature, President of the Maine Unitarian Association and of the Augusta Savings Bank, and since 1904 Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Colby College. He also had been a director of the American Unitarian Association and President of the Maine Society, Sons of the American Revolution.

FRANK M. HALSTEAD.

Former Head of Customs Division, Washington, Dies Suddenly.

Frank M. Halstead, a member of Barnes, Wilson & Halstead and for many years Chief of the Division of Customs of the Treasury Department, died suddenly on Tuesday in his Summer home at Silver Mine, Norwalk, Conn.

Mr. Halstead was born fifty-three years ago in Tacoma, Wash. After practising law there, he became a law clerk in the Division of Customs at Washington. He rose gradually to the position of Chief of the Division. In 1919 he resigned to engage in the practice of customs law here, becoming a member of Barnes, Chilvers & Halstead, which firm later became Barnes, Wilson & Halstead.

Mr. Halstead was widely known through his customs service. His advice was frequently sought and he appeared before various committees of Congress engaged in the framing of tariff legislation.

Funeral services will be held at the home today. Burial will be in Norwalk.

Charles W. Haynes.

Special to The New York Times.

SEA CLIFF, L. I., June 24.—Charles W. Haynes, a lace importer, died at his home here Tuesday morning of kidney disease after a brief illness. He was 53 years old. Funeral services will be held at his late home tomorrow and he will be buried Friday. Mr. Haynes was a native of Massachusetts and came to Sea Cliff to live fourteen years ago.

PRESIDENT GRIEVED BY DEATH OF LADD

Writes Widow That He Had a Strong Attachment for the North Dakota Senator.

FUNERAL SERVICE TODAY

Senate Chaplain Will Officiate and Members of Congress Attend—Body Will Be Taken West.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—President Coolidge, who became Vice President on the same day that Edwin F. Ladd of North Dakota took his seat in the Senate, has written to Mrs. Ladd that her husband's death had brought to him a sense of personal loss.

The President's letter reads:

"The news of your husband's death has just come to me, bringing a shock that is the greater because I had been led to believe that his illness was not nearly so grave as this sad event proves. It brings me a sense of personal loss, because of the strong feeling of attachment which I formed for him during our service together in the Senate. He became Senator on the same day that I became Vice President, and throughout my service there I had occasion many times to note the faithfulness and regularity of his service in attending the sessions of the Senate. On this account, as well as because of his uniformly close touch with the business of the body, I frequently was pleased to call him to the chair to preside during my own temporary absence.

"As educator, publisher and public official, Senator Ladd's life had been given almost entirely to the public service, always with the same devotion that marked his work in the Senate. I wish you to know how much I feel the sense of his loss and to join you of the sorrow with which Mrs. Coolidge and myself have received the news. To you and the others of his family we send profoundest condolences."

Funeral Services Today.

The funeral services for Senator Ladd will take place tomorrow afternoon and will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. J. Muir, chaplain of the Senate, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Clark, pastor of the Takoma Presbyterian Church. After the service, which will be held at an undertaker's parlor, the body will be taken to a vault in Glenwood Cemetery, where it will remain until Mrs. Ladd is well enough to make the trip to North Dakota for the burial.

The active pallbearers will be former Representative J. M. Baer of North Dakota; George Wallace, attorney; Westbrook Anderson, North Dakota Farmer-Labor Party leader; Hunter Creech of The Dearborn Independent; Douglas MacArthur, Secretary to Senator Ladd, and C. F. Nolan of New York City.

The services will be attended by members of the Senate and the House, and when the body is taken to North Dakota a special committee from the two houses will make the journey.

Mrs. La Follette Writes.

Mrs. Ladd has received messages of sympathy from all over the country. Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, who had gone to Wisconsin with her husband's body, telegraphed on the day of his funeral, which was also the day of Senator Ladd's death:

"On behalf of myself and the children I offer our deepest sympathy to you and yours. Your life of unflinching devotion to the common people will assure him a lasting place in their hearts. He was Mr. La Follette's good friend. We share your loss."

Secretary Kellogg sent this letter:

"Mrs. Kellogg and I wish to express to you our deepest sympathy in this hour of great sorrow. We were shocked when we received the news, for we had no idea that the Senator was so seriously ill. During my term in the Senate I came to know your husband intimately; he was one of my best friends. I am sure that his passing will be keenly felt by all his friends and colleagues."

Secretary Hoover wired from San Francisco:

"Am greatly shocked at the news of Senator Ladd's death. He had been long my friend. I trust you may be given strength to carry you through this time."

Telegrams came also from Senator Capper of Kansas, Harreld of Oklahoma, Cameron of Arizona and Edge of New Jersey, and from Federal Judge Andrew Miller, former Governors R. A. Nestor and R. Hanna, former Representatives Sinclair and Burtness and former Senator Hansbrough, all of North Dakota.

George W. Stokes.

George W. Stokes, a retired mining engineer, Civil War veteran and pioneer in the Western gold camps, died suddenly yesterday at his home at 16 West 102d Street in his seventy-seventh year. He is survived by a son and a daughter. He had crossed the plains from his home in Missouri to Colorado early in the Civil War and made the trip back again at the age of sixteen to fight the last year of the war with the Thirty-ninth Missouri Volunteers. He came here in 1868. He was for some years commander of the Lafayette Post of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Benjamin Arthur Ayerigg.

Benjamin Arthur Ayerigg, a real estate operator and a member of a socially prominent family, died suddenly yesterday at his home at 1,158 Fifth Avenue. He was 62 years old. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Florence Young Ayerigg, and a brother, William A. Ayerigg of Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. He was the youngest son of the late Dr. Benjamin Bogart and Catherine Anderson Ayerigg. His real estate offices were at 105 Chambers Street. He never held political office, but had been active in local Republican politics.

QUESTION ACCUSERS IN MARKET INQUIRY

LAY CHARGES TO ANGER

Pushcart Man Says 10-Cent Fee Was Refused, and Thrown Back at Giver.

Supervisors Edward Klein, Nathan Haas and Henry Mandelbaum of the Department of Public Markets, accused by various witnesses in the investigation which Magistrate George W. Simpson is conducting, were confronted by their accusers yesterday and received the privilege of cross-examining, through Assistant District Attorney, Jacob Gould Schurman Jr., the men who have made charges against them.

Each of the supervisors stoutly denied all allegations of improper solicitation or extortion. They declared that the prejudice against them which prompted the peddlers' charges was possibly due to the fact the supervisors had been obliged, in the pursuit of their duty, to issue summonses compelling the peddlers to answer charges of market rule violations.

Carl Brenner, one of the complaining witnesses, when recalled to the stand, admitted that he never had paid money personally to Mandelbaum, but insisted that he had seen Mandelbaum make Sunday collections of 50 cents apiece in the Avenue C market from a considerable number of peddlers, one of whom, he said, was named Kastenbaum. "I made charges against the supervisor," sid Brenner.

"Did Mandelbaum collect money at Christmas time?" asked Mr. Schurman.

Threw Dime Back, He Says.

"No; peddlers collected it for him."

Mandelbaum, according to the testimony of Louis Herbst, refused to receive from peddlers' contributions smaller than 50 cents. After swearing that he had paid 50 cents to the supervisor, who had refused to accept a quarter from him and had accept the half-dollar with seeming reluctance, Herbst declared that another peddler had offered to Mandelbaum a dime.

"And what did he do with the dime?" asked the Prosecutor.

"He threw it back at the man," replied the witness.

"Just what did Mandelbaum do and say to you?" inquired Magistrate Simpson.

"He held out his hand, in which was some loose silver, and said: 'I want half a dollar.'"

"And what did you do?" continued the Court.

"I offered him a quarter. He refused it and said he must have half a dollar." With a shrug of the shoulders, the witness added: "So I paid him the half-dollar."

Jacob Herbst, brother of the preceding witness, also swore to having been solicited for 50 cents by Mandelbaum, who told him it was "for protection."

Magistrate Simpson's query concerning the nature of the "protection" elicited the explanation that it was protection against being interfered with while peddling on Sundays.

"Did you pay the 50 cents?" asked the Court.

"No. I told Mandelbaum I was busy, and he said he'd come back later. He didn't come."

Louis Raines testified that, while he never had given money personally to Supervisor "Nat" Haas, he had given $5 to a man named Simon, Haas's friend, after "Nat" had told him to "talk to his friend."

"I saw Simon yesterday," said Raines, "and he called me a squealer."

"How do you know the money you gave to Simon was for Haas?" asked Magistrate Simpson.

"I gave $15 in all to Simon," said Raines. "Haas told me to see his friend. But I never saw Simon give any of the money to Haas. I only know that Simon took the money away." Raines said that Haas personally never had asked him for money.

Louis Greenberg, recalled at the request of Haas, was questioned by Assistant District Attorney Schurman, to whom Haas suggested the questions. Greenberg reiterated his original testimany. Haas, he declared, had demanded from him $1, instead of 50 cents, for one half day's privilege, and had caused his arrest after he had refused to pay.

Says Peddlers Were Angry.

Samuel Weinstock testified that he had looked on while Jacob Belsky had paid Mandelbaum 50 cents for protection on the Sunday immediately preceding the Jewish New Year. Weinstock said he had refused to comply with Mandelbaum's suggestion that he also pay up, and he stood only two or three feet from Belsky when the latter surrendered 50 cents.

Belsky corroborated Weinstock, admitting that he had paid the 50 cents to Mandelbaum on the date named.

Mandelbaum had each of the witnesses against him interrogated. They were asked whether they were not angry with the supervisor because he had ordered them to have their push-carts cut down in length in accordance with a department ruling. Each denied any such feeling.

Joseph Kehoe, Assistant Supervisor to Mandelbaum, swore that he accompanied Mandelbaum whenever the latter collected money in the market; that he never had known him to make any collections except of the regular weekly fees for stands, and that when these were collected Mandelbaum took the money and the witness made out and delivered receipts for every penny collected. "All peddlers who were ordered to cut down the length of their carts were sore," declared Kehoe. "Some were served with summonses for failing to comply with the order. They all kicked about having to do it."

Jacob Simon of 82 First Avenue advanced an uncollected debt of $54, asserted to be due him from Louis Raines, as the reason for the charges made against him earlier in the day by Raines.

Raines had asserted that Simon had collected from him $15, the money being paid, he said, with the thought that Simon had been authorized to collect for Supervisor Nathan Haas. Simon denied flatly that he had made such collections and added that he had never had any relations such as had been charged with any one connected with the Department of Markets.

Magistrate Simpson in adjourning the hearing said all persons against whom accusations had been made would receive further opportunity for reply at the next hearing, which was set down for tomorrow at 10:30 A. M. The Magistrate said after the hearing that he expected to finish the "John Doe" proceedings tomorrow.

LOUISIANA TOWN TAXLESS.

Port Allen to Meet All Charges With Ferry Revenue.

PORT ALLEN, La., June 24.—(AP)—"The taxless town" is the slogan adopted by this junction point.

Across the Mississippi River from Baton Rouge, the State Capital, Port Allen, with a population of "not less than 500," will have city lighting, water, sewerage, fire and police protection without having to pay taxes for it all.

By virtue of a recently awarded contract for a ferry franchise between its riverfront and that of Baton Rouge, Port Allen will receive an annual revenue which is estimated to assure perpetual freedom from the tax bogey.

SPECIAL LIBRARIANS MEET AT SWAMPSCOTT

Gather From Many Cities for Convention and Discussion of Problems.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., June 24.—The sixteenth annual convention of the Special Libraries Association opened here today with one of the largest attendances in recent years. Charles F. D. Belden, Director of the Boston Public Library and nominee for President of the American Library Association, gave the address of welcome, and Miss Rebecca B. Rankin, librarian of the Municipal Reference Library of New York, responded.

Reports of the Secretary and Treasurer showed the association in excellent condition. President D. N. Handy, in his annual report, urged harmony and close co-operation with the American Library Association but opposed any suggestion of merging with it.

During the afternoon the convention divided into group meetings, the most active of which was the group of newspaper librarians, which met for its third annual conference. Members were present from cities extending from Boston to Baltimore and Milwaukee. Joseph F. Kwapil, librarian of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, presided. The subject for discussion was filing systems for newspaper clippings.

Speakers in the symposium were James W. Wells of The New York World, Miss Agnes J. Petersen of The Milwaukee Journal, John H. Wilbur of the King Features Syndicate of New York, Mrs. Alice N. Landberg of The Portland (Me.) Express and Mr. Kwapil. Paul P. Foster of The Boston Herald reference department led a round table discussion on problems of newspaper reference departments.

In the advertising, commercial and industrial group the speakers included Miss Mary L. Alexander of Barton, Durstine & Osborne, Miss Harriet Elias of the George Batten Company and Miss Grace B. Aikenhead of the W. T. Grant Company, all of New York, and Mrs. Grace C. Bevan of Hartford, Conn.

In the financial group, Miss Eleanor Cavanaugh of the Standard Statistics Company was the speaker.

Miss Florence Bradley, librarian of the Metropolitan Insurance library of New York, presided at the meeting of the insurance group, and Francis N. Cady of Cleveland presided over the technology group.

Hamilton Holt, former editor of The Independent, speaking to 300 members of the Massachusetts Library Club and other New England libraries on "Editing a Magazine," said that the manager of a periodical must comply with the ownership and quoted Adolph S. Ochs, published of THE NEW YORK TIMES, to the effect that "no periodical is a success without a dominating personality."

DENY PINCHOT CAUSED TAFT TO AVOID YALE

Friends Explain Absence of Chief Justice From Commencement by His Physical Condition.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 24.—Denial was made tonight by friends of former President William Howard Taft of the story that he refused to attend the recent commencement exercises at Yale University because he would have been compelled to sit on the platform with Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania and, as a member of the University Corporation, confer an honorary degree upon him.

The Waterbury American, which for many years has spoken with authority on matters connected with Mr. Taft, said editorially that the story assigned a reason for his absence which was considered impossible by those who know him; that he remained away under his doctor's advice to avoid the tremendous strain that would have been placed upon him by the demands of his old Yale friends to meet and enjoy a reunion with him.

He resigned from the University Corporation for the same reason, desiring to conserve his strength for his judicial duties, it is pointed out by The American. Chief Justice Taft stopped here the week before commencement on his way to Canada and called on President Angell of Yale.

Justice Taft's friends pointed out that during all his controversy with ex-President Roosevelt he never lost personal relationship with him and that they exchanged several letters before Mr. Roosevelt's death.

When Professor William Lyon Phelps introduced Governor Pinchot to President Angell as candidate for his honorary degree, he said that, like Grover Cleveland, Mr. Pinchot was admired for the enemies he had made.

The discussion over Justice Taft's failure to come here recalls the attack on his conservation policy when he was President by Mr. Pinchot, who was then Chief Forester. The attack led to an investigation of Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, and Mr. Roosevelt joined in the criticism by going to Mr. Ballinger's home State of Washington to make an attack on him in a public speech.

CALIFORNIA WINS 'IRON MAN'

Dreadnought Takes Battleship Fleet's Athletic Competition Trophy

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—After a nip-and-tuck race the dreadnought California, flagship of the Battleship Fleet, has forged ahead of the Pennsylvania and won the eagerly sought "iron man" in the battle fleet competition for the athletic year 1924-25. The Tennessee was a close third. The contest was decided when the California's team won the tug-of-war. Consistent work in all branches of athletics won the "iron man" for the California. Last year the Mississippi won the trophy.

The competition has been completed save for the track meet, which will be held during the latter part of June, and for which no points are awarded, and three unplayed baseball games, which do not affect the standings of the first six ships in the competition for the General Excellence Trophy.

The standing in the competition for the "iron man" is as follows:

Jersey Central Runs 1st Elevated.

Special to The New York Times.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., June 24.—The first train on the newly completed elevated tracks of the Central Railroad of New Jersey was run through here this morning. Work of elevating the tracks within the city limits has been in progress for some time and both east and west tracks are now in operation. Moving the roundhouse and the erection of a new terminal will not be completed until the end of the year. The whole project will cost about $2,000,000.

Building Trades Back Defense Day.

The Building Trades Council of New York, Long Island and vicinity has unanimously endorsed the Defense Day test to be held July 4. It was announced yesterday at the Army Information Office. In the same resolution the Council urged members of its affiliated unions to participate in patriotic demonstrations on that date and advocated inviting the army to participate in Labor Day celebrations.

CHARGES FLY FAST OVER NICKEL PLATE

Counsel for Dissenters Demands Right to Question O. P. Van Sweringen on Early Deals.

HE ALLEGES LARGE PROFITS

Intimates New York Central Is Behind the Merger—Baker Replies for Brothers.

IMPUGNS CRITICS' MOTIVES

Purpose Is to Delay Plans Indefinitely So as to Force Better Terms for Their Stock, He Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24.—A climax was reached today in the fight over the application of the Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland to merge five great railroads into a unified system, when opponents of the proposal demanded that O. P. Van Sweringen answer questions relating to the most minute details of financial transactions. Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, appearing for the Van Sweringen interests, countered by characterizing the opponents as Paul Prys and Meddling Matties, whose real purpose was to prolong the hearings in the expectation of defeating the merger plan unless a small group of minority stockholders of the Chesapeake & Ohio, one of the railroads involved, received better terms.

The arguments were heard by the full Interstate Commerce Commission, and addresses, during which bitter exchanges were frequent, were made by Mr. Baker and by Colonel H. W. Anderson, the latter representing the dissenters. At its conclusion the commission announced that its decision would be made within a few days. In the meantime hearings will be continued for the finance division tomorrow on the merger plan, when O. P. Van Sweringen will give direct testimony.

The most important issue involved in the arguments today was whether the commission will compel Mr. Van Sweringen to answer certain questions about his early financial transactions, which he refused to answer on advice of counsel at the last session. Colonel Anderson contended that it was necessary to obtain these answers in order to supply proof of his accusation that the New York Central Railroad and certain important financial interests of New York and Cleveland which are interested in the New York Central also were behind the Van Sweringens in their proposal to merge the Nickel Plate, Chesapeake & Ohio, Hocking Valley, Erie and Pere Marquette Railroads into a unified system, the valuation of which was estimated today at $1,500,000,000.

Dissenters See Big Profits.

Colonel Anderson declared that if the merger plan was permitted to go through the Van Sweringens and their associates would come out of it with common stock holdings which would give them a controlling interest of the merged lines, and a profit of anywhere from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000, although they had started out on their careers as railroad financiers about nine years ago with comparatively little capital. He expressed the belief that the financial trail followed by the Van Sweringens was in fact but another form of the "high finance" which he brought into demnation on railroad promoters of other years, and contended that they should be checked.

"The time has come," said Colonel Anderson, "when the commission must decide whether the transportation service is to serve the public or to create millionaires to break the bank at Monte Carlo."

To such charges Mr. Baker answered sharply, stating that all of the profits made so far by the Van Sweringens had come from the appreciation of stock values which had resulted from the upbuilding of roads that had been inefficient non-dividend payers until the brothers took hold of them. Neither the New York Central nor any other railroad interest, except those directly included in the merger plans, he said, was among the financial backers of the proposed consolidation, and the system sponsored by the Van Sweringens was in fact, he said, a competitor of the New York Central Railroad. Mr. Van Sweringen, he said, was ready to answer all questions which had to do with the merger, but protested against the course of the opponents which sought to go beyond that phase of the investigation, and, after casting unwarranted suspicion on the motives of the brothers, delve into their earlier activities.

Clash on Purchases of Stock.

Mr. Baker declared that members of the committee representing the minority group purchased 7,000 shares or more of Chesapeake & Ohio stock after the merger plan was announced. Colonel Anderson replied that of the 500 stockholders comprising the opposition forces most had held their shares for years.

Colonel Anderson persisted in his charges that the New York Central was backing the Van Sweringens and held that it was necessary to uncover in detail all of the early financial activities of the brothers by forcing testimony from them to establish this fact. He contended that in the development of the Cleveland Union Terminal the New York Central had aided the Van Sweringens when they were in sore need of it and had made it possible for them to realize a large profit. It was inconceivable to him, said Colonel Anderson, that such aid would be given unless there was some good reason.

Colonel Anderson said that he felt it might be proved that the Van Sweringens were on the way to make a profit of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 as a result of these early deals. He contended also that the same banking interests which were interested in the New York Central were interested in the Erie and Pere Marquette railroads.

The further charge was made by Colonel Anderson that the methods employed by the Van Sweringens in obtaining control of the lines which it was proposed to merge were open to sharp criticism. Under the plan of operation, as shown by the proposal, common stock holdings of the companies to be merged are exchangeable for preferred stock in the new unified system, giving a higher return, but without voting power. The Van Sweringens, contended Colonel Anderson, bought up common and preferred stock of the companies to be merged, and then after obtaining voting control through common stock secured through purchases and exchanges, sold their preferred non-voting stock and paid for the common stock holdings with the money thus obtained. He questioned the advisability of permitting such a plan.

Mr. Baker, for the Van Sweringens, ridiculed Colonel Anderson for producing at this time as a dark conspiracy the fact that such a procedure was being put into effect. He called attention to the fact that the Van Sweringens had carried out just such a plan in consolidating three lines into the present Nickel Plate system, and that the policy of issuing non-voting preferred stock in exchange for common stock in the unified system had been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Urges "Deeper" Investigation.

The hearings had been prolonged, Colonel Anderson said, not because of questionable tactics by the opponents, but because the Van Sweringens had failed to place the testimony desired before the commission. O. P. Van Sweringen, he said, had decided to appear only after six weeks and then had come with a statement which he had spent a month preparing and which had been checked by counsel.

Colonel Anderson said that the minority group was seeking to show that assets of the railroads involved had been used to make profits for the Van Sweringens and that this should not be permitted by the commission. A bond issue of the Nickel Plate, he said, had been used to buy 155,000 shares or a controlling interest in the Chesapeake & Ohio and the stock thus purchased was retained by the Nickel Plate, which was owned by the Van Sweringens.

Colonel Anderson said he was unwilling to accept the prepared statement by the Van Sweringens about their activities and felt that the commission should go deeper. It would be possible to get away with anything, he held, if a statement of the kind was simply accepted at its face value by the commission.

The only way to obtain the facts about the real interests that might be stockholders in the Van Sweringen ventures, Colonel Anderson said, was to get the information from Mr. Van Sweringen, who knew the facts.

Piece of the Blarney Stone Bequeathed in Will Here

The value of the estate of Jeremiah Joseph Wright, who was born in Ireland and who died in this city on Dec. 28 last, is given in the petition filed with his will in the Surrogates' Court yesterday as $1,400. The estate includes, among other personal effects, a piece of the Blarney Stone, a reel sod of Irish turf, and a piece of the Treaty Stone of Limerick.

These, together with a pair of field glasses, first choice of a collection of cigar holders and blackthorn walking sticks, are given to Thomas F. Noonan of 446 West Twenty-fourth Street. A steel tape measure and second choice of the cigar holders and blackthorn sticks are left to Charles Cossi of Mount Vernon. John Roache of 128 Remsen Street, Brooklyn, gets third choice of the two collections, and relatives in Ireland receive legacies.

KIDNAPPING RUMOR AROUSES GRAVESEND

Baby Missing Six Hours Is Finally Found Asleep in Hallway Four Doors From Home.

For more than six hours last night the police and several hundred residents of the Gravesend section of Brooklyn searched for 18-months-old Clara Storelli of 2,118 West Eighth Street in the belief that she had been kidnapped while playing in a lot near her home. At 12:30 oclock this morning the child was found asleep in a hallway four doors from her home, with a rag doll clasped to her breast.

Clara, who is the youngest of seven children of Mateo and Julia Storelli, shortly after 5 o'clock was taken to the lot by her sister Lucy, 9 years old, where Lucy began "playing house" with several girl chums. Lucy started home at 6 P. M., and discovered that Clara had disappeared. She hurried home to be told by her mother, who was ill in bed, that Clara had not appeared.

Storelli returned from his work soon afterward and, believing that a neighbor had taken in the child, began a canvass of houses in the vicinity. When no trace was found of the little girl the neighbors became excited, many of the women expressing the belief that Clara had been kidnapped by blackhanders for ransom. Storelli told them that no threat had been received by him and then his friends demanded that he hurry to the Bath Beach Station and report Clara's disappearance.

Detective Sergeant Gricco and Sergeant Gormley jumped into automobiles and started on a tour of the Gravesend and Sheepshead Bay districts. In their rounds they enlisted all the policemen they encountered.

All sorts of rumors began to be handed about in connection with the child's disappearance. Stories of mysterious strangers in the vicinity soon had the parents and the neighbors in a high state of excitement. The police and the parents of the child were in conference in the Storelli home after midnight when a resident in the house four doors away walked in with Clara asleep on his shoulder. He said he stumbled over the little girl at the foot of the ground floor stairway and she was so sleepy that she didn't even open her eyes when he picked her up. The police expressed the belief that the little girl had wandered about the lots in the vicinity until after nightfall and then had entered the neighbor's house, thinking it her own.

CZAR'S NEPHEW LOST FORTUNE IN LONDON

Prince Andrew Romanoff's Bankruptcy Proceedings Reveal How His Assets Dwindled to $21.75.

LONDON, June 24.—A story of how a nephew of the late Czar of Russia—Prince Andrew Alexandrovitch Romanoff—spent $60,000 in repeated efforts to become a London business man and finally was forced into bankruptcy, with total assets of $21.75, was disclosed in court today.

All of the Prince's estate was confiscated by the Bolsheviki, and he left Russia in 1919, coming to London three years later. His ambitious plan of giving London a smart sporting club in Regents Park failed for $45,000, due to lack of capital. Cigarette manufacturing and selling automobiles proved equally difficult for the former court favorite.

The Court upheld the receiver's charge that the Prince's struggles in search of elusive pounds were nothing more than "rash, hasardous speculation."

TARTOUE TRIAL BEGINS.

Artist Started Divorce Action Against His Wife 4 Years Ago.

The divorce suit of Pierre Tartoue, an artist, against Claudia Windsor Tartoue was begun yesterday in the Supreme Court before Justice Hatting and a jury, four years after the initiation of litigation between them in which the Tartoues charge each other with misconduct.

Joseph Rodeschini of 17 East 108th Street, a chauffeur, testified he drove Mrs. Tartoue and Rinato Zanelli, a singer, to roadhouses in 1921 and often saw them kissing. He also told of a man named D. Caswell accompanying Mrs. Tartoue to roadhouses and parties, and declared she was often intoxicated. Arcole Eugicini testified Mrs. Tartoue drove with many men, and the night manager of the Continental Hotel stated she registered there with a man not her husband.

Mrs. Anna Robertson, wife of Harold Robertson, named as a correspondent, testified that during her own engagement to marry Mr. Robertson she found him and Mrs. Tartoue together in an apartment at 131 Riverside Drive. The trial will be continued today.

CHAMBERS IS HELD ON STEUER'S CHARGE

Symington Divorce Witness to Be Tried in Special Sessions for Misconduct.

Flushes in Court as Case Is Discussed—Divorce Trial to Go On Today.

Talbot W. Chambers, who testified in a divorce trial last week to misconduct with Mrs. Ida May Symington, was held by Supreme Court Justice John Ford yesterday afternoon in $1,000 bail for trial in the Court of Special Sessions on the charge of adultery. Edward Hackett, elevator operator, who testified that he took Chambers and Mrs. Symington to the Symington apartment, was held in $500 bail as a material witness.

Chambers, during the brief hearing yesterday, sat with his head bowed and his fingers playing nervously with his soft gray hat—a tall, slim, handsome young man with curly brown hair and immaculately dressed. His face flushed as the lawyers discussed his case.

Justice Ford, who adjourned the divorce action for a day to hear the adultery case, sat as a committing Magistrate. Mrs. Symington's attorney, Max D. Steuer, who preferred the charge after Chambers had testified against Mrs. Symington, called Harry W. Wood, clerk of Justice Ford's Court, as the first witness. While he testified, Wood took down Mr. Steuer's questions and his own answers in shorthand for the official court record.

Repeats Chambers's Testimony.

Wood gave evidence that Chambers, as a witness in the divorce action on June 19, testified that he had driven to Morristown, N. J., on Saturday, March 15, to spend the week-end with Mrs. Symington; that he had driven Mrs. Symington and another couple back to New York in his own car the next evening; that he had dropped the other couple at their homes, and that he then had accompanied Mrs. Symington to her apartment at 125 East Sixty-third Street. Wood said that Chambers admitted he went with Mrs. Symington to her apartment about 10 or 11 o'clock and remained for two hours, committing the misconduct which Symington alleged in bringing his divorce action.

Hackett, the elevator operator, who lives in Miami, Fla., was then called. He repeated his testimony at the divorce trial—that he had taken Chambers and Mrs. Symington up to the Symington apartment on the night of March 15 and that he had taken Chambers down two hours later.

No other witness was called by Mr. Steuer, and no evidence was introduced by the defense. Colonel William Rand, former Assistant District Attorney, as attorney for Chambers, asked the dismissal of the case on the ground of insufficient evidence. He argued that the criminal code held that a confession was not sufficient to convict without corroborative evidence. Hackett's attorney, he said, was not sufficient corroboration. He contended that Hackett's testimony that Chambers and Mrs. Symington had been together in the apartment for two hours was not evidence of the misdemeanor alleged. The kind of corroborative evidence necessary under the law he went on, was the testimony of a maid or some other servant.

Justice Ford asserted that he regarded the elevator operator's testimony as sufficient corroboration.

"I have granted divorces on evidence no stronger than this testimony that a man and woman were secluded in a room together for two hours," said Justice Ford.

Refers to Cocktail Parties.

Colonel Rand insisted there was no evidence before the Court that Chambers and Mrs. Symington had been alone in the apartment. Referring to Justice Ford's comment at the divorce trial on Tuesday that cocktail parties and kissing were no evidence of immorality and that his own daughter gave cocktail parties, Colonel Rand added:

"For all that appears on the record, there may have been going on one of those cocktail parties I read about in this morning's paper."

"I think Colonel Rand is getting facetious at the expense of the wrong person," Mr. Steuer remarked dryly. Justice Ford indicated that he did not when he picked her up. The police expressed the belief that the little girl had wandered about the lots in the vicinity until after nightfall and then had entered the neighbor's house, thinking it her own.

Mr. Steuer had the court clerk read additional testimony by Chambers at the divorce trial, to the effect that he had seen no one in the apartment at the time he visited Mrs. Symington. The hearing ended when Justice Ford, saying he thought the corroborative evidence sufficient to show that a crime had been committed, denied the motion to dismiss and held Chambers over for trial. He continued the bail in which Chambers and Hackett had been held at the time of their arrest. Chambers, who pleaded guilty at his first arraignment on Tuesday, reserving the privilege to change his plea at yesterday's hearing, allowed the not guilty plea to stand.

After the hearing closed, the question was discussed among lawyers whether Chambers necessarily would risk a charge of perjury by defending the adultery case. It was pointed out that his plea of not guilty is not enough on which to convict him of perjury, as the plea is not necessarily a denial of guilt, but may mean only that the defendant believes the evidence insufficient to convict. The situation would be different, it was said, if he should take the witness stand in the adultery case and deny his testimony in the divorce action.

The divorce action will proceed this morning on thirteen of the nineteen charges of misconduct originally preferred by Symington. J. W. Young, attorney for Symington, on Tuesday withdrew six charges to which Maurice Fatio, an architect, was co-respondent. Other charges involve Fatio, but the case may go to the jury solely on the charges to which Chambers is co-respondent.

The first witness for Mrs. Symington will testify today. The defense is expected to conclude its case tomorrow. The divorce case will go to the jury before the adultery case comes up in court.

WON'T REBUILD HOTEL.

Famous Gedney Farm Site to Be Sold for Home Plots.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, June 24.—Gedney Farm Hotel, which burned last Fall, will not be rebuilt, according to an announcement made here today by Hyman Shatz, who heads a syndicate that has purchased the hotel site from Edward H. Crandell.

Inability of the syndicate to negotiate a loan of $1,500,000 for the reconstruction is given as the reason for abandonment of the elaborate plans for the new building. The site, where society held many famous entertainments, is to be divided and sold for home building plots.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., June 24.—Alleging that a manicure girl stole his wife's diamond ring with a platinum setting from his finger while his nails were being treated, Walter Cassedy of the Hotel Osborne here today swore out a warrant for the woman, Mrs. Alta Kelser, who is charged with first degree grand larceny.

Cassedy says that the theft occurred on March 15, when he was under the influence of liquor.

Phone, Airplane, Radio Win Swindler Parole; Bring Fingerprints to Show He Is Not Ex-Felon

Douglas Mackenzie, 32 years old, who gave his occupation as a motion picture actor and his address as 12 West Fifty-fifth Street, was spared a five-year term in Sing Sing yesterday when Detective Hammersley of the Bureau of Criminal Identification told Judge Mancuso in General Sessions that fingerprints had proved MacKenzie was not a man of the same name who had a criminal record in Oakland, Cal., as the police at first suspected.

MacKenzie had pleaded guilty June 12 to an indictment charging him with grand larceny in the second degree in defrauding Saks & Co. by raising a credit voucher from $8.50 to $80.50. That was the specific charge, but store detectives reported that MacKenzie had defrauded the firm out of $684 altogether by the same means. His method was to make a small purchase in Saks & Co.'s Broadway store and returning it as unsatisfactory to the Fifth Avenue store receive a credit voucher for it, which he would raise and present for remittance.

By means of the cooperation between distant cities developed through the International Police Conference, the police here learned that a man named MacKenzie had a criminal record in California. They became convinced that the prisoner was this man when he said that although born in Scotland and educated in Winnipeg, Canada, he had traveled through this country as far as California, after serving with the Canadian forces in France.

An appeal was made to the California authorities for fingerprints, photographs and the criminal record of the man there. A radio message from California informed the police here that the data had been sent by air mail, to enable detectives to present it to Judge Mancuso when MacKenzie was arraigned for sentence. MacKenzie denied having a criminal record. When he was brought before Judge Mancuso yesterday Detective Hammersley said he had discovered that although the prisoner corresponded in looks and description to the California criminal, there was a slight difference in the fingerprints of the two men. One had a spiral whorl and the other an elliptical whorl on his fingers.

"Modern science has stepped in to aid you," Judge Mancuso informed the prisoner. "A man named John MacKenzie, the same age as you, who was born in Scotland just as you were, who has the same brown eyes, is of the same height and weight, who wears the same sized hats and shoes, and whose photograph is identical with yours, has a criminal record.

"In the old days, on the strength of these almost conclusive proofs that you were he, I should have sent you to prison. The long-distance telephone, the radio and the airplane have all assisted the Court in checking up your record and in determining that you are not that MacKenzie. The fingerprints show that. Therefore I shall suspend sentence in your case."

JURIST'S DAUGHTER BACKS MODERN GIRL

Mrs. Esther Ford Wait Declares They Are as Wholesome as Their Predecessors.

WOULD CURB YOUNG MEN

Justice Says Short Dresses Are a Matter of Fashion, Not of Morality.

Mrs. Esther Ford Wait, young married daughter of Supreme Court Justice John Ford, gave her views of cocktail parties and the modern young person in an interview yesterday. On Tuesday her father had cited her as an example of a nice young woman who gave cocktail parties, to show that evidence of such parties in the Symington divorce case was no proof of misconduct on the part of Mrs. Ida May Symington.

"I favor prohibition," said Mrs. Wait. "That is, I think it would be an excellent thing if it could be enforced. But, as it cannot be enforced, I see no harm in taking a drink or two when I go out to bridge parties, or in serving cocktails when I have some friends in for dinner.

"The day before the Symington trial I had attended a bridge party, at which the cocktails had gone around three times. I told father about it, and he made a wry face, for he hates drinking. He never touches anything himself, not even home brew. When the cocktail tray goes around when he is here he turns up his nose. But he holds very sensible views on modern manners.

"Mrs. Wait agreed with her father that the modern generation was just as moral as past generations, despite its different standards of conduct.

"This generation is not going to the dogs," she said. "The present day girl is as pure and wholesome as her predecessor. I am entirely against indiscriminate drinking and pajama parties for boys and girls. They are too young and impulsive. Boys and girls are permitted far too much freedom by their parents. Home influence is the best corrective for bad habits. If I had a daughter in her teens, I would not let her go to parties before she was sixteen. Until she was eighteen she would have a chaperon. After she was eighteen I would let her go out alone until a reasonable hour. At eighteen a girl's opinions, habits and character are formed, and she will go straight or not, according to what she has learned and done previously. Young men should be allowed less freedom than young girls, for they are more dangerous than girls when they are gadding about on the loose."

Justice Ford said yesterday that his cocktail drinking statement at the Symington trial did not mean that he had modified his opinion that immoral literature was an evil influence on the younger generation.

"There is nothing irreconcilable in what I said about the morality of the present generation and my position on modern literature," said Justice Ford. "When I think of some of the things that used to happen when I was a young man, I believe that conditions are very good today. But that does not mean that we should relax our vigilance against evil influences. Immoral literature is a social evil, just the same as prostitution, gambling or intoxication. No sane person would think of suggesting a return to the days of wide-open gambling houses in New York, and no one should tolerate the circulation of books that have an evil influence upon morality."

Justice Ford said that his remarks about his own daughter giving cocktail parties was the result of evidence regarding cocktail drinking in the Symington case, and that he wished to point out that the manners of the present generation had nothing to do with its morality.

"Whether a woman wishes to wear her dresses long or short is a question of fashion, not of morality," he went on. "Cocktail drinking and cigarette smoking by women are questions of manners, not of morality. I do not like to see them drink cocktails and smoke cigarettes; but nice women do both. Everybody knows that they do, but no one will admit it. The papers came out this morning with big headlines, and everybody said: 'Oh, Justice Ford condones cocktail drinking.' I do nothing of the sort, but I simply say that it is being done all the time.

"My married daughter, to whom I referred, lives very modestly uptown with her husband and child. She has school friends who invite her to their homes and they always serve cocktails. A little while ago she gave them a party and she served cocktails also. That was all there was to it."

HECKSCHER WILLING TO FINANCE S. P. C. C.

Philanthropist Says He Could Improve on the Society's Present Methods.

WOULD GET NEW MANAGER

Another Witness at Hearing Tells of Agents' Rendezvous in Harlem Saloon.

August Heckscher was the principal witness heard yesterday when Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield resumed his hearing to determine whether the city should continue its financial aid to the maintenance of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Under direct examination by his attorney, Dallet H. Wilson, Mr. Heckscher formally reiterated his offer to take over and carry on the enforcement work of the society at an annual cost of $125,000. The society has requested for that purpose an appropriation from the Board of Estimate of $155,000.

Mr. Heckscher declared he stood ready to take over the enforcement end of the work within sixty days and that he would guarantee to do the work more humanely and more economically than it is being done at the present time. He suggested further that his management be supervised by a city official and that a committee of prominent men and women be named by the Mayor to oversee his conduct of the society's affairs.

When asked how he would manage the society, Mr. Heckscher declared that he saw no material difficulty in doing the work and doing it properly. He said that, in the first place, he would begin by dismissing the present Superintendent, who, he added, had done excellent work in that position, but was not, in his opinion, a good manager. He added that he would try to retain the assistance of the present superintendent and keep in service the employes in the enforcement branch, and would rely for further aid and cooperation upon the "Big Sister" and "Big Brother" organizations.

Mr. Heckscher, whose philanthropy supplied the society's present building, said that, if entrusted with the management, he would personally check up every case brought into the society and, instead of absorbing the children into the institution, he would, whenever possible and desirable, leave them in the environment of their own homes. Further, wherever conditions made it feasible, he would return to their homes such children as are now under the watchful care of the organization. In cases where conditions were unfavorable or where children were incorrigible, he said he would at least place them in some shelter where they could be nurtured apart from contact with hardened criminals.

The witness admitted he might lose money at first. He said he would follow methods used by such institutions in this country and in England. He added that a personal guarantee of $10,000 he had offered to bring the managers of similar societies in England to this country to explain their methods, but that the offer had been rejected.

According to Mr. Heckscher, Police Commissioner Enright recently told him that 70 per cent. of the society's work was done by the police.

Outerbridge Horsey, attorney for the society, asked Mr. Heckscher if he was aware that many of the children brought into the society were demanded there by the courts. The philanthropist replied that if such was the case, the harm had already been done when the agents sent the children to the court.

At the opening of the hearing, Mr. Wilson called John D. Tierney, a private detective agency operative, who testified that on May 1 of this year he was called to Wilson's offices and engaged to watch the movements of certain of the society agents.

On the same day, he declared, he went to a speakeasy on Madison Avenue at 118th Street, where he met two representatives of the society whom he named as McGeeney and Nichols. He said they vouched for him and then he was able to get "the real stuff."

Tierney testified that for ten days in succession he met McGeeney and Nichols in the Harlem place and drank there with them. In his testimony Tierney was later substantiated by Charles J. Klein.

The next hearing will be held July 1.

SHEPHERD COUNSEL ACCUSES 'INTERESTS'

Says the Desire of Claimants to Get McClintock Money Caused Germ Charge.

"CONFESSION" IS STRESSED

State Says Accused Invented Stories When Conscience Bothered—Crowe Will Speak Today.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 24.—The McClintock million, that fortune of evil destiny which has brought disaster to all those who have possessed it, was shaken in the faces of the Shepherd jury today by both sides, as the cause of the present trial. William Darling Shepherd murdered "Billy" McClintock with typhoid germs, in order to obtain it, said the State. Shepherd finds himself defending a charge of murder because of a plot by "powerful interests" to break "Billy's" will through the conviction of Shepherd, said the defense.

The figure of Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal Court was held up by Mr. Stewart as that of the man who, with Alexander Reichmann of the Northern Trust Company, was instrumental in building up the case against Shepherd. When Judge Olson stepped down from the bench and appeared in the coroner's court to conduct the inquiry, he violated a State law, said the attorney for the defense.

"We are afraid if we don't call attention to Judge Olson's conduct," said Stewart, "that you or the public will think 'if the Chief Justice of the Municipal Court takes a position against this defendant he must be guilty.' So we must charge him with misconduct.

"What did he do it for? You answer that question. One of the things you must look for in this case is, 'What is behind the prosecution?'"

"Don't you men realize that if you convict Shepherd, that if you give him even a day in jail, that means that he killed the man who left him his property, and that breaks the will?" cried Mr. Stewart. "If they get a guilty verdict Shepherd gets nothing under the will."

Says Press Poisoned Public Mind.

For months sentiment against Shepherd was built up in the newspapers, which printed everything Judge Olson and the lawyers for the heirs uttered, said Mr. Stewart. They printed many things which not even Mr. Crowe could introduce in the case, and the public mind was poisoned against the man before he could come to trial, he added.

"This man is either a foul, wicked murderer who should be hanged," exclaimed Mr. Stewart dramatically, "or he is an innocent man, the victim of a damnable plot."

He showed that thought again when he referred to the testimony of Faiman, the State's chief witness, and cried:

"If you believe that he even talked to Faiman, hang him. Faiman is not worthy of belief and Mr. Crowe said no truer thought left him here and said he would not vouch for him."

Mr. Stewart recalled Mr. Gorman's statement after the first questioning of Shepherd, soon after Billy died, when he said: "I guess we will have to indict an oyster."

"When Mr. Shepherd walked out of the State's Attorney's office and was given a clean bill of health by Mr. Gorman and Mr. Savage something happened after that. What is the difference between the situation as it existed then and now?

"The only difference was Faiman, and if they are going to attempt now to abandon Faiman, they abandoned him as far as they could when they said they would not vouch for him, and they now have the nerve to ask a jury of intelligent men to take away the life of the defendant upon his testimony, and they have the effrontery to stand before you and ask, 'What did he gain?' Why should he tell? What did we have on him?'

"I would like to ask you what you had on him?" said Mr. Stewart, whirling swiftly to the prosecutor.

"Powerful Interests" Blamed.

"I think Judge Crowe should be asked to explain to those who elected him why this school is allowed to remain open. Our suggestion is he is doing service for powerful interests who are trying to defeat this will. What explanations have they for the fact that these now unlicensed diploma mill is now operated in the same old way? I say to you, gentlemen of the jury, if you believe the State's Attorney's office hasn't anything on Faiman, you're crazy."

Mr. Stewart was talking when the court took a recess until morrow morning, and when he has finished, his partner, W. W. O'Brien, will talk for a time. Then the State will conclude, and it is believed that the case will reach the jury on Friday.

The indirect confessions of guilt on which the State has laid much stress were marshed by Assistant State's Attorney George Gorman in concluding his argument this morning. He argued that all Shepherd's statements after Billy's death were for the purpose of fixing an alibi, of showing that Billy thought he had typhoid even before the diagnosis. The fact that there were no cases of infected oysters at the Hotel Windermere (where, the defense contended, Billy ate the oysters that caused his death) until three weeks after the boy's death, was a blow to the defense, said Mr. Gorman.

"That struck the defense with such force that they realised the Windermere Hotel dinner was out of the case," he said. "They had to find something else, and the next morning they bring in the maid, Signe Gustafson, to tell you that on the Sunday Billy was taken sick she heard him talking about a typhoid epidemic in New York."

When he came to the germs and Faiman, he admitted that at first Faiman had denied all acquaintance with Shepherd.

Faiman's Actions Explained.

"But," he pointed out, "both of these men were at large. And so long as they were at large there was no danger to either of them and they both denied their guilt. But there came a time when it looked to Faiman as if this game was not worth the $100,000 he had been promised after all.

"He knew that this investigation had been going on before the coroner's jury from a few days after Billy's death in December, 1924, down to March of 1925.

"The newspapers are publishing what the witnesses say before the coroner's jury and Faiman has access to the newspapers. He is there before the coroner's jury himself. He knows what Marchand said and what others have said and his guilty conscience begins to make him feel the danger of persisting in his denial and finally about the 12th or 13th of March Faiman breaks through this persistent denial and tells his story:

"'Yes, I do know Shepherd. It is true that I sent Marchand down to see him. It is true I did get a letter. It is true I bargained with this man for the murder of a boy. It is true that my price in this terrible enterprise was to be $100,000.'

"If that is not the truth, why in the name of God does Faiman tell it and persist in telling it. Can you conceive of any reason why Faiman or any other man would take this witness stand and tell a story that, if believed, means that Shepherd must go to the gallows? Is there any reason that you can think of why Faiman or any other mortal would do that thing?

"I can see how men, prompted by motives of friendship, will go upon the witness stand and lie to save a friend from the gallows, but I cannot conceive of how any ordinary man would go upon the witness stand and without any motive, without any hope of reward, without any idea of benefit to himself, swear away the life of a fellowman on what he knows to be a lie. And Faiman tells you that he did give these germs to Shepherd.

"Human life is cheap in Cook County," concluded Mr. Gorman, "as cheap as the germs that are given away. But this man should not go unpunished."

Suggests United States Pay For Use of Canadian Canals

OTTAWA, June 24 (AP).—The suggestion that the United States should contribute to the upkeep of Canadian canals used for international traffic was made today in the House by G. G. Coote, Progressive, of Macleod. The estimated cost of canal maintenance this year was $2,222,000, Mr. Coote said, and as these canals compete with Canadian railways the Government should try to make some arrangement whereby the cost of the canal system should be distributed more evenly among the people who used them.

The Minister of Railways, George P. Graham, replying, said he could not make any definite reply at this time but would "go so far as to promise that when Canada's Ambassador starts in at Washington his attention will be drawn to the suggestion."

"I hope the Ambassador carries the suggestion with him," one of the members remarked.

BELIEVES RADIUM KILLED HER HUSBAND

His Symptoms Were Similar to Mrs. Maillefer's, Orange Woman Declares.

EMPLOYED IN SAME PLANT

No School Children Affected, Official Says—Mesothorium Theory Disputed.

Mrs. Michael Whalen of 326 Alden Street, Orange, N. J., said yesterday she intended to ask the authorities to exhume the body of her husband, who died two years ago while he was employed by the United States Radium Corporation. She said she believed he might have been another victim of "radium necrosis."

"My husband died from the same illness that took Mrs. Sarah Maillefer," Mrs. Whalen declared. "He was a strong man, in rugged health, until he went to work in the radium factory, and weighed 215 pounds. He was employed handling acids at the place for five years. After a while his throat and nose became irritated and he went to a doctor in Newark, to be examined. The doctor told my husband he was suffering from anemia. About the same time my husband's teeth became affected, so he had to have them all pulled. Then he went to see a doctor in this city, and was refused treatment unless he left the radium plant. He did this, but they sent for him and he went back. He didn't work long, though. He got weaker and weaker and at last he died."

Mrs. Whalen said that her husband had handled acids used in connection with the radium, and that he frequently came in contact with radium itself. Dr. Harrison S. Martland, County Physician of Essex County, said Mrs. Whalen had not reported the case to him, but if she did so he would investigate it.

Frederick W. Starke of 716 Valley Street, South Orange, died in the Orange Memorial Hospital yesterday of acute bacterial pneumonia. He was employed as a chemist by the radium corporation seven years ago. Dr. Martland said that Starke's death had no connection with exposure to radium. During his illness Starke drank water which had been colored with radioactive substances in the hope of a cure.

Children Not Affected.

William G. McCurdy, Secretary of the Orange Board of Education, said yesterday there had been no complaints of school children in the vicinity of the radium plant suffering from fumes. Rumors of such a development had been circulated.

William J. A. Bailey, director of the Bailey Radium Laboratories in East Orange, yesterday discussed a radioactive substance known as mesothorium, which certain radium experts believe was responsible instead of radium itself for the East Orange deaths. He said:

"That mesothorium is more active than radium is a fact. To be real accurate, it is 250 times more active on a basis of weight, but this superiority in activity does not make it any more dangerous than radium, because where a stated amount of radium is used in the paint on a watch dial, 1-250th of this amount of mesothorium is used. In this way an approximate equality in radiation is obtained, so that whether one has mesothorium or radium in the luminous paint, one obtains approximately the same amount of radiation.

"The reason for using mesothorium in place of radium has been due to the fact that it has been slightly less expensive.

"Drs. Cameron and Viol state that no deaths have resulted where pure radium has been used in the luminous paint, but that it is different where mesothorium is used. In view of the fact that the company that employs these eminent scientists has used mesothorium for years in their luminous material, it is strange that there have been no deaths in their plant.

Disputes Chemists' Opinion.

"Their remarks regarding the death of Dr. Edwin H. Leman would lead one to infer that he died from the effects of the rays of mesothorium and not from radium. They stated he was in good health while he worked on radium alone, but when he went to the plant where mesothorium was used he acquired the illness that resulted in his death. There might be some basis for this statement were there any difference in the gamma rays from these products, but as the gamma rays from radium are nearly as penetrating as those from mesothorium; are identically alike and arise in no greater amount from an equal amount of these two elements, it is impossible to understand why these men have made such absolutely unscientific statements. It takes the most delicate electroscopes to detect the difference in these rays, so that any claims made as to greater degree of injury from one element than from the other have not the slightest basis of fact.

"These men cannot produce the slightest scintilla of evidence that radium is injurious when taken internally, neither can they produce a single bit of evidence that mesothorium is injurious. In fact, the best experts in Europe prefer the internal administration of mesothorium to radium alone, as they claim they effect cures more promptly with mesothorium. Thus, if mesothorium were used in the luminous paint on the watch dials the health of the workers should have improved even more so than were radium in the paint."

PLAN SHENANDOAH FLIGHT.

Airship Prepares for Trip This Week —Goes to Maine July 1.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEHURST, N. J., June 24.—The American-built naval dirigible Shenandoah probably will take the air on Saturday for the first time since she made the Western flight last Fall. The airship's gas bag has been inflated with the reserve stock of helium plus a quantity taken from the Los Angeles.

Lieut. Commander Zachary Lansdowne, commander of the Shenandoah, said tonight that he might take his ship up within the next forty-eight hours, but that in any case the dirigible would be ready to fly by the end of the week. The flight will be in the vicinity of Lakehurst. On July 1 the airship will be sent to Bar Harbor, Me.

More than $170,000,000 was received for the war work of the Young Men's Christian Association, according to the report of Referee Charles Evans Hughes Jr., which was submitted yesterday to Supreme Court Justice James O'Malley. The report has been turned over to Justice O'Malley on a motion to approve the findings of Mr. Hughes, who investigated the war activities of the National War Work Council of the Young Men's Christian Association.

The Council was incorporated in April, 1917, with a membership of appro

Gen. Harbord, Back on the Paris, Says Germany Is Second Only to America.

PREDICTS BETTER BUSINESS

Sir Youssouf Isaak Pacha, Gen G. Garibaldi and Lucrezia Bori Here on the French Liner.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday from Havre and Plymouth on the French liner Paris was Major-Gen. James G. Harbord, U. S. A., retired, President of the Radio Corporation of America, who returned from a two months' trip abroad. He went to attend the meetings of the International Consortium of Radio People which drew representatives from England, the United States, France and Germany. He said he had made a report to this Consortium on the South American stations which he visited last Winter. Germany was making more progress in radio, the General said, than any other country and is second only to the United States. Germany was expending large sums of money in the development of radio, he declared.

"Within one year," he added, "American radio fans possessing the ordinary sets will be able to receive from Germany direct, through arrangements completed for broadcasting German programs through the plant of the Radio Corporation of America.

See No Radical Change.

"There will be no radical change in the construction of radio sets this Fall," he said, and pointed out that the experimental stage in radio sets had been passed to a large extent, and that the sets today were more or less standardized. The King of Sweden, General Harbord added, had invited David Sarnoff, Vice President of the Radio Corporation of America, to be among the first of these broadcasting from the new plant which is being erected at Verbeek, Sweden.

When asked about the outlook for the radio business in the United States the General said:

"We feel encouraged regarding the outlook for Fall business. Billings and sales are beginning to show an increase. The second quarter was a dull period. This was brought about by the flooding of the market with cheap sets."

Another passenger on the Paris was Sir Youssouf Isaak Pasha of Cairo, who was formerly a Minister in the Egyptian Government. He said he had come here to study American financial methods, and expected to return to Egypt late in the year to establish a bank. The Pasha added that he had not come here to negotiate a loan.

General G. Garibaldi, grandson of the liberator of Italy, arrived for a month's visit with friends. He declined to discuss the political or economical conditions in his country.

Singer Silent on Engagement.

Lucrezia Bori, the Spanish soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who was also a passenger on the Paris, when asked about her reported engagement to Edward Johnson of the Metropolitan Opera Company, laughed and replied: "It is too early to announce anything and we are both very young." She left last night for Chicago, where Miss Bori will sing in Summer opera.

Another passenger was Gerald Warburg, son of Felix Warburg, the banker, who has been living in Vienna and studying the 'cello. He said that he had given recitals in Vienna, Munich, Dresden and Leipzig. After a month with his family, Mr. Warburg said he would return to his studies.

Frank Marshall, chess champion of the United States, who was undefeated in the recent tournament held at Baden-Baden, was a passenger. The officers of the Paris said the big iceberg sighted on the eastward trip was 1,500 feet long and 80 feet high and not 4,000 feet long and 300 feet high as stated by passengers.

GERRY WANTS TAX CUT ON SMALLER INCOMES

Democratic Senate Whip Says His Party Will Demand Aid for the Poor First.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 24 (AP).—The greatest possible reduction of taxes for the benefit of the greatest number of persons will be the aim of the Democrats in Congress next Fall when that body resumes its sessions, according to United States Senator Peter G. Gerry, senior Senator from Rhode Island and Democratic whip, who is now at his Summer home in Warwick Neck.

Tax reduction, the tariff and the World Court were enumerated by him as the three big issues which will engage the attention of Congress. In the fight for the reduction of taxes on small incomes the Democrats expect help from some of the Western Republican Senators, he said. The Senator pointed out that the President's recent plea for tax reduction did not specify what taxes were to be reduced.

"Mr. Coolidge," he said, "has shown himself in most significant ways as the friend of big business before all."

The Democrats, the Senator said, will insist that the tax on the poor man be reduced first. The new plan advocated by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon he called "the same old scheme to reduce the burdens of the very rich without first reducing those of the taxpayer of moderate means."

GRIFFING ESTATE APPRAISED

Property of Former Long Island Judge Valued at $783,064.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., June 24.—The gross value of the estate of the late former County Judge Timothy M. Griffing of Riverhead, who was a leading member of the Suffolk County bar for half a century, has been appraised at $783,064.50 and a tax of $14,109.65 has been levied by Surrogate Robert S. Pelletreau upon it.

The net estate is valued at $736,769.13 and is divided as follows: Caroline P. Griffing, widow, $231,712.38; Fred L. Griffing, Mrs. Grace G. Heen and Robert P. Griffing of Riverhead, Mrs. Angeline G. Wolf of Baltimore and Mrs. Mabel G. Stephens of Easthampton, sons and daughters, $101,011.35 each.

Judge Griffing died intestate on July 7, 1924. It is believed that his estate will closely approximate one million dollars, as most of it is in gilt-edge securities, which have advanced considerably since his death.

Arlington Gets Larger Transmitter.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—With the installation at the naval radio station at Arlington of a new 200-watt radiophone set, the Government is prepared to enter the broadcasting field on a wider scale. The set will be in operation constantly. It will broadcast daily weather schedules, market reports from the Department of Agriculture, general information sent out by the Treasury Department and bulletins from the Public Health Service and Department of Labor. Information from other departments will be included later.

PREPARES TO RECEIVE ELKS.

Asbury Park to Be Scene of Convention Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 24.—This city tonight was gayly bedecked for the arrival of delegates to the eleventh annual convention of the New Jersey State Elks Association. The sessions will start tomorrow, and in the evening a dinner will be held at the new Monterey Hotel. The speakers will include United States Senators Edward I. Edwards and Walter E. Edge.

The first contingent of Elks arrived tonight, a special train bringing a delegation of 2,000 from Union Hill Lodge. The annual parade will be held Friday afternoon. More than ten thousand are expected to march. State Civil Service Commissioner William K. Devereaux of Asbury Park will be elected President of the association, succeeding A. Harry Moore of Jersey City, Democratic candidate for Governor.

German Foreign Trade Increases.

BERLIN, June 24 (AP).—Germany's imports for May, it is announced, were valued at 1,084,00,000 marks and her exports at 732,000,000. These figures compare with imports of 1,060,000,000 in April and exports of 672,000,000.

ASKS ELECTRIC LOOP TO LINK UP LINES

Transit Board for North Jersey Tells Silzer Plan Would Relieve Congestion.

WANTS NEW YORK INCLUDED

Tunnel Under Hudson and Perhaps Connection With Subways Here Features of Proposal.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24.—At a conference here with Governor Silzer, members of the North Jersey Rapid Transit Commission suggested the building of an electrical "loop" railway connecting the terminals of all railroads in the metropolitan area, to relieve passenger traffic congestion in that section of the State.

After skirting the railroads in New Jersey, the loop, under the tentative scheme advanced, would run to New York through a tunnel under the Hudson River, and possibly connect with New York City's subway system. It is pointed out that with rapid transportation provided for Interstate passengers, a large part of the congestion problem of the northern counties, particularly of Hudson and Essex, would be solved.

The loop, it was argued, would not only go far toward taking care of passengers between the two States, but with a system of rapid electric trains making a continuous circle through the heart of the thickly populated New Jersey-New York territory, passengers could be transported quickly between stations in this State.

Members of the commission informed Governor Silzer that they probably would be prepared to present him a report in the Fall, covering their investigations of the traffic problem from 1922, when the commission was created. The report, it was indicated, probably will contain specific recommendations to relieve congested traffic in the metropolitan district.

Will Open Boston Passport Agency.

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP).—The State Department will establish a passport agency at the Custom House at Boston July 1, with Harry H. Bolds, formerly of the Passport Division in Washington, in charge. The action will permit the renewing and amending of passports in Boston and the issue of emergency passports in urgent cases, where there is not time to transmit applications to Washington.

IDEAL WEEK FOR CORN, LESS SO FOR COTTON

More Rain Would Have Helped Cotton—Winter Wheat Making Pretty Good Progress.

The weekly weather report of the Department of Agriculture issued at Washington yesterday in part follows:

"The temperature for the week averaged above normal in the cotton belt and, while general rains were needed from the Mississippi Valley eastward, local showers were helpful. Very little rain occurred in the eswtern oprtion of the belt and severe drought was intensified in the southwestern portion.

"In Texas local showers were generally insufficient, and while cotton continued to make fair to very good progress in the northern, western and immediate coast sections, there was further deterioration in most of the central and south portions and parts of the east. The crop is spotted, ranging from very poor to very good, and is blooming prematurely with some dying and some never germinated in dry areas. In Oklahoma progress was generally fair, but the crop needs rain. In Arkansas and Louisiana the plant made mostly excellent growth, and advance was fair to very good in Tennessee.

Weevil Active in Cotton.

Growth was rather satisfactory in Mississippi and Alabama, but more moisture is needed in many sections, and favorable reports continued from much of Georgia, especially from the southern portion of the State. Rainfall was beneficial in the eastern portion of the Carolinas and plants were standing the drought fairly well in the interior of these States. Also there was considerable complaint of lack of moisture. Local showers were beneficial in Virginia, and cotton showed improvement in the far Southwest. Reports continued of increased weevil activities, especially in some southern portions of the belt.

"Except in some upper Ohio Valley districts, principally in Ohio and Eastern Kentucky, conditions during the week were nearly ideal for corn in the principal producing sections. Moisture was mostly sufficient and temperatures were favorable for promoting rapid growth. The crop now averages about knee high in Iowa, and even as far north as Southern Wisconsin, while a large percentage has been laid by in Southeastern Kansas.

"Conditions were less favorable, however, in the Middle and South Atlantic areas and most of the Southern States, where moisture is still insufficient. The drought has been especially trying in much of Texas, and the crop is largely a failure in the central and southern portions. There was some complaint of too much rain for proper cultivation, with resulting weedy fields in some Central Northern States

Winter Wheat Progresses.

"Harvest of Winter wheat advanced during the week northward to the central portion of Indiana and Illinois, North Central Missouri and Southeastern Nebraska. Rain caused some slight delay in this work in the trans-Mississippi States, but otherwise good progress was made. Threshing was begun in Southeastern Kansas and progressed rapidly in Oklahoma, with yields reported varying from poor to fair in the latter State.

"Recent rains have somewhat improved Winter wheat in the northern portion of the belt. Excellent growing weather prevailed in the principal Spring wheat districts, and this crop continued to make satisfactory advance. There was some complait, however, of too much moisture in Minnesota and of plants heading short locally in North Dakota, and more generally in South Dakota, while it was rather too warm for this crop in parts of the far Northwest."

Marconi Co. Declares Dividend.

The Radio Corporation of America received yesterday a radiogram from the Marconi Company of London announcing a dividend declared on the preference shares for the half year ending June 30 at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, less tax, payable July 1 to stock of record June 24 and to holders of share warrants. Transfer books will be closed to June 30, inclusive.

JUNE TRADE STEADY IN IRON AND STEEL

Reviews of Industry See Large Shipments From Mills, but Low Prices.

The fundamental situation in the iron and steel industry is generally unchanged, according to reviews of the iron and steel industry which are published today.

In summing up the situation in the industry, The Iron Age makes the following comment:

"In the volume of business flowing to the mills the steel industry continues to make a better showing than in respect to prices. Sheets and wire products are $1 to $2 a ton lower this week, and in some markets plates and cold rolled strip steel are less stable, while in the Central West there are indications of weakness in semi-finished steel.

"The comparative steadiness of mill operations and the frequency, and in some cases the urgency, of current orders are still the marked feature of the situation. Shipments of rolled products are large, and for the first six months of the year are estimated at more than 2,000,000 tons in excess of those for the first half of 1924.

"Though finished steel bookings are still less than shipments, a number of producers report orders at a better rate than in May or in the early part of June, and the indications are that the rate of production in July will show no marked falling off from that of June."

The Iron Trade Review says:

"June brought to the iron and steel industry evidence of no important change in business volume, either favorable or unfavorable. Gains in tonnage in some lines, to a large extent, have been neutralized by tapering off in others. The net result leaves the situation as to its fundamentals virtually unchanged from that which existed sixty days ago. The market remains of very liquid character, with a gap between demand and supply unusually narrowed.

"As the weeks pass, however, the feeling of security is strengthened as to permanency and continuing fair business, even though placed on a hand-to-mouth basis. Producers and consumers are adjusting their mental attitude accordingly, with less anxiety expressed over the possibility of any sharp recession. Sixty to 65 per cent. operations of the steel industry today compare favorably with the 45 to 50 per cent. a year ago."

SARGENT SAYS ROADS NEED NEW RATE LEVEL

President of Northwestern Outlines His Company's Plans for Development.

Fred W. Sargent, the newly elected President of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, in his first public statement since his election outlined in part the program he has in mind for the development of the system, especially in the Chicago district, where it owns 700 acres of valuable land within the city limits. The development of this property, according to Mr. Sargent, will be continued as early as possible.

"The most important thing right now," Mr. Sargent said, "is a rate level that will enable the railways of the northwestern territory to earn not only 5½ per cent., contemplated by the Transportation act, but a surplus that can be diverted to additions and betterments. The railroads that are obliged to contend with the Winters in our territory cannot under present costs continue to haul 2,000 pounds one mile for an average charge of slightly more than one cent. I believe our shippers and the Interstate Commerce Commission recognize this fact and are willing to grant a moderate increase. I believe such an increase would mean much to the prosperity of the people in the territory we serve.

"Among other things, it would help stabilize employment, and I feel that our Northwestern family of 45,000 employes who are trying so earnestly to serve the public are entitled to regular and continuous work.

"The stockholders are entitled to a better return. In no year since the war have the railroads in our territory earned anywhere near 5½ per cent., and even such an amount if earned would be too low. The Supreme Court has held in various cases, some recently, that a return of less than 7 or 8 per cent. as applied to public utilities is confiscatory."

LIVE STOCK AND MEATS.

Live Stock Markets at Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 25.—The hog market was unsettled, with desirable kinds fully steady, while light lights and packing sows were 10@25 cents lower, and poor quality and mixed heavies were almost unsalable. The top was $13.65 early, while the day's average was $13.30. The bulk of the 160-200 pound averages sold at $13.35@$13.50, and 210-300 pound brought $13.45@$13.60. Shippers took 4,500 of the fresh receipts of 18,000. The estimated carry-over is 15,000. Fat lambs were strong to 25 cents higher, with range stock showing most advance. Best Idahos sold at $16.35 and best natives at $16.25. Fat sheep were strong, with a few ewes at $7.50; yearling wethers brought up to $14. Receipts were 10,000. Grain-fed steers were generally 25 cents higher, with a good demand. The top on yearlings and heavy steers was $12.25. Receipts were 7,000.

Dismisses Suit Over Alaska Fisheries

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—An injunction suit brought by Dan A. Sutherland, Delegate to Congress from Alaska, against Secretary Hoover to prevent alleged interference with the operations of independent Alaska salmon fishermen was dismissed today by the District of Columbia Supreme Court for want of prosecution. Sutherland, who filed suit in November, 1923, charged that Secretary Hoover had favored corporate fishing interests against the independent fishermen.

To Go on Six-Wheel Bus Outing.

This morning at 9 o'clock a specially built six-wheel motor bus will leave 262 Madison Avenue with a number of electric railwaf officials aboard for an all-day run to Bluff Point, Lake Champlain, to attend the New York State Electric Railway convention. The motor bus is a product of the Six-Wheel Company.

Sheen Twills Are Stressed.

There still remain a large volume of orders to be placed for dress worsteds for Fall, in the opinion of mill representatives here. The sheen twills are stressed, both in the staple and novelty versions, and are being used for a large portion of the Fall dress lines of many manufacturers. The reorder business in these twills is counted on to be heavy, and the mills expect to be faced with a sizable problem in making deliveries when the cutters want their goods. The mills figure on August and September showing the heaviest demand for deliveries of the cloths and are cautious about orders for October of later delivery.

Heavier Gray Goods Do Well.

A nice business was reported here yesterday in some of the heavier constructions of gray goods. Spot trading was done by first hands in 38-inch 5.50-yard sheetings at 7¼ cents. July deliveries of 36-inch 6.15s (44-48s) were sold at 9¾ cents, and that price also was asked for the 40-square construction of sheetings of that weight. In the drills an excellent business was done in 34-inch 4.75-yard goods. Eight cents was paid for a good quantity of these cloths early in the day, with 8¾ cents asked for them later. Other constructions of drills that moved more or less freely were 37-inch 2.75s, which sold from first hands at 13½ cents, and 37-inch 3.95s. The latter brought 9¾ cents in some quarters, while in others nothing under 9¾ cents would be accepted.

Fur Demand is Fair Here.

A fair demand for unmanufactured furs is in evidence here at the present time, a good deal of the business in several skins being the result of a demand for trimmings from the coat and suit trade. Beaver is being taken for this purpose in good quantity, and there is also a good call for such furs as mandel, wolf, skunk, &c., for trimming purposes. In the skins wanted for coat purposes not a little of the call is for raccoon, Southern and Northern muskrat (principally the former), and mink. Iowa mink was said yesterday to be especially wanted by certain buyers. Dealers generally are in an optimistic frame of mind concerning the future.

Separate Skirts Selling.

An active demand for separate skirts, for wear with "jumpers" to match, sleeveless coats or gayly printed contrasting jackets, is reported by members of the United Skirt League of America. Flannel, crepe de chine and cotton broadcloth are fabrics called for most in these garments, with the color demand embracing the whole range of pastel shades. Pink, white and maize are particularly wanted in silk, with white and red the most popular hues in flannel. Various novel pleat arrangements feature the newest skirts. One of the most unusual types has an appearance somewhat similar to a man's trousers, a narrow line of stitching down each side-front simulating the crease.

Printcloths Have Fair Day.

Although individual sales of printcloths in the local gray goods market were more numerous yesterday than on Tuesday, the volume that actually changed hands was said to be smaller. Sales for the day included spot 39-inch 72-76s and 80-squares, with sellers reported holding the goods at 11¾ cents. Also sold were August shipments of 38½-inch 64-60s, which brought 9¼ cents. The same price was reported asked for September deliveries of that construction. First hands sold some spot 36½-inch 60-48s at 7⅝ cents, while second hands let out a few 38½-inch 64-56s, in the East, at 9¼ cents. In the fine-yarn goods a nice business was reported in broadcloths, particularly on such constructions as carded 100-64s and combed 128-68s. The former were held at 13¾ to 14 cents, with some business done at the lower figure. The latter were quoted all the way from 19 to 21 cents. New goods are said to be available, however, under 20 cents.

Raw Silk Situation.

The raw silk market continues firm and quite active. Manufacturers, according to E. Gerli & Co., Inc., are slowly covering, but are keenly interested. Reeled continue very firm in their views. Trading in cocoons is now nearly over, and it is safe to say that prices will average 100 kake or more. Expressed in dollars, this is fully the present level of prices on Japan raws or a little higher. The China situation is upsetting the position of the Shanghai and Canton markets, particularly the latter. Shipments are interrupted and delays will be experienced. With Italy on a very high price basis, it is pointed out that the weight of the requirements of both America and Europe are likely to be thrown on the Japanese market. Prices quoted yesterday on leading Japanese sorts were: grand extras, $6.85; crack double extras, $6.65, and double extra A, $6.55. "Three dancers" China steam filatures ruled at $6.70. No quotations were made on Canton 14-16s or 20-22s. Tussahs were priced at $3.15. In Italian silks, exquis were quoted at $7 and extra classicals at $6.85.

Broadcloths Have Call for Fall.

Broadcloths are regarded with considerable favor as coatings for Fall. Mills which did not have these fabrics in their early lines are adding them, reflecting their confidence in the cloths. The 15-ounce weight seems stressed. While there has been some talk of broadcloths for dresses, the view was expressed yesterday that this end of the demand will not be of any great importance. The fabrics are featured in a complete range of colors. The shade trend is not well defined as yet, which is also the case with other women's wear fabrics for Fall.

More Garment Buyers Here.

There are more buyers in the local garment show rooms interested in Fall lines than was the case recently. Much of their activity is still confined to "looking," but at that there is a fair amount of advance business in coats being placed, according to the manufacturers. This trend is counted on to continue during the remainder of the month, with the week after July 4 counted on, however, to be the first really active week of buying. The late season demand for Summer dresses has been so good that, from this angle at least, the slowness in actual buying for Fall has not occasioned dissatisfaction.

Dry Goods Are Very Quiet.

The primary end of the local market for dry goods, especially cotton fabrics is about as lifeless at the moment as has been the case for a long time. Most of the jobbers, either being in the midst of their half-yearly inventories or having just completed them, will not be in the market for goods in any quantity until after the Fourth of July, at this time of the year, it was pointed out yesterday, the wholesalers make a particular point of keeping stocks low in order to make as good a showing as possible in their financial statements to their bank and merchandise creditors. Until the necessity for this is over for another six months, there is little chance of anything like a spurt in buying.

While, in the few openings of tropicals thus far, the price level has been practically on the same basis as last year, some of the lines to be opened in the next week or ten days will show declines from last year's levels. The lines of one well known factor, it was learned yesterday, will be priced at 5 to 7 per cent. lower and it is understood that this will be the case with other offerings. This reduction is made, it was pointed out, despite the fact that wool is higher than it was a year ago. The concessions are being made to facilitate the merchandising of the new lines and, as the conditions surrounding the market in tropicals are favorable, the mills look forward to a very satisfactory response or, as one factor put it, "a clean up."

BUSINESS NOTES.

Announcement was made yesterday by Gatlin & Co., Inc., of a change in the standard weight of Hill bleached and khaki jeans from three yards to the pound to 2.85 yards.

A meeting of leading manufacturers of ginghams will be held at 40 Worth Street on Monday at 2 P. M. Matters of importance to this branch of the cotton goods industry will be discussed.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Strength on Stock Exchange, Led by Railways—Money 4½, Francs Lower.

An advance on the Stock Exchange yesterday was distinctly led by the railway shares, nearly all of which moved up, with a considerable number of 1 to 3 point gains. This movement was probably not any more spontaneous than other previous advances in that group, which have frequently occurred either when the general market had "gone stale" or when professional speculation for the rise in the industrial shares was meeting with reverses. But the strength of the railway stocks was interesting nevertheless, because it had lately become the fashion again to talk of the railroad situation as the dark side of the general position. The St. Paul receivership, the chance that the reorganization plan might be held up, the doubts expressed in Wall Street over the approval of the "Nickel Plate merger" and more recently still, the exceedingly disappointing earnings of Western and Northwestern lines, had all seemed to combine toward creating discouragement.

But the rather impressive fact has been that, even if the real investing public would not buy railway shares on an advance, they equally would not sell on a decline. This seemed to mean that, at any rate, the real holders of the shares did not take the pessimistic view that prevailed in Wall Street. The reasonable probability is that they attached more weight to the evidence that capital was ready to embark on a large scale in the numerous plans of railway extension and combination than to the passing incidents of the moment. Precisely the same thing happened, though in a very different way, when the railways were emerging from very widespread bankruptcy in the trade revival of the '90s, when speculative Wall Street could see no future for them, but when farseeing capitalists were preparing for the great expansion of traffic and earnings that occurred a few years later.

Elsewhere in yesterday's stock market the movement was more irregular, and more evidently subject to the momentary whim and overnight change of position by professional speculators. A few of the industrial stocks declined a point or more, others advanced. But the advances were more numerous and, in some isolated cases where there had been rapid declines of late, they ran to several points. The day's rise of prices was not effected through large transactions; total sales fell below a million shares for the first time in any full day since April.

This light business, taken together with the uncertain backward and forward flow of prices, would seem to indicate a market which is really stationary, which is awaiting developments in agriculture and general trade, as it usually does at this time of year, but which at any rate is in no mood of discouragement or apprehension. The financial attitude is at present undoubtedly one of cheerfulness, and there are sufficient grounds for it. Our capricious "farm weather" has once more made it difficult for even the grain market to base conclusions on the Government's gloomy June estimates. The cotton market hardly moves in either direction, notwithstanding the ingenious theories of the South (which always prefers high prices to abundant harvests) that continued dry weather will burn up the crop, whereas a change to wet weather will encourage the weevil to destroy it. Even in the steel trade, where more is said about disappointed hopes than in most others, The Iron Age today estimates that production for the half-year will fall little short of the high record of 1923. Since consumption of steel has now pretty much caught up with production, this means that the period's actual consumption has been close to the largest ever known.

Yesterday's foreign exchange market repeated the movements of the day before. The franc fell below the year's previous bottom price; yesterday's rate had not been toughed since March 14, last year. The fact seems to be that the advance talk about the French "July debt maturities" has been as disturbing as the payments themselves are likely to be. At any rate, the least agitated place at present seems to be the French Finance Ministry. But Caillaux was not wise in threatening "the bears" with the New York credit unless he meant to use it.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 24, 1925.

Calling of loans in a volume generally conceded to be the heaviest in a long time stiffened all departments of the money market. It was reported that approximately $40,000,000 was withdrawn, principally for the account of country banks. Stock Exchange call loans got up to 4½ per cent., duplicating charge made on Monday. Renewals were arranged at 4. Time money for the more distant maturities is now trading and lending at 4 per cent. This had been the popular rate heretofore, but the concession made on the right sort of loan to 3¾ per cent. has disappeared. Business money also tightened, on the moderate turnover done in acceptances and merchants' notes.

RUMOR DEPRESSED STANDARD OIL STOCK

New Jersey Company's Preferred Drops 1⅜ at Report of Redemption at $115.

Calling of Chesebrough Consolidated Preferred Confirmed—Other Retirements Expected.

The preferred stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey sold off sharply on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday as a result of the wide publicity given to the recent reports that the company contemplated retiring the outstanding preferred shares at $115 and accrued dividends. The shares, which opened at 117¾ yesterday, dropped to 116¾ and closed at 116½. At the latter price a net loss of 1⅜ points was recorded for the day. Earlier in the year the stock sold at 119.

The rumors that the stock may be retired still lack confirmation, but in view of the magnitude of such an operation, there being approximately $200,000,000 of the stock outstanding, considerable interest prevails in banking and Stock Exchange circles regarding the situation. At its callable price of $115 a share it would require $230,000,000 to cancel the issue.

In banking circles familiar with the affairs of the company the question was raised yesterday as to when the company could retire the preferred stock if it contemplated doing so. In some quarters the belief prevailed that the issue could not be called before Dec. 15, 1925. In this connection it was stated that on Nov. 15, 1922, the company issued its last block of preferred stock, the issue having been for the purpose of acquiring additional stock in the West Indies Oil Company. The provisions of the preferred stock state that the issue is callable only as an entirety and only after three years from issue thereof, or on any dividend date thereafter on thirty days' notice. The dividend date for the last quarter of the year is Dec. 15.

It was further pointed out yesterday that despite the magnitude of the transaction, the company would have little difficulty in retiring this issue and several methods are open to carry out the plan if the directors decide to redeem the shares. One plan, it was pointed out, would be a bond issue carrying a lower rate of interest than the 7 per cent. now paid on the preferred shares. Also the company could liquidate its Government and other investment holdings, not counting the investments in affiliated companies, which approximate $83,000,000. In addition the last annual report showed the company had $586,000,000 in the form of inventory and accounts receivable. Liquidation of only part of these items, it is stated, alone would aid the company in carrying out such a transaction.

The report that the Chesebrough Manufacturing Company Consolidated contemplated calling its preferred stock was confirmed yesterday. This company will retire the preferred shares at $112.50 a share on Sept. 10, 1925. In connection with the proposed retirement a special meeting of stockholders has been called for Aug. 3, to approve a reduction in the capital from $5,000,000 to $4,000,000, the $1,000,000 reduction being the preferred stock.

C. M. McGee, President of the company, regarding the method of payment, says:

"The company has on hand sufficient cash and investment securities readily convertible into cash, in the opinion of the directors, to permit the redemption of the preferred stock as proposed, and leave sufficient working capital in its treasury and the directors recommend to the common stockholders that the latter should authorize the necessary reduction in the capital stock required to effect the redemption of the preferred stock. The company has the privilege of retiring the preferred stock at any time after Jan. 1, 1925.

In connection with the numerous reports circulated regarding the proposed retirement of preferred stock, a Standard Oil Company of Ohio was added to the list of companies which may curtail the amount of capital outstanding by redeeming its preferred shares. The preferred stock of this company, which is now quoted around 120, is callable at 115 as a whole, at any time after Jan. 15, 1925. It was also reported that the Atlantic Refining Company may retire its preferred stock, but no action is expected to be taken until after the notes, now outstanding, have been redeemed.

Canadian National Bonds.

Dillon, Read & Co. announce that interim receipts for the issue of $35,000,000 Canadian National Railway 4½ per cent. guaranteed gold bonds ($18,000,000 Canadian National Railway Company five-year gold bonds due Feb. 15, 1930, and $17,000,000 Canadian Northern Railway Company ten-year bonds due Feb. 15, 1935) are now exchangeable for definitive bonds at the office of the Banker's Trust Company.

BROOKLYN ROAD'S NET OFF.

City Railroad Co. Reports Drop of $20,833 for May.

A net income of $171,496 for May was reported yesterday by the Brooklyn City Railroad Company. This is $20,833 less than the net reported for the same month last year.

Net income for the twelve months ended May 31 was $1,388,162, as compared with $1,854,415 for the same period of 1924. Passenger revenue for the eleven months was $10,402,859, as against $10,753,014.

Dock Company Director Resigns.

Edwin Thorne, Secretary of the New York Dock Company, announced yesterday that the directors of the company had accepted the resignation of Charles A. Peabody, who had served as a director since Nov. 21, 1911, and as a member of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors since Nov. 17, 1914. The directors declared a dividend of 2½ per cent. on the preferred stock, payable July 15, to stockholders of record July 2.

WILL CLOSE BANK BRANCH.

Union of Canada to Discontinue Local Agency Because of Merger.

The New York agency of the Union Bank of Canada, which has been located at 49 Wall Street since April, 1917, will be discontinued June 30, it was learned yesterday, as the result of the acquisition of the Union Bank of Canada by the Royal Bank of Canada. W. J. Dawson and J. H. Mooney are the New York agents for the Union Bank of Canada, which has ranked here as one of the leading foreign bank branches among the many located in the financial district.

The Canadian bank merger involves the closing of some fifty branches of the Union Bank in London, the United States and Canada. The Royal Bank's local agency is located at Pine and William Streets. Sir Herbert S. Holt is head of the Royal Bank, which recently also acquired the Bank of Central and South America, formerly the Mercantile Bank of America.

Stockholders of the Union Bank will meet at Winnipeg on July 21 to pass on the merger.

EXCHANGE ADOPTS NEW CONSTITUTION

Members at Special Election Approve Code as Revised by Committee.

MORE POWER TO GOVERNORS

Supervision Over All Employes of Stock Exchange Firms Is Authorized.

Members of the New York Stock Exchange at a special election yesterday adopted the revised constitution submitted by a special committee after three and one-third years of study. The approval by the members was expected as the revised constitution covers all of the problems which have arisen in the daily buying and selling of securities. The members cast a total of 282 votes. Of these 278 approved the revised constitution and 4 ballots were defective.

In a letter to members announcing the result of the vote, E. H. H. Simmons, President of the Exchange, says:

"The constitution of the Exchange represents an evolution of over a century, and embodies the conscientious efforts of several generations of capable and far-sighted members of our association. This code is, in consequence, an honorable heritage of profound significance to the Exchange membership of today."

After calling attention to the exhaustive study of conditions made by the special committee, Mr. Simmons further states:

"The changes and revisions in our constitution recently made were undertaken in behalf of the legitimate interests of our members as well as those of the public at large. Our members' rights and privileges as brokers and dealers in the Stock Exchange market have, in many instances, been strengthened and more strictly defined. I accordingly recommend a close study of the new constitution, so that you may thoroughly understand your rights and privileges as members of the Exchange, which are there set forth.

"We must all recognize that membership in the Exchange also involves distinct duties and responsibilities. As far as these relate to the administration of the Exchange, they consist mainly in a vital interest in its affairs and constant cooperation with its elected officials. Mere programs and rules on paper do not of themselves constitute law enforcement. The future of the Exchange and its administration in consequence rests fundamentally on the spirit which its members and their associates and employes, for whom they are responsible, bring to the consistent maintenance and enforcement of its rules and regulations.

"There is another clear responsibility which as Exchange members we must recognize. The New York Stock Exchange is a public market and is constantly looked to by the people to uphold high traditions of honor and integrity in the security business. Sometimes in the past our whole association has been judged by the unwise or unwarranted action of a member or one of his partners. I therefore feel that each member of the Exchange should make a special effort to familiarize himself with the provisions of the new constitution designed to protect the public, and to cooperate with the Governing Committee whenever possible in rendering these regulations an actual and living force for constantly higher standards in our business."

According to a statement issued by the Stock Exchange, the principal changes in the revised constitution give the Governing Committee additional powers in dealing with corners, market raiding and undesirable business connections of members. Broader powers are also given the Governing Committee in protecting the integrity of the market against manipulation. The old constitution gave the Governors the authority to disapprove specific business relations with non-members, but under the revised constitution the Governing Committee is given full power to forbid members any business connection whatever which in its judgment would injuriously affect the "interest and good repute" of the Exchange.

In the new constitution the members of the Exchange have also strengthened the hands of the Governing Committee in its supervision and control of the employes of the entire membership by giving the Committee on Quotations and Commissions the power in its discretion to disapprove the employment of any individual. Thus the supervision heretofore exercised by the Governing Committee over members, partners and branch office managers now extends to all employes of Stock Exchange firms.

B. & O. PAYS USUAL DIVIDEND

Delos W. Cooke Is Elected a Director to Succeed C. A. Peabody.

The Board of Directors of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. on the preferred stock and of 1¼ per cent. on the common. Both are payable Sept. 1 to stockholders of record on July 18.

The resignation of Charles A. Peabody as a director was accepted and Delos W. Cooke was elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. Cooke is also a director of the Cunard Steamship Company, the Maxwell Motor Corporation, the Remington Typewriter Company and the Seaboard National Bank.

MOBILE & OHIO INCOME.

Net Was $2,081,071 in 1924, Against $1,127,968 the Year Before.

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, which is controlled by the Southern Railway Company, reported yesterday operating revenues of $19,464,381 in 1924, compared with $20,122,416 in 1923.

The net income remaining after the payment of rents and interest charges was $2,081,070, compared with $1,127,968 the year before.

Roads Buying European Rails.

The Southern railroads, with an eye to construction economies, are reported to e active bidders for European steel rails. They are reported to have purchased a total of 27,000 tons of rails from foreign mills at prices of $33.50 to $34 a ton, tidewater, as compared with a domestic price of $43 a ton, mill.

$26,000,000 DEAL MADE WITH GREECE

COVERS 840 SQUARE MILES

Biggest Industrial Project Ever Carried Out by Americans in the Near East.

The largest industrial contract ever made by an American concern with a country in the Near East, involving $26,000,000 for drainage and irrigation work in the Vardar Basin of Greece, was announced in cable advices from Franklin Remington, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Foundation Company, yesterday to the company's headquarters here. The contract is with the Greek Government, and the work, it was said yesterday at the local offices, would start very soon. A loan will be floated in this country and abroad, the amount of which was not divulged yesterday. Plans in this connection will await further details from Mr. Remington and action of the directors.

Not only is the present project, designed particularly to salvage a large territory for agricultural purposes in Greece, the biggest of its kind ever obtained in the Near East, but it is also one of the largest contracts ever made with a foreign country for an industrial development to be carried out by Americans. This contract raises considerably the large volume of construction work now being carried on by the Foundation Company in various countries, including Japan, England, Peru, Colombia, Canada and Belgium. The total of finance involved in the numerous undertakings is enormous.

The area to be covered by the work in Greece, involving first a complete survey of the Vardar Basin territory, is 840 square miles. In deciding to develop this basin for agriculture the Greek Government has put itself ahead of its neighbors, who have been extremely backward in making plans for broad-scale developments of this character.

The financing which will be done will be secured by revenues of the Interallied Commission.

Mr. Remington has been in Athens for some time in connection with the contract. John W. Doty, President of the Foundation Company, sailed from England today, where, it is believed, he also consummated some interesting business.

OBJECT TO UTILITY MERGER.

Minority Stockholders of Fulton County Company Ask Hearing.

Minority stockholders of the Fulton County Gas and Electric Company, one of the several companies included in the merger of up-State Brady utilities with the Adirondack Power and Light Corporation and Carlisle interests, have filed objections to the application of the Mohawk-Hudson Power Corporation, the holding company for the merged properties, which seeks authority to effect the consolidation.

The objections, which were filed with the Public Service Commission, contend that the change of stock ownership in the Fulton County company might be inimical to the minority stockholders. A further hearing on the application will be held July 1, when witnesses for the Mohawk-Hudson Company will be cross-examined. General Electric interests figure in the consolidation.

Contract for Steel for Subway.

The American Bridge Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, has received another contract for 4,600 tons of steel to be used in connection with the construction of Section 2-A of the Central Park West subway, it was announced yesterday. Thus far six contracts have been let for steel for this subway, all of which went to this company. A contract for 4,300 tons of steel in connection with the construction of a hotel at Fiftieth Street and Seventh Avenue also was awarded to this company.

PACKARD'S QUARTERLY NET.

$3,299,383 Equals $1.30 Per $10 Common Share.

For the three months ended May 31 the Packard Motor Car Company reported yesterday net profits of $3,299,383 after all expenses and reserves for taxes. This was equal to $1.30 a share earned on the 2,377,020 shares of $10 par value common stock outstanding, after allowing for preferred dividends. In the same period last year the company reported a net profit of $2,325,000, which, after similar deductions, equaled 85 cents a common share.

For the nine months ended May 31 the company reported a net profit of $6,254,128, equal to $2.20 a share on the common stock, after preferred dividends, against $1.84 a share in the same period last year, when net profits were $4,736,975.

Alvan Macauley, President of the company, said: "We regard returns for the third quarter just closed as quite satisfactory, but expect even better showing for June, July and August. We have never before had such a volume of unfilled orders on our books, and we are increasing production materially. Our shipment of cars for June will exceed May by more than 30 per cent., and there will be a further increase in July and probably in August."

Province of Santa Fe, Argentina

Public Credit External 7% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

Dated September 1, 1924 Due September 1, 1942

Interest March 1 and September 1. Coupon Bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $500. Principal and interest payable in New York at the Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company, Fiscal Agent, in United States gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness or, at the option of the holder, in Argentine national currency at par of exchange (2.355 pesos to the dollar). Exempt from all Argentine taxes present and future when held by others than residents or citizens of the Argentine. Central Union Trust Company of New York, Registrar.

Sinking Fund of 3% per annum cumulative, operates semi-annually by drawings by lot in February and August for retirement of bonds at 100% on the interest date following each drawing; first retirement September 1, 1925. As the sinking fund may be increased at the option of the Province, additional bonds may be redeemed at 100% on any interest date.

The following is summarized from information obtained, partly by cable from Dr. Felix Roca, Minister of Finance of the Province, and partly from official and other sources:

Province of Santa Fe: Santa Fe is located in the central part of Argentina, northwest of the province of Buenos Aires. It is one of the largest and richest of the Argentine provinces, having an area of 50,916 square miles (larger than the State of New York), and a population officially estimated to exceed 1,158,000.

The number of industrial establishments in the Province, amount of capital employed and value of output are substantially larger than in any other Argentine province except Buenos Aires. Chief products of the Province include wheat, corn, linseed, alfalfa, cattle and horses. The two principal cities of the Province are Rosario, the second largest city in Argentina, an important seaport on the River Parana, with a population of 222,500, and Santa Fe, the capital and an important railway center and river port having a population of more than 104,400.

Security: These bonds are the direct obligation of the Province of Santa Fe, Argentina, authorized by Law of December 26, 1922. They are specifically secured, equally with the authorized balance of bonds outstanding and issuable under the law (about 4,352,800 pesos or $1,847,700 face amount) by a first lien and charge on the provincial taxes on alcoholic beverages and on tobacco, originally imposed in 1921. The yield of these taxes is reported as follows:

The annual yield of the pledged taxes during the past three years has averaged $2,555,500, or about one and three-quarters times the annual charge for interest and sinking fund of all bonds authorized under this Law.

The pledged taxes are to be deposited weekly in a special account in the Banco de la Nacion Argentina, until an amount sufficient to meet each semi-annual charge for interest and sinking fund on such bonds has been accumulated. The Law prohibits the diversion of these funds to any other purpose.

Purpose of Issue: The Law authorizing these bonds provides that the proceeds thereof shall be employed in the construction of roads, bridges, cold storage plant, schools and other public works and in the payment of floating debt.

Provincial Finances: The revenues of the Province have steadily increased from 14,840,486 pesos in 1917 to 33,995,000 pesos in 1924. The total debt of the Province, as of December 31, 1924, including these bonds, is equivalent to about $46,513,750 (U. S.) or about $40 per capita.

Conversions from Argentine national currency into U. S. dollars have been made at par of exchange, 42.45 cents to the peso. Current rate of exchange is about 40.5 cents to the peso.

Bonds are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us, and subject to the approval of our counsel, Messrs. Cotton & Franklin, and Curtis, Mallet-Prevost, Colt & Mosle, of New York, and A. Condomi Alcorta of Buenos Aires. Pending preparation of the definitive bonds, interim receipts or temporary bonds will be delivered.

Application will be made in due course to list these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

Eligible to secure Postal Savings Deposits

NORFOLK, incorporated as a City in 1845, is the second largest city in Virginia, and one of the most important seaports on the Atlantic Coast, the tonnage of its harbor having been officially stated as second only to New York. This, combined with its excellent rail facilities, makes it the outlet and distributing point for large quantities of agricultural, manufactured and mined products. Its industries are well diversified.

These Bonds are direct general obligations of the City of Norfolk and are payable from unlimited ad valorem taxes on all of the taxable property within the City, with a total assessed valuation for taxation purposes of $197,844,902, and a net bonded debt of $24,740,498. The actual value of all taxable property is officially estimated at $303,356,330. There is no separate school district nor county debt in Norfolk, and the above represents the total bonded indebtedness of the City.

PLANS TO RETIRE $3,000,000 BONDS

TO FORM NEW COMPANY

Stock of Delaware Corporation to Be Exchanged for Shares of Maine Concern of Same Name.

Directors of the General Gas & Electric Corporation yesterday appointed a committee to submit to the stockholders a plan to retire the bonded indebtedness of more than $3,000,000, and for the deposit and exchange of existing stocks of the corporation for the securities of a new company of the same name to be organized under the laws of Delaware. The present corporation was organized under the laws of Maine. An incorporation in Delaware, it is stated, has the advantage of broader powers, desirable when mergers and consolidations of utilities are a matter of daily occurrence. W. S. Barstow, the President, said yesterday that the plan had been evolved at the request of many holders of each class of the stock of the corporation, and, he said, "it is believed will accomplish the purposes which have been suggested," including an improvement in the corporation's capital structure.

To meet this plan, the Class A and Class B preferred stockholders are to be asked to take the equivalent of their present holdings in shares of the Delaware corporation, bearing exactly the same dividends and all conditions of the stock except that the new stocks will not be participating. It is stated that capital can more readily be secured by the sale of a straight cumulative preferred stock without participating privileges, or Class A common stock which would be junior to the existing cumulative preferred stocks. The sale of additional participating preferred would, it is pointed out, naturally weaken the participating value of the present stock, as it means much more stock to share in the surplus earnings.

The President's statement says:

"Each share of the convertible preferred stock of the Maine corporation is to receive four shares of common stock Class A of the Delaware Corporation, entitled to dividends at the rate of $1.50 a share before any dividends are paid on the common stock. This dividend paid upon four shares of stock is equivalent to the $6 dividend provided for the present convertible preferred stock. It is also preferred in liquidation at the rate of $25 a share over the common stock, but is to share with the common stock in liquidation after the common has received $25 a share. It is also to share pro rata with the common and the participating certificates in any amounts declared as dividends after the common has received $1.50 a share.

"Each share of the common stock of the Maine corporation is to receive four shares of common of the Delaware corporation, which is entitled to receive $1.50 a share per annum before any additional payments are made upon the Class A shares, or the participating certificates, and is entitled to equal pro rata distribution of additional amount declared as dividends after it has received $1.50 per share."

The authorized amounts of new stocks have been increased to provide for reasonable future growth. Banking arrangements have been made conditional upon approval of a sufficient number of stockholders of this plan, to make it operative, for the sale of additional of the authorized stocks in sufficient amount to retire entirely all bonded indebtedness. The company will then be entirely free of fixed charges or any of the dangers coming from maturities of fixed obligations.

Common shares of the company jumped 19 points yesterday to a new record high of 170.

ENDS 50 YEARS IN BANKING.

H. H. Powell Honored by Officers of Equitable Trust Co.

H. H. Powell, Vice President of the Equitable Trust Company, received congratulations yesterday on his completion of fifty years of service in New York banking. He began his banking career in 1875 as a junior clerk in the old Importers and Traders National Bank. In 1893 he was made assistant cashier, and in 1902 was appointed cashier. As President in 1923 Mr. Powell was active in the proceedings incident to the successful merger of his bank with the Equitable Trust Company and has since been a Vice President of the combination.

A surprise dinner was given for Mr. Powell at the University Club on Tuesday evening by officers of the Equitable Trust Company to commemorate the golden anniversary of his banking service. Informal speeches were made by the toastmaster, James A. Goldsmith, Alvin W. Krech, Chairman of the Equitable Board, Arthur W. Loasby, President, and Messrs. Wimpfheimer, Cooper and Townsend. Lantern slides portrayed by cartoons the early struggles of Mr. Powell to gain a foothold in New York banking.

RATIFIES POSTER MERGER.

Surrogate's Action on Link Shares Completes New Organization.

Surrogate George A. Wingate in Brooklyn yesterday approved the transfer of stock belonging to the estate of the late Barney Link, pioneer in the outdoor advertising field and one time President of the Brooklyn Poster Company, in exchange for shares in other poster companies. This decision in effect ratified the recent merger of more than twenty poster companies in New York, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities which was effected last February by Kerwin H. Fulton, former associate of Mr. Link and one of the executors of his will. The merger, it was said, controls about $30,000,000 annually in poster advertising and is operated as the General Outdoor Advertising Company, Inc., of New Jersey.

In its first quarterly statement, made public yesterday, the company reported net profits of $513,408 for the three months ending May 31.

Link's career in advertising began forty years ago, when he was employed as an advance agent for the Barnum & Bailey Circus.

DELAWARE & HUDSON LEASE

Managers Approve Acquiring Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh.

The Board of Managers of the Delaware & Hudson Company approved the lease yesterday of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway Company for a term of 999 years. The lease provides rental sufficient to pay 6 per cent. annual dividends on the $6,000,000 outstanding preferred stock and the $10,500,000 common stock, besides paying all fixed charges and assuming maturing debts.

The stockholders of the Delaware & Hudson are expected to act on the proposal within six weeks. The directors of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh approved the lease of their property on May 1. The road's stockholders probably will meet to vote on it this week or next.

A. J. County Heads P. R. R. Finances

The directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad have conferred on A. J. County, Vice President in charge of accounting, the additional duties of supervising the finance department. Prior to his retirement under the age limit on June 5, Henry Tatnall was Vice President in charge of finance.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Further Gains in Danish and Norwegian Kroner—French and Italian Weak—Chinese Units Up.

Continued strength in the Danish and Norwegian currencies proved the feature of trading in the foreign exchange market again yesterday, both going to new highs at 17.26 cents and 18.52 cents respectively. Speculation in these bills has turned on the improved economic conditions in both countries. Brokers said that there still remained a sizable "long" account, although at intervals profit-taking sales are noticed. The turnover exceeded that of Monday, approximately 5,000,000 kroner figuring in the day's business.

There was also a heavy turnover in the French franc, which dropped to a new low for the year at 4.61¼ cents. Selling was particularly strong and in the absence of any support the market showed a loss of 6¾ points at the day's low. Italian francs were irregular, moving above and below the 3.70 cent mark throughout. Support was apparent when the rate dipped, which led traders to believe that this point is the stabilization level. Holland, Swiss and Spanish exchanges were quiet and steady.

Sterling was firm around $4.85¾, unchanged from Tuesday's close. The Chinese currencies showed some interesting changes as a result of the unsettlement in that country, there being a nominal quotation of 59.88 cents for checks, no cable transfers being available because the principal Chinese banks are closed. Shanghai checks were quoted at 77.88 cents. Other Easterns and South Americans were firm.

TO SURVEY RAYON INDUSTRY

Manufacturer Goes to Look Over Conditions in Europe.

W. L. Nolan, a director of the American Rayon Products Corporation, left for Europe yesterday to survey the rayon industry there. This new industry, he said, which only a few years ago was practically unknown, has within the past decade taken third rank among the textile industries of the world, preceded only by cotton and wool.

While abroad Mr. Nolan will interview foreign interests who have declared their intention of organizing a new company for the production of rayon in the United States. The largest factors in the industry in this country are the Viscose Company, which, it is estimated, produces about 70 per cent of the rayon manufactured here; the Tubize Artificial Silk Company of America, the du Pont Rayon Company and the Industrial Fibre Corporation of Cleveland.

Lyon Oil Refining Earnings.

A report of earnings of the Lyon Oil Refining Company for the five months ended May 31, after depreciation but before depletion, issued yesterday, showed $943,000, equivalent to $4.70 a share on the 200,000 shares of stock outstanding. Directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share, payable July 22 to stockholders of record June 30.

SPENDS $36,340,000 HERE FOR COTTON

BANKS SUPPLIED CREDITS

Production of the Russian Mills Now Said to Be at 75% of Pre-War Output.

The All-Russian Textile Syndicate, which for the last year and a half has been probably the largest individual purchaser of American cotton as a single agency, has just completed its purchases of the present crop on credits supplied by American banks, it is stated. The total so purchased this season amounts to an expenditure by the Russian cotton mills through the syndicate of $36,340,000. This sum covers the purchase of 243,696 bales of the American staple from the 1924-25 crop and the cost of the cotton as well as insurance and freight to Murmansk, the Russian port on the Arctic, whither all such shipments have been directed.

The $36,340,000 spent for American cotton in the last season compares with similar expenditures in the preceding season of $31,457,000. This steady expansion in purchases for the Russian Soviet Union, it is stated, has been accompanied by a corresponding expansion in the production of the Russian mills, now said to be at 75 per cent. of pre-war output. Soviet textile progress is also illustrated by the fact, pointed to yesterday by Alex Gumberg, Vice President and Treasurer of the syndicate, that the area planted to cotton in Russia for the 1925-26 yield is between 35 and 40 per cent. higher than the area planted last year. Last year's yield of Russian cotton was 460,000 bales, compared with only 215,000 bales the year before.

Exclusive rights to the whole territory of the Soviet Union to the "Owens flow machine," used in the manufacture of bottles, have been acquired by the All-Russian Syndicate of Silicate Industries, known as the "Prodasilicat," which is controlling the glass and allied industries in Russia. The contract was negotiated by the Amtorg Trading Corporation, New York, as agent for the syndicate, and involves the expenditure of about $1,000,000 by the Russian interests in the purchase of patents and a number of the machines of the latest type, which have not yet been introduced in Europe. It also includes all future improvements and inventions which may be introduced by the Owens Bottle Company.

The latter has also undertaken to cooperate with the syndicate in installing the machines in the Soviet factories and in the instruction of specialists for the operation of the machines.

CRUDE RUBBER HIGHER.

Price Advances to 85 Cents a Pound Under Strong Demand.

With no sign of a halt in the demand by factories and manufacturers, crude rubber prices worked into new high ground again yesterday. Spot smoked sheets moved up 2 cents per pound to 85 cents, a price which was paid on several transactions late on Tuesday, and unequaled since 1917. Strength and higher prices also were registered in the other grades. London was a factor in the rise, cables coming over at 39d., a gain of 1d. over the previous day. The buying took in all positions and carried well over into the options for next year, an indication that the big tire makers look for no sharp reaction from present levels.

With the rising price of the staple the opinion has been freely expressed that tire prices will again undergo an upward revision some time next month. It is known that tire manufacturers have been making strenuous efforts within the last week to search out every available pound of the product, having commissioned brokers to snap up any offering that comes on the market.

The quotation for ribbed smoked sheets for June was 85 cents, while 83 cents was the price for July, and 76 cents for August-September. Clean brown crepe thin was 76 cents for June, 74 cents for July, and 70 cents for August-September delivery. First latex crepe was 84 cents for June, 82 cents for July and 76 cents for August-September. Amber 3 was 78 cents for June, 74 cents for July, and 70 cents for August-September. Fine up-river para was 89 cents for June and July, with 68 cents for August-September delivery.

TO ISSUE $35,000,000 BONDS

Morris & Essex Road Will Use Part to Pay the Lackawanna.

The stockholders of the Morris & Essex Railroad Company, which is leased by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, approved yesterday a directors' resolution to issue $35,000,000 mortgage bonds. Of the total, $11,582,000 will be delivered to the Lackawanna in reimbursement of capital expenditures already made.

The new issue, which is subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is expected to bear 5 per cent. The available portion, it is believed, will be used to finance betterments of the Morris & Essex, which handles the Lackawanna's commutation traffic out of Hoboken.

TO GET NIAGARA POWER.

Jersey Coast Will Soon Be Linked With High-Power Lines, Fitkin Says

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 24.—Within a short time a small remaining gap between power lines along the north Jersey coast and high-power lines from the north will have been covered and this section will then be consuming electricity generated by water power at Niagara Falls. This was stated by A. E. Fitkin of New York City today in an address before the Asbury Park Rotary Club at the new Monterey Hotel.

Satisfactory public relationship, Mr. Fitkin said, is more valuable to a utility company than a substantial increase in rate.

ELGIN WATCH CO. DIVIDEND.

Payment of 2½% for Quarter Places Stock on a 10% Basis.

Directors of the Elgin Watch Company declared a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. on the capital stock yesterday, thus placing the issue on a 10 per cent. basis. The dividend is payable Aug. 1, to stockholders of record July 20. Three months ago the company paid a quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. and an extra dividend of 1 per cent.

The National Fireproofing Company announced a dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock, payable July 15 to stockholders of record July 1. The dividend paid in April was 1¾ per cent.

Pennsylvania Four Mill Tax Refundable

State Street Trust Company, Boston, Trustee

The following information has been furnished to us by the Company:

El Paso Electric Company, of Texas, does the entire electric lighting, commercial power, and street railway business in El Paso, Texas, and in addition operates two toll bridges across the Rio Grande.

Its property comprises a steam station of 31,500 kw. capacity (of which 15,000 kw. was installed last year), 261 miles of electric transmission and distribution lines, 39 miles of railway track, 90 railway cars, and the American half of each of the toll bridges.

The principal franchises of the Company, including all those under which it conducts its power and light business, expire subsequent to the maturity of these Bonds, and all operations are carried on without competition. On the street railways, a fare of six cents has been in effect for several years.

TERRITORY

El Paso is served by eight railroads and is the natural distributing center for a large area. It has many and diversified industries, including a lead and copper smelter, railroad shops, wood-finishing mills, foundries and cement works. Its population has increased from 39,279 in 1910 to a present estimated figure of 87,500.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE

The proceeds of this issue will be used for refunding purposes. Upon completion of this financing, these $3,000,000 Bonds will constitute the Company's only outstanding funded debt.

SECURITY

The Bonds are to be secured by a direct first mortgage on all the fixed property now owned by the Company, which has a present depreciated reproduction value in excess of $9,000,000.

Additional bonds may be issued from time to time, in series varying as to interest rates, maturity dates, etc., (a) par for par for the refunding of bonds previously outstanding under the Mortgage, (b) to the extent of $1,000,000 for the purpose of discharging indebtedness incurred in the acquisition of property prior to June 1, 1925, and (c) for not more than 75% of the cost or fair value, whichever is less, of net property additions made or acquired subsequent to May 31, 1925, provided in the last two cases that net earnings, as defined in the Mortgage, are not less than 1¾ times annual interest charges on all First Mortgage Bonds then outstanding and proposed to be issued.

EARNINGS

Calendar Year	Gross Earnings & Other Income	Operating Expenses, Maintenance & Taxes	Net Earnings (Before Deprec.)
1915	$930,124	$472,104	$458,020

Net earnings before depreciation for the ten years shown above average more than 2½ times annual interest charges on the First Mortgage Bonds presently to be issued or issuable against the existing property. Net earnings for 1924 amount before depreciation to more than 3½ times, and after depreciation to approximately 2½ times, such charges.

GENERAL

The property has been under the executive management of Stone & Webster for more than 23 years and is in excellent physical condition.

El Paso Electric Company, of Texas, is controlled by the El Paso Electric Company, of Delaware, and contributes more than 90% of that company's earnings. Dividends have been paid on the common stock of the Delaware company and its predecessor in each year since 1910. Current quoted prices for its preferred and common stocks indicate an aggregate market value of more than $6,000,000.

95⅞ and accrued interest, to yield about 5.30%

We offer these Bonds when, as and if issued and received by us, and subject to approval of counsel. It is expected that temporary Bonds or interim receipts will be ready for delivery on or about July 1, 1925. All legal details pertaining to this issue will be passed upon by Messrs. Tyler, Tucker, Eames & Wright, of Boston. Titles will be passed upon by Messrs. Goggin, Hunter & Brown, of El Paso.

FIGHT FOR CONTROL OF LEHIGH VALLEY

DEADLOCK IS REPORTED

Interest in Railroad Circles Centres on Alleged Contest—Road Figures in Loree's Plans.

Interest in railroad circles yesterday centred around what was reported to be a fight between the New York Central and the Delaware & Hudson for possession of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. President F. F. Loomis of the Lehigh Valley sailed for Europe last Saturday.

The Lehigh Valley was considered a logical addition to the Central prior to Mr. Loree's entry into the consolidation field. Now railroad men are guessing at its probable disposition and a few believe that it will remain an independent unit in the transportation field regardless of how many consolidations are proposed and approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Both the Central and the Delaware & Hudson were said to have acquired between 20 and 25 per cent. of the stock and to have reached a deadlock in its purchase. It is doubted by many, however, if Mr. Loree has any serious intention of seeking control of the Lehigh through purchases in the open market. That he would like to have operating rights over it from Easton, Pa., to Jersey City is considered probable. Officials of the three roads involved refused to comment on the report.

When Mr. Loree proposed to lease the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, which lacks 150 miles of touching the Delaware & Hudson at their nearest points, it was taken for granted by railroad men that his plan in its entirety included either the Lehigh Valley or the Lackawanna. Later it was disclosed that he had included both. Both roads satisfactorily join the Delaware & Hudson to the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, and both provide a route into Jersey City from Easton, Pa., the eastern terminal of the proposed Harriman line, which is sponsored by Mr. Loree.

CRUDE OIL PRODUCTION DROPS 59,878 BARRELS

Production of crude petroleum in the United States registered another sharp drop last week, due to the further decline in the Smackover field, and smaller production in some other sections. According to the Oil and Gas Journal's compilation, the daily average production amounted to 2,179,020 barrels last week, a decrease of 59,878 barrels compared with the average of 2,238,898 barrels reported in the previous week. Production of light oil dropped 992 barrels last week to 1,407,110, a new low record for the current year.

The production of the important fields and States compares as follows:

Shares of Engineers Public Service Organized to Take Over Virginia Utilities.

Twenty million dollars of financing is announced for today by the syndicate headed by Stone & Webster, Inc., as a sequel to the purchase recently of the Frank J. Gould controlling interest in the Virginia Railway and Power Company and other companies in the vicinity of Richmond and Norfolk. The offering, described as the initial one, consists of 200,000 shares of preferred stock in the Engineers Public Service Company, the new corporation organized to take over the acquired holdings in the Virginia properties. They are in the form of allotment certificates, priced at $102 and carrying in addition one-half share of common stock for each allotment certificate purchased.

Besides Stone & Webster, the syndicate making the offering consists of Blair & Co., Inc., Brown Brothers & Co. and Blodget & Co. These firms figured in the purchase along with Stone & Webster, of the Gould holdings.

Shares of common stock not included in the allotment certificates are being purchased by the syndicate for cash.

It was explained yesterday that the Engineers Public Service Company had been organized under the laws of Delaware to acquire public utility properties. It will first acquire control of the Gould and other properties in Virginia. The operating companies supply electric light and power, gas or street railway service to Richmond, Norfolk, Portsmouth and other communities having an aggregate population of about 500,000.

In the year ended Dec. 31, it is stated, the earnings of the public utility properties available for reserves, retirements and dividends applicable to the new company were over two and one-half times the present annual dividend requirements on the 50 per cent. paid allotment certificates now offered.

The syndicate is offering the certificates on terms by which 50 per cent. will be paid on or about July 7, 1925, and the remainder in instalments of not more than 10 per cent. at intervals of not less than ninety days, but no payment before Jan. 1, 1926, or if desired the entire payment may be made at the time of purchase."

BUYS SOAPSTONE QUARRIES.

Armstrong Products Gets 3 Southern Concerns and a Railroad.

Arrangements have been completed whereby the Armstrong Products Corporation, 42 Broadway, has acquired and will take over the properties and assets of the Phoenix Soapstone Corporation, the Maryland Soapstone Company and the Virginia Chesapeake Soapstone Corporation. The Armstrong company, in addition, acquired a railroad which connects the quarries with the Southern Railway.

According to the official statement issued by the company yesterday, "the Armstrong Products Corporation through these acquisitions will not only have a sufficient quantity of merchantable soapstone that should last for a hundred years or more, but will have transportation facilities, important trade names, &c., which have been before the public for over twenty years, as have the products supplied to users of soapstone."

4 ISSUES PLANNED TOTAL $55,000,000

New York Bankers to Market $22,000,000 Securities of Two Railroads.

Four pieces of new financing calling for a total of $55,000,000 are scheduled to be announced soon by New York banking houses, it was learned yesterday. They include two railroad issues for a total of $22,000,000, a Chilean Land Bank bond offering of $20,000,000 and a real estate issue of about $13,000,000.

Lee, Higginson & Co. is expected soon to make a public offering of $16,560,000 of Kansas City Terminal 4 per cent. bonds, subject to approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Old Kansas City Terminal bonds are now selling at about 87 and the new bonds are expected to be priced somewhat above that figure.

An issue of $5,500,000 5½ per cent. Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific equipment trust certificates will soon be placed, it was understood yesterday. Speyer & Co. are conducting the negotiations for this issue.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the Guaranty Company of New York are preparing to offer an issue of $20,000,000 bonds of the Chilean Mortgage Bank, which operates on lines similar to those of American Land Banks. This is something new in the line of foreign investments to American investors, though such Chilean bonds have been familiar for half a century in Chilean and European markets. They have been considered desirable because of the high yields obtainable, 8 per cent. being paid at times. The price and yield of the forthcoming issue have not been announced.

The bonds heretofore have been issued in only three currencies, English pounds, French francs and Chilean dollars, or pesos. The latest report of the bank showed bonds outstanding to the amount of 673,165,300 gold pesos. For many years the bank has made satisfactory profits and has paid dividends on its stock, which is owned by the Chilean Government.

The Chilean Mortgage Bank was organized in 1855 and functions almost exactly the same as the Federal Land Banks in this country. The collateral behind the bonds consists of mortgages to an amount of 50 per cent. of the appraised value of farm and urban properties.

The National City Company is preparing a $13,000,000 real estate bond issue which is expected to be ready for public offering within the next week.

WABASH DECLARES DIVIDEND

Railroad to Pay 1¼ Per Cent. on Preferred A Stock.

The Wabash Railway Company declared the regular dividend yesterday of 1¼ per cent. on the preferred A stock, payable Aug. 25 to stockholders of record Aug. 10.

Gross revenues of the road during May were reported as $5,697,632, compared with $5,181,056 in 1924 and net income as $1,161,988, compared with $706,193. Five months' gross aggregates $27,256,319, compared with $26,700,481 the year before, and five months net $4,875,343, compared with $4,108,094.

ESTATE OF FRANCIS PALMS

5% FIRST MORTGAGE SERIAL GOLD BONDS

Dated June 15th, 1925 — Due Serially December 15th, 1926, through 1943

Principal and semi-annual interest (June and December 15th) payable at the offices of First National Company of Detroit or Security Trust Company of Detroit, Michigan. Callable on any interest date on sixty days' notice at 101. Coupon bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $500. Registerable as to principal. Mortgagor agrees to pay normal income tax up to two per cent.

SECURITY TRUST COMPANY
Detroit, Michigan, Trustee

SECURITY: These bonds are the direct obligation of the Estate of Francis Palms, and are specifically secured by a first mortgage upon improved property, the greater part of which is located in the heart of the down-town retail district of Detroit. With the exception of the interest in the property at 48 Monroe Avenue, the land and buildings thereon are owned in fee. The real estate and buildings have been appraised by the Security Trust Company. Values based upon their report are as follows:

Jefferson Avenue, East—No. 313, between Randolph and Brush Streets	$ 36,000.00
Jefferson Avenue, East—Nos. 1001-1015, Southwest corner of Rivard Street, known as The Palms Apartments	287,000.00
Jefferson Avenue, West—Nos. 316-320, between Shelby and Wayne Streets	31,350.00
Woodbridge Street—Nos. 173-179, Southeast corner of Shelby Street	46,500.00
Monroe Avenue—Nos. 36-46, between Woodward and Farmer Street, facing Campus Martius and including land in rear of 48 Monroe	1,170,000.00
Monroe Avenue—Nos. 104-106, between Farmer Street and Library Avenue	200,000.00
Washington Blvd.—Nos. 1238-1254, between State Street and Grand River Ave	1,000,000.00
Washington Blvd.—Nos. 1133-1143, Southwest corner of State Street	690,000.00
	$3,460,850.00
All the right, title and interest in property at 48 Monroe Avenue	125,000.00
TOTAL APPRAISED VALUE of all property covered by mortgage	$3,585,850.00

INCOME: The income from properties after deduction of all taxes, insurance and carrying charges is approximately $209,475.00 per year. Most of the parcels are under graduating leases for periods of years, according to the terms of which the net revenue will be materially increased.

PURPOSE: The proceeds of this issue of 5% bonds will be used to retire the $1,700,000, 6% bonds of the Estate of Francis Palms now outstanding which have been called for payment as of October 1st, 1925.

Here is the Miller "Life-line" of satisfied customers

"THIS year's sales are far ahead of last year's," said our sales manager with pride. But if his information stopped there, his statement would be without full significance to us, our prospects and our customers. It would tell nothing about the true feelings of investors toward Miller Bonds.

"What percentage of our sales increase was due to old customers?" we asked the sales manager. "Sixty-five per cent," he answered, pointing to the Life-line Chart. "This line shows the way sales to old customers have grown. The man or woman who invests $1000 with us commonly returns to invest $10,000 or $15,000."

Here, indeed, is significant information for the experienced investor. This increased buying by old customers shows their satisfaction with Miller Bonds. It shows the success of our customers in building personal fortunes, and their determination to continue with the same satisfactory type of investment. It stands for absolute confidence in the Miller issues and in the Miller methods of dealing with customers. It is the highest compliment that can be paid the investment house!

Yet increases in sales to old customers give but one important reason for you to consider Miller Bonds at this reinvestment period. Remember that while sales have grown, capital and surplus have also grown—on the average of 100 per cent each year. Each issue of Miller Bonds is secured by a first mortgage on an independently appraised office building, hotel or apartment structure.

Interest up to 7 per cent.
Normal federal income tax refunded.
Various state taxes refunded or paid.
Genuineness of each bond certified by a bank.
Denominations—$100, $500, $1000.
Bonds with an unconditional guarantee of principal and interest available, if desired.

It will pay you, now that we are in the reinvestment period, to find out more about investing in Miller Bonds. Write for Booklet 201 and descriptions of current offerings paying interest up to 7 per cent.

Is the Market on the verge of an important Reaction?

For five weeks the market has made no progress. Following a 15-point rise what does this waterlogged condition portend? Prior to the break in March the action of the market was identical. Is another break imminent? What action should be taken now? Answered in this week's issue of McNeel's Financial Service.

SEES PERIL IN LACK OF ANTIMONY HERE

Metallurgist Points Out China Produces Bulk of World's Supply of This Metal.

VITAL IN MANY INDUSTRIES

Discoveries in Handling of Metals Announced to Society for Testing Materials.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 24.—The supply of antimony, a "metal indispensable to modern civilization," is "absolutely controlled by China," and the present disturbed political conditions in that country cutting off this supply, are seriously affecting the United States, according to a report made today before the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the American Society for Testing Materials in Haddon Hall.

The report was presented by H. K. Masters, Secretary of the New York Metal Exchange, who pointed out that antimony is vital in the manufacture of metal bearings, cooking utensils, the type metal with which newspapers are printed, and other necessities.

"When war breaks out," he said, "antimony is in great demand as a component for the shrapnel. The United States is entirely dependent on foreign supply, and between 80 and 90 per cent. of the world's supply originates in China."

William Campbell, metallurgist of the New York Navy Yard, said that research engineers of the society had adopted important specifications covering the manufacture of brass for making cartridge cases, and for light aluminum alloys, "some of which are as strong and tough as many varieties of steel, and which are of extreme value in the manufacture of aircraft.

As an example of the importance of the specifications, it was declared that all large dirigibles built recently have used some one of the numerous new aluminum alloys, the entire framework of the Los Angeles having been constructed by the German engineers of such a material.

Other discoveries announced concerning the handling of metals included the use of the X-ray to determine the reactions of metals under various circumstances, and specifications for condenser tubes used in steam apparatus.

In line with the endeavor of the society to establish standard specifications and tests for materials throughout the country, the committee on timber, headed by Hermann von Schrenk of St. Louis, announced that a system had been devised whereby grades of wood could be distinguished quickly as to quality.

"It has been the endeavor of engineers for a great many years," the committee reported, "to find a suitable method for classifying timbers sawed from different trees so that the strongest could be easily picked out, since the wood of trees differs very much in strength. In cooperation with the United States Forest Service and the Hoover Committee on Lumber Standardization the committee has been able to determine upon a set of descriptions which will enable an architect, a contractor or an engineer to separate grades easily into three classes. By using these rules the average man will be able to know exactly what kind of timber he is getting."

The society established an annual Charles B. Dudley medal, named after its first President, and an Edgar Marburg lecture, named after its first secretary. The medal will be awarded annually to the author or authors of a paper presented before the society of outstanding merit constituting an original contribution on research in engineering materials. The lecture is to be by leaders in their professions, describing to the society outstanding developments in the promotion of knowledge of engineering materials.

DECLINE IN COPPER METAL.

Price Eases to 13¾ Cents a Pound as Buyers Hold Off.

Copper metal prices eased off to 13¾ cents a pound yesterday, and it was reported in the trade that some interests were shading prices even from that level. Demand for the metal just now is small, according to trade interests, both for export and domestic account, but this is expected in view of the easier tone to prices, which holds off buying in the belief that further recessions may be established.

Leading dealers pointed out yesterday that the reason for the drop in prices from the 13⅞-cent level quoted last week, was due to the failure of consumers to continue placing orders, on the belief that the advance in prices was only a flurry in the market and that an easier tone would prevail before long. Had the buying wave continued, producers expected the price to advance above 14 cents a pound.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

A. F. Iselin & Co., 36 Wall Street, announced yesterday that Robert M. Youngs had been admitted to partnership in the firm.

With the completion by Bonbright & Co., Inc., of distribution of $10,000 in cash prizes to twenty-three winners in their recent essay contest on the electric light and power industry, the New York banking house announced yesterday that it had compiled the three winning papers in pocket form.

Ruitter & Co. have issued a pamphlet containing a digest of the new Connecticut law covering the requirements for public utility bonds to qualify as legal investments for savings banks and trustees and containing a complete list of such bonds as of June 1, 1925.

Myron I. Granger of Sulzbacher, Granger & Co. will sail for Europe Saturday on a business and pleasure trip.

The Guaranty Trust Company of New York has been appointed transfer agent for the Class A stock of the Southern Gas and Power Corporation, Philadelphia, and registrar of the new issue of 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, Series D, of the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Company of Baltimore.

The Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company has been appointed trustee of $1,500,000 guaranteed beneficial certificates issued by the Prudence Company, Inc., and secured by bond and mortgage on property known as the Langham, 135 Central Park West, New York City.

Macauley & Co., 42 Broadway, have issued a quotation bulletin, containing a list of over 150 high-grade Brooklyn securities.

FIRST NATIONAL STOCK AUCTIONS FOR $2,780

Transfer of $366,960 in Shares Is Largest Reported for This Bank in Years.

After spirited bidding by half a dozen competing interests, 122 shares of stock of the First National Bank were sold at auction yesterday at $2,780 per share in the salesrooms of Adrian H. Muller & Sons, 14 Vesey Street. The transaction, involving $366,960, was the largest known transfer of First National Bank stock in recent years, and was one of the largest transfers of securities at auction on record.

The sale was made by trustees for the settlement of an estate, and the names of the sellers and purchasers were not made public. Bidding for the stock began at $2,700 and rose by $5 and $10 stages until $2,790 was reached. First National Bank stock was quoted in the unlisted market yesterday at $2,740 bid and $2,800 asked.

Stock of the bank, of which George F. Baker is Chairman and principal stockholder, has risen more than $300 per share since the declaration of a dividend of 25 per cent. for one quarter on June 9. Although not officially announced as a quarterly, it was generally regarded as such in the financial district, placing the bank's stock on a 100 per cent. annual dividend basis.

The higher prices have brought out very little of the stock, which is held in a few hands. Transactions recently have been mostly in five and ten share lots. The high record for the stock was reached last February, when it sold slightly above $2,900 per share.

RULES CHECKS ARE CASH.

Jersey Attorney General Construes Building and Loan Law.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24.—Attorney General Edward L. Katzenbach today gave out an opinion that building and loan associations may lend money on mortgage either by cash or check.

Many associations had asked the State Department of Banking and Insurance for an interpretation of the law passed last Winter, making it a misdemeanor for any officer of an association to pay anything other than cash to a mortgagor. The banking department asked Mr. Katzenbach to rule upon the enactment.

"The borrower must be paid in cash," declared the Attorney General. "This, however, does not preclude a building and loan association from giving a check to a borrower, because the check is equivalent to cash. The statute must be given a reasonable construction, and to hold that nothing but money could be paid would be to require the association to keep moneys on hand, which would probably be a dangerous practice. The design of the act was to prohibit the payment of money to any other person than the borrower, the practice in many associations being to pay such amounts to the attorneys of the association, in order that settlement may be made with the person securing the loan on mortgage or real property."

DISPOSE OF OIL STOCK.

Stockholders Take 97 Per Cent. of California Issue.

Announcement was made yesterday by Blair & Co., Inc., and Hallgarten & Co., managers of the syndicate which underwrote 527,978 shares of California Petroleum Corporation common stock, that the stockholders have subscribed for more than 97 per cent. of the offering under their right to subscribe at $27.50 a share. The balance of the stock has been disposed of by the syndicate.

Both the common and preferred stockholders had the right to subscribe to the new stock. The proceeds from the sale of the stock will be used to retire the $11,995,100 preferred stock at $120 a share.

First National Bank Makes Bid.

The First National Bank was reported yesterday to be the high bidder for a total of $11,350,000 City of Los Angeles bonds, divided into three issues. The First National's bid was 101.75 for $8,000,000 4½ per cent. bonds; $2,350,000 4 per cent. bonds, and $1,000,000 3½ per cent. bonds. An award of the bonds is expected to be made today.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Cash Markets Develop Only Slight Change in Values—Steadiness the Rule.

Price changes in yesterday's cash markets were few and relatively unimportant in size. There was a reaction in several of the grains, but it did not run very far. Middle West also sagged. Lead and tin in the metals were higher, while copper and zinc offset this improvement by declining. Groceries, spot cotton and dairy products were unchanged.

Yesterday's closing wholesale cash prices for commodities in the New York market unless otherwise noted, were:

SEE BEAR RAID IN OIL STOCK.

Nothing Else to Cause Drop in Reiter-Foster, Company Says.

A sharp decline on the Curb market in the shares of the Reiter-Foster Oil Corporation from approximately $31 to $26 a share brought forth the statement yesterday that nothing in the company's affairs warranted such a drastic drop in a single day. The statement attributed the decline to a bear raid.

First-quarter earnings of the company, according to the statement, were $123,423. The financial statement shows cash of $181,012 and accounts and notes receivable of $189,553, against which there are only current liabilities.

ALL GRAIN MARKETS HAVE A NEW SLUMP

Denials of Reports of Damage by Rust Turn a Wheat Bulge Into a Decline.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 24.—The wheat market developed a badly over-bought local "Pit" condition, after an early advance of around 2 cents which put prices up around 6 cents over the low on Monday. An official denial that rust existed in Canada was given as the reason for the break of 3@3¾ cents from the top, with the finish at net losses of ¼@1½ cent.

A majority of the local shorts ran in early and some went long on the bulge. The outside trade, while somewhat broader, was not large enough to absorb any great amount of selling.

Private reports covering the Dakotas and Minnesota indicate that the rust infection is to be found in practically all sections of the three States, but, with one exception, there have been no claims of damage so far and a local observer, in several messages, today, expressed the belief that the black rust stage would not be reached for a week. Weather conditions both sides of the international line were favorable for rust.

The Southwest bought July wheat here early and put it to around 2 cents over the September, but the difference narrowed to 1½ cents at the last.

With heavy rains in Missouri, Indiana and Nebraska, harvesting is delayed, while in Kansas farmers show little disposition to sell new grain and the movement is not large, the three interior Kansas markets receiving 224 cars.

Liverpool closed 1½d higher, with fears of a strike in the United Kingdom a factor, and England was the best buyer of wheat at the seaboard, with sales of 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 bushels in all positions, largely Manitobas, but including 100,000 bushels of hard Winters for near-by shipment from the gulf.

Cables from abroad indicated a better consumptive demand for cash wheat, although Argentine offerings were said to be materially lower than American.

Primary receipts today were 735,000 bushels; week ago, 650,000; last year, 673,000. Shipments were 595,000 bushels; week ago, 617,000; last year, 627,000.

Scattered liquidation developed in nearby deliveries of corn and the close was 2@2¼ cents lower with both July and September at a new low on the present downturn, and at the lowest figures in over two months. Some stop-loss orders were uncovered on the way down.

December declined only ¼ cent in the face of continued favorable weather for the new crop. Cash demand was fair with the spot basis little changed.

Oats were off ¾@⅞ cent in sympathy with corn, while rye was ¼@⅜ cent lower with wheat. Sales of 300,000 to 400,000 bushels of rye were reported for export at the seaboard.

Primary arrivals of corn were 453,000 bushels; week ago, 519,000; last year, 437,000, and shipments, 427,000 bushels; week ago, 445,000; last year, 513,000.

OFFER $10,188,000 OF PROVIDENCE BONDS

Issue of Santa Fe, Argentina, Is Priced at 96 to Yield 7.40 Per Cent. to Maturity.

White, Weld & Co. and Dillon, Read & Co. are offering for public subscription today the $10,188,000 Province of Santa Fe, Argentina, bond issue which was announced yesterday. The financing consists of public credit external 7 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds due Sept. 1, 1942. The offering price is 96 and accrued interest to yield about 7.40 per cent., to final maturity. The loan is provided with a sinking fund of 3 per cent. per annum which is cumulative and operates semi-annually for retirement of bonds at 100. Application will be made to list the bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Guaranty Company of New York and Stone & Webster, Inc., are offering an issue of $3,000,000 El Paso Electric Company (Texas) first mortgage gold bonds, series A. The bonds, bearing 5 per cent. interest, are due June 1, 1950, and are priced at 95½ and accrued interest to yield about 5.30 per cent. The company does the entire electric lighting, commercial power and street railway business in El Paso and in addition operates two toll bridges across the Rio Grande. Proceeds of the issue will be used for refunding purposes.

A syndicate composed of the First National Bank, Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., Redmond & Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., is offering a new issue of $1,846,000 4½ and 5 per cent. bonds of the City of Norfolk, Va. The 4½ per cent. bonds are priced to yield 4.25 per cent. and the 5 per cent. bonds to yield 4.35 per cent.

Peabody, Houghtelling & Co. are soon to offer an issue of secured serial 6 per cent. gold notes of Fred T. Ley & Co., Inc., general contractors, to be secured by the deposit of real estate bonds in an amount more than equal to the notes to be issued. The notes will be priced to yield from 5½ to 6% per cent.

Bishop Manning Inspects Quarry.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., June 24.—Bishop Manning visited a quarry here today to inspect granite and sandstone which have been proposed for the building of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. It was not indicated which kind of stone would be submitted as samples. Later the Bishop and his party motored across Bear Mountain Bridge over the scenic boulevard.

REACTION IN COTTON FOLLOWS UPTURN

Early Advance of 35 Points Is Lost and Close Is 3 Lower to 3 Higher for Day.

Extreme irregularity characterized yesterday's cotton market, an early advance of 35 points being followed by a loss of the entire improvement and final quotations 3 points lower to 3 higher on the day. The announcement of par figures to be used by the Department of Agriculture in making up the indicated yield on June 25 arrested general attention. While no average figure for the whole belt, the par for the various States showed a net loss from last year at this time, making a reduction of several pounds in the total. Texas figures were reduced from 168 to 175 pounds; North Carolina from 240 to 300 pounds and South Carolina from 265 to 290 pounds. The use of this new par would reduce recent private estimates several hundred thousand bales.

Effect on sentiment was such that active covering operations resulted in both July and new crop positions. On the upturn, extensive liquidation of July contracts prior to circulation of notices this morning had an unsettling influence on both New York and New Orleans and final trading occurred with selling pressure still in evidence.

With July notices expected today, both liquidation of long cotton by those who desired to transfer holdings to later months as well as short covering of outstanding obligations proved the features of the session. Scattered selling for Southern account during early trading, with July contracts appearing in the ring, caused a slight decline in prices immediately following the opening. Selling pressure proved short-lived, however, and with very little rainfall reported in any part of the South, the covering movement under way the last hour Tuesday was resumed. The reduction in Washington par figures stimulated activity, large blocks of cotton being taken from the market as the session advanced. With most private reports reflecting a decline in conditions from last month and need of moisture over a large portion of the South, various interests took back cotton sold previously. Several blocks of July were taken during the day which served to advance New York 45 points over New Orleans.

New Orleans failed to follow the local advance at 45 points and with showers predicted for every State over night, heavy realizing operations developed the last hour of the session. Private reports that rain was falling in Texas and the heaviest eleventh-hour July liquidation of the month depressed prices. The quantity of July for sale brought selling of new crop positions and virtually all the earlier gain disappeared toward the close.

The weekly weather report reflected further plant deterioration in Texas and stated that rain was needed from the Mississippi River eastward. Increased weevil infestation was reported in South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Louisiana. Excellent progress was reported over a large section of the belt. Census figures on linters from the last crop showed 877,000 bales, compared with 651,000 to May 31 last year.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.
July	23.40	23.75	23.23	23.40-45	23.41

CHRYSLER GETS MAXWELL.

Stockholders Authorize the Sale of Business and Properties.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., June 24.—The Chrysler Corporation today acquired all of the business and properties of the Maxwell Motor Corporation. The sale, pursuant to the plan of April 16, 1925, was authorized today at a meeting of the Maxwell stockholders held in Detroit.

Walter P. Chrysler stated that the new company was beginning its career under most auspicious circumstances. The new four-cylinder Chrysler car to be shown to the public tomorrow was most enthusiastically received by the Dealer and Distributor Organization. The company has orders on its book assuring capacity production for three months to come on both four and six-cylinder lines. Never in the history of the company has it been in so strong a position with respect to forward orders, organization, facilities and cash, he declared.

COTTONSEED OUTPUT LARGE

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Cottonseed crushed in the ten-month period, Aug. 1 to May 31, totaled 4,814,216 tons, compared with 3,225,908 in the same period a year ago, and cottonseed on hand at mills May 31 totaled 53,250 tons, compared with 96,182 a year ago, the Census Bureau today announced.

Cottonseed products manufactured in the ten-month period and on hand May 31 included the following: Crude oil produced 1,372,366,286 pounds, compared with 953,866,632, and on hand 44,247,425 pounds, compared with 52,190,495. LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

BUILD FOR FUTURE, REALTORS ARE TOLD

ART JURIES COMMENDED

National Association of Real Estate Boards Discusses Ethics, Beauty and Finance.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., June 24.—Five thousand realtors from every part of the United States today plunged into an intense program of "laboratory" work and lectures on the science of preparing land and improved property for sale, and meeting the needs of not only the seller and the buyer, but also the best interests of the community at large.

Experts and leaders in the profession met with delegates in divisional sessions, there being no general session of the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

A field trip for inspection of typical Detroit properties was made this morning with John N. Stalker, Vice President of the Union Trust Company in Chicago. The divisional sessions were held in the Statler and Book Cadillac Hotels.

George B. Ford of New York City, former President of the National Conference on City Planning and the American City Planning Institute, addressed the Home Builders' and Subdividers' Division on "City Planning and the Outlying Unbuilt Areas."

Mr. Ford discussed the width of streets and sidewalks, grades, length of blocks, type of streets, size of lots and the adjustment of measurements of business and industrial districts.

"If the outlying unbuilt areas are zoned as to the use and intensity of development, it becomes much easier to determine in advance what sizes and shapes of lots and what corresponding width of streets and sizes of blocks will prove most attractive and practicable," he said.

He outlined the following principles and standards in laying out unbuilt areas:

Streets should not be less than 50 feet wide, and roadways 27 feet wide.

Sidewalks should rarely be less than 5 feet wide.

Side streets can be used along steep hillsides.

Maximum grades should not be over 10 to 12 per cent. in residential and 5 to 7 per cent. in business districts.

Alleys should be eliminated in residential districts.

In residential districts blocks should be not less than 600 nor more than 1,000 feet long.

The minimum width for lots should be 35 to 40 feet and 100 feet the minimum depth and 125 feet the maximum. Business lots should be not less than 25 feet wide nor more than 80 to 100 feet deep, and industrial lots 200 to 400 feet deep.

Mr. Ford said experience suggests 10 per cent. of the areas of subdivisions should be set aside for common use, for parks, recreation areas and public buildings.

"It has proved advantageous to provide in the deed that even after resale, every building, structure and major planting should be passed upon by a community architectural art jury," Mr. Ford said, emphasizing the importance of harmony in planting subdivisions.

At the same meeting Irenaeus Shuler of Omaha, Neb., discussed "Subdivision Control and Standards."

"The architect who builds a beautiful house for a client, but makes it out of harmony with the style in the rest of the neighborhood creates a community liability," he said. "The subdivider who develops for an immediate profit without due consideration of the things which tend to create and maintain values in and around his subdivision is a menace to the community in which he operates."

He pointed out the need of a "master plan" such as is proposed for Detroit and its metropolitan area to prevent mistakes which would have to be corrected at enormous expense in years to come, just as the present generation is paying for the mistakes of subdividers and city officials of the past.

Herbert U. Nelson, Executive Secretary of the association, addressing the conference on real estate education, spoke of the necessity for a high type of training for the modern real estate salesman. More than forty universities and colleges have installed one or more courses in real estate, Mr. Nelson pointed out. In the future, he said, the real estate dealer will take his position in the category of the vocations and professions based upon thorough training and high ideals of service.

The growth of the real estate business was shown by George H. Gallup, President of the Denver Real Estate Exchange. It was necessary to get large capital resources, he said, and he recommended syndicate operation as the best way of combining individuals and their funds for investment and speculations. He cited the Denver Realty Association as a successful syndicate.

Carlton Schultz of Cleveland, speaking to the property management division, made an analysis of the general necessities "building in a laboratory" talk accompanying a trip of realtors through the building. He told of a survey made of the district, and the method of computing rents and the estimate of operating expenses.

The importance of making an attractive basement in a home, the inclusion of a den and fireplace in the plans and attractive lighting fixtures as aids in promoting the sale of a residence were stressed by Gerald F. Healy of Flint, speaking to the home builders and subdividers division.

The divisional meetings continued during the afternoon.

Thursday's entertainment program includes a trip through the suburban district and a complimentary dinner given by the women of the Detroit Real Estate Board in the Italian Garden of the Book Cadillac Hotel. The Philadelphia Board will hold a dinner in the Crystal Ballroom of the Book Cadillac, and at 7:30 the President's dinner, the most brilliant function of the convention, will take place in the main ballroom of the Statler Hotel.

NO JONES TRIAL TILL FALL.

Prosecutor Says Broker's Case Will Not Be Called Before Then.

It was said at the District Attorney's office yesterday that William R. Jones, senior partner in the Curb brokerage firm of Jones & Baker, which failed for $3,000,000 two years ago, would not be called for trial in General Sessions on indictments charging that he traded against the orders of customers, until the Fall. Jones on Tuesday announced that he had formed the William R. Jones Corporation, which would operate an investment bureau through which advice on the merits of listed stocks would be given to clients. He was released in $5,000 bail when he pleaded not guilty to the indictments a year ago in General Sessions.

It was explained that only three parts of General Sessions would be available for trials for the Summer season, beginning July 1. The trials of all defendants on bail would be deferred until after that period to enable the court to deal with prisoners lodged in the Tombs. District Attorney Joab H. Banton expects that it will require at least two weeks for the Jones trial, because of the technical evidence involved.

Kellogg and Szechenyi Sign Treaty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—A treaty of friendship, commerce and consular rights between the United States and Hungary was signed today at the State Department by Secretary Kellogg and Count Laszio Szechenyi, the Hungarian Minister. The new treaty, which is based on the commercial treaty with Germany, accords unconditional most-favored-nation treatment.

SCORE OF CRIMES LAID TO SHEWAN BURGLAR

Morgan Partner a Victim, Assistant Prosecutor Says—Homan Held Without Bail.

William Homan, 25 years old, a former convict, who, the police say, has confessed to more than a score of robberies in Manhattan, was held without bail yesterday by Magistrate Marsh in the Harlem Court for examination July 1, charged with suspicion of robbery.

The specific complaint against Homan, according to Assistant District Attorney Robert Santangelo, is the robbing at pistol point of Mrs. James Shewan of 18 East Seventy-sixth Street in her library of two diamond rings valued at $2,500 on April 16. He said Mrs. Shewan is ill at her country home at Cold Spring Harbor, L. I., and would not be able to appear in court until about July 1, by which time, he continued, the police expect to have more evidence against Homan.

Homan was arrested Monday by Detective Mach of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, who, Mr. Santangelo said, arrested the man five years ago for burglary for which he served five years in Sing Sing.

Mach was assigned to several of many burglaries on the east side recently, among them one at the home of William Russell at 10 East Eighty-third Street, where $10,000 of jewelry was stolen. In each instance, Mr. Santangelo said, Mach noticed the burglar had visited the place during, or shortly after, the arrival of tradesmen and had apparently gained entrance to the building with them through tradesmen's and servants' entrances. The method, he remembered, was that employed by Homan, a case that was distinct in his memory because it was his first as a recruit policeman and gained him a promotion.

Mr. Santangelo said Mach located and arrested Homan, and his confession followed a tour with the police in an automobile through the sections where he was suspected of committing robberies.

Mr. Santangelo, said Homan, pointed out twenty-five houses on the east side between Fiftieth and Eighty-sixth Streets and on the west side between Fiftieth and Ninetieth Streets which he said he had robbed. The total value of the jewelry he stole was between $50,000 and $75,000, he said. The Assistant District Attorney would not disclose the names of the persons Homan is said to admit having robbed save those of Mrs. Shewan. Mr. Russell and Thomas Newbold of 15 East Seventy-ninth Street, a partner of J. P. Morgan, from whose home a $600 watch was stolen and sold by Homan for $20.

STABBED MAN WALKS BLOCK

Dies in Store—Drug Feud Blamed, but Killing Is Mystery.

Erisano Grambino, 25 years old, who had a police record as a drug addict and illicit dispenser of narcotics, walked a block with a stab wound in the heart yesterday to die in the chair of a drug store at Broome and Mott Streets, to which he had been guided by an unidentified youth. His killing was attributed by the police to a feud between bands of drug purveyors, but no clue to his slayer had been obtained up to a late hour last night.

Detectives Repetti and Pike of the Homicide Squad followed a trail of blood from the drug store to the entrance of 24 Spring Street, two blocks away, but nobody could be found who would admit having witnessed the stabbing or reveal the identity of the swarthy-skinned, undersized youth who had half carried the dying man through Spring and Mott Streets to the place where he died before the arrival of Dr. Baker in an ambulance from St. Vincent's Hospital.

Several persons admitted having seen the victim of the stabbing and his companion going through the streets, Grambino bent half over and holding his hands, his breast and abdomen, but they said they didn't know the second man. Anthony J. Taddino, clerk in the drug store, said that he had been behind the partition in the rear when Gambrino's companion had pushed the dying man through the door and, placing him in the chair near the entrance, had shouted: "Come out here, quick; this fellow's been hurt. Before he could get a good look at the second man, the clerk added, he ran out the door through Mott Street in the direction of Spring Street.

The detectives established the identity of the dead man through fingerprint comparisons at Police Headquarters, two blocks away. He had given the address 207 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, when he was arrested as a drug possessor and addict in 1919 and again in 1923. The police record also showed that in 1919 he had served a six-months term in the Snake Hill Penitentiary on his conviction in Jersey City on a similar charge.

MAN AND HIS WARD VANISH.

Wife Anxious for Return of Girl, 15, but Not Husband, She Says.

The disappearance of Francis De Mola, 43 years old, of 125 South Twenty-second Street, Flushing, and his fifteen-year-old ward, Miss Clara Weber, was reported to the police last night by Mrs. De Mola. De Mola, who owned four ice routes in Queens, left early Tuesday morning on one of his routes and has not been seen since. The girl, who was employed as a stenographer, also disappeared on her way to work Tuesday morning. The girl is an orphan, the daughter of an old friend of Mrs. De Mola's.

De Mola is believed to have had only $12 with him when he disappeared, and while he had a large bank account, it was in his wife's name. Mrs. De Mola said last night that she was very anxious to have the girl restored to her care but was not "particularly interested" in her husband. She has four sons, the eldest eighteen and the youngest seven.

MRS. TINNEY GETS ALIMONY

Court Allows Comedian's Wife $200 a Month and $5,000 Fees.

Mrs. Edna Tinney of Baldwin, L. I., who recently obtained a court order permitting service in London upon her husband, Frank Tinney, in her action for divorce, received an award of $200 a month alimony and $5,000 counsel fees from Justice Russell Benedict in Brooklyn yesterday. The alimony is to continue until the determination of her suit.

The Court's action was based on a stipulated agreement by Mr. and Mrs. Tinney and their attorneys, which was submitted to Justice Benedict by Henry Oshrin, attorney for Mrs. Tinney. The comedian, who is now playing in London, was represented by Peirce & Hopkins. The stipulation which Tinney signed in London gives sole custody of their son, Frank Jr., to his mother. The suit is to be tried in Nassau County.

Find Missing Girl With Man.

Miss Catherine Hoffman, 17 years old, who disappeared from the home of her parents, at 32 South Street, West New Brighton, S. I., on June 15, was taken into custody by police in the Bronx yesterday at 5,880 Broadway with George Leahey, 21 years old, of 142 Montgomery Avenue, Tompkinsville. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoffman, the girl's parents, made a complaint of abduction against Leahey. The girl formerly worked as a cashier in a motion picture theatre at Port Richmond.

Boy Scout Wins Courtesy Prize.

Charles Jeanson, First Class Scout and Patrol Leader of Troop 23, Bay Ridge District of the Boy Scouts of America, who won the Boy Scout Scholarship to the McBurney School, connected with the West Fifty-seventh Street Y. M. C. A., has received the courtesy prize as the most courteous boy in the school and was elected to the Lamp and Laurel, the highest honor in the school.

BIG HOUSING PLOTS SOLD TO SYNDICATES

HOTEL NEAR GRAND CENTRAL

New York Central Railroad Leases Lexington Avenue Block Front in $4,000,000 Project.

Building projects involving millions will be undertaken in widely scattered sections of Manhattan as the result of deals concluded yesterday, when builders purchased sites for the new structures, all of which will be for housing purposes.

The largest of these operations will be started immediately in the Grand Central Zone where the New York Central Railroad leased a block front to a building syndicate. The site is the westerly block front on Lexington Avenue from Forty-eighth to Forty-ninth Street, a plot 200 by 200 feet. It contains 40,000 square feet and is on the block with the Park Lane.

A fourteen-story hotel will be erected on the site by the leasing syndicate, which includes William Henry Barnum & Co. Eliot Cross, W. Seward Webb Jr. and the Todd, Robertson, Todd Engineering Corporation. The latter will erect the building from plans by Cross & Cross, architects.

The building will be completed in the Summer of 1926 and will be known as the Barclay Hotel.

Another housing operation by a syndicate will be undertaken on Riverside Drive. The northeast corner at Eighty-first Street was purchased yesterday by a syndicate consisting of Sigmund Solomon, Jacob S. Kahn, A. H. Levy and Edward S. Schwartz from various owners, including C. M. Higgins of the Standard Oil Company.

The property, known as 90-94 Riverside Drive and 307-317 West Eighty-first Street, has a drive frontage of 103.4 feet, measures 203 feet in the street and has a northerly line of 222 feet, making, in all, a plot area of 21,700 feet. Sharp, Nassoit & Lanning negotiated the transaction.

Plans are now being prepared for a tall multi-family structure to contain suites of five, six, seven and eight rooms, with wood-burning fireplaces. The project will cost close to $4,000,000.

Pauline Maier sold to the 160 West Seventy-seventh Corp., Max Rosen, Pres., 158 West Seventy-seventh Street, a four-story and basement dwelling 20 by 102.2 feet. Mr. Rosen also owns 160, 162 and 164 West Seventy-seventh Street. With his last purchase he has accumulated a plot 81 by 102.2 feet, upon which he will build a nine-story and pent house apartment from plans by George A. Pelham, Pease & Elliman were the brokers in yesterday's purchase and in assembling the whole plot.

H & J Building Corporation (Max Horowitz, President and Theodore Jaffe, Treasurer) through Max J. Weinman, purchased a plot of land on Broadway and 211th Street, for the erection of two apartment houses.

Columbus Avenue Corner Sold.

A prominent Columbus Avenue corner changed hands yesterday when A. V. Amy & Company sold for Arthur Leopold and Milton Rindler, 741-743 Columbus Avenue, the northeast corner of Ninety-sixth Street, a five-story walk-up apartment house, fronting 100 feet on Columbus Avenue and 140 feet on the Street. The house contains nine stores. The property rents for $25,000 and was held at $225,000. The purchaser is an investor.

In the Dyckman section Volz & Maas, resold for A. C. & H. M. Hall, builders and operators, to Charles Milgrim, the five story apartment house, 199-200 by 202 by 184 irregular, on the corner of Broadway and Dongan Place, containing two stores. The property was held at $360,000.

Samuel L. Brown sold to the 340 West Fifty-seventh Street Corporation for investment, the five-story apartment house at 341 West Fifty-sixth Street. The buyers are the owners of The Vintonia Hotel at 340 West Fifty-seventh Street and by the above purchase have rounded out their plot and now have a plot fifty feet on Fifty-seventh Street running through and fronting fifty feet on Fifty-sixth Street. The house was held at $65,000. W. H. Ebbitt Co. were the brokers.

Max Oestreicher of the Hotel Monterey has purchased through Slawson & Hobbs from Beekman Realty Corporation, two five-story apartment houses on plot 75 by 100, 213-217 West 105th Street, near Broadway.

Joseph A. Rauschkolb sold for Wolff, Louis and Simon Chaikin and Samuel Braverman, to an investing client, 637 Tenth Avenue and 501-3 West Forty-fifth Street, at the northwest corner Tenth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street; size 25 by 100 each; four- and five-story apartment buildings with stores. This property was held at $75,000. There are negotiations pending for the resale of these properties.

OPERATORS CLOSE DEALS.

Schwartz and Associates Buy Madison Avenue Flats.

A. H. Levy, Edward S. Schwartz and associates purchased from Lena Schleisinger the two five-story flats with stores at the southwest corner of Madison Avenue and 113th Street, on a plot 50 by 75 feet, renting for $20,000 and held at $140,000. Levy & Schwartz also sold to Morris Tunick the plot 76 by 95 feet at the northwest corner of Nelson Avenue and 165th Street, held at $25,000, for which the new owners had plans filed for the erection of a six-story apartment house.

H. B. Cantor and Louis Cacelis sold for the Triple Finance Corporation, Edward S. Schwartz, to Nicholas H. Apostoleris, the building at 312 and 314 West Twenty-seventh Street, 37.6 by 100 feet, held at $100,000.

Record Rental for Jersey City.

The Howard Cloak, Suit and Millinery Shop has obtained a ten-year lease from the Redsen Realty Associates, Inc. (L. H. Schindler and Benjamin Daniels), on the property at 153 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, N. J. The Howard Shop, under the terms of the lease, agrees to pay all taxes and insurance and the gross rental for the term will be $120,000, which is considered a record rental for property in Jersey City. It will also put in extensive alterations and will move from its present location on or about Oct. 1 of this year.

The Redsen Realty Associates, Inc., represents a syndicate of wholesale shoe people. David Canter was the broker who negotiated the lease.

Former Young Residence Leased.

The former residence of Mrs. Albert Young at 19 and 21 East Fifty-fourth Street, on a plot 41 by 100.5 feet adjoining the northwest corner of Madison Avenue, has been leased for a long term of years to a client of Augustus H. Skillin. William A. Pond Pilipp was the broker. The property was formerly occupied under lease by Lady Duff-Gordon.

Long Island City Sale.

Roman-Callman Company sold for Jacob Oppenheimer a plot, containing 12,000 square feet, located at the northeast corner of Washington and Eighth Avenues, Long Island City, for improvement with a plant for the dyeing and finishing of silk hosiery from plans prepared by Lockwood Greene & Co.

OPERATORS PURCHASE EAST SIDE TENEMENTS

Cahn & Cahn Buy Large Holding on Third Avenue at Twenty-fifth Street.

Kenny to a client for investment. Also a plot, 100 to 250 feet, on the southwest corner of Avenue T and West Twelfth Street, for the Kings County Trust Company, as trustee, to a client for investment.

William Liss, Inc., sold for a client the block front on Avenue Q, running from Ocean Avenue to East Nineteenth Street, including both corners and being 251.6 feet on Avenue Q by 100 feet on Ocean Avenue and 100 feet on East Nineteenth Street, to the Stanhope Realty Corporation, who will improve with six-story elevator apartments. This block front is about 500 feet from Kings Highway and is one of the big apartment operations under way in this section. This property was sold for $85,000.

MADISON AVENUE SALE.

Gruenstein & Mayer Buy Corner at Ninety-fifth Street.

The two six-story elevator apartment houses at 27 and 29 East Ninety-fifth Street and 1,356 Madison Avenue, forming the northwest corner of Ninety-fifth Street and Madison Avenue and covering a plot 100 by 100 feet, have been sold by William Goldstone and Simon Myers to Gruenstein & Mayer.

The houses are located in a section that has seen considerable activity during the past few months. George Ranger was the broker in the transaction.

Announces $7,000,000 Sales.

At a conference of the executives of the Coral Gables Corporation, in their New York offices, it was announced that more than $7,000,000 in Coral Gables, Miami Riviera properties had been sold during the first two weeks in June. The conference was held at the invitation of John B. Gallagher, Eastern manager, and its associate Y. A. Bradbury.

Two More Broadway Hotels To Have Stores on Street Level

Charles N. Whinston & Bro., architects, have been commissioned to design the alterations to the twelve-story Hotel Marseilles, at the southwest corner of Broadway and 103d Street, which will provide street level stores on the entire Broadway frontage of half the block. The present ballroom will give way to a line of parlor floor shops, which will have access to Broadway as well as the main lobby of the hotel, which is at this level. Together with various interior alterations, this work will represent an outlay in excess of $100,000.

The same architects have been commissioned to draw plans for providing stores on the Broadway frontage of the Hotel Prisament at the northeast corner of Broadway and Seventy-fourth Street, which, together with interior alterations will require the expenditure of $50,000.

HOSPITAL TO BUILD ON WASHINGTON HEIGHTS

St. Elizabeth of Hungary Purchases Vacant Plot on Northern Avenue.

The Hospital of St. Elizabeth of Hungary, now at 415 West Fifty-first Street, has purchased from Louise L. Sichel the vacant plot on the east side of Northern Avenue, beginning ten feet north of West 190th Street and running through the block to Fort Washington Avenue, with frontages respectively of 66.7 and 127 feet, a northerly line of 151 feet by irregular and a southerly line of 208 feet.

A new structure will be erected on the site. Construction details and plans regarding the future of the present downtown hospital could not be learned today.

Dudley F. Sicher represented the seller in the transaction and Arthur T. O'Leary acted for the buyer.

The site is opposite the cloisters of George Gray Barnard, recently sold by him to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

BLOCK FRONT LEASED IN LOWER MANHATTAN

Seven Six-Story Buildings on Morris Street in Ten-Year Contract.

Charles F. Noyes Company has leased for Bernard F. Golden the seven six-story store and tenement buildings occupying the block front on Morris Street from West to Washington Streets to Salim F. Zaloom and Joseph A. Zaloom for ten years. Mr. Zaloom will make extensive alterations including the installation of new stores on all streets.

The Landine Holding Corporation (Henry Hyams, President) has leased for a term of twenty-one years, with option to purchase, from the Estate of Ellen McMahon, the entire block front on the northerly side of Emmons Avenue from Ocean Avenue to East Nineteenth Street, together with the waterfront on the opposite side of Emmons Avenue. The lessee intends to make extensive improvements to the property, to be completed before the end of the season. William G. Morrisey Jr., was the broker in the transaction.

Henry Shapiro & Co. leased for the Zanhar Realty Company to Jacob Dyorkind, building at 210 West Thirty-fifth Street. The building has been extensively altered by the lessor into a store and loft building. The tenant will occupy the ground floor for his own business. The lease is for a long term of years. The same brokers also leased loft in the building at 218-22 West Thirty-fourth Street to Max Zweigenthal.

Hall & Stern leased for 15 West Thirty-ninth Street, Inc., the entire third floor in the new building now being erected at 15-19 West Thirty-ninth Street to Salo Veilchenblau & Co. for a term of years.

Wright Barclay, Inc., in connection with Thoens & Flaunlacher, leased the ninth floor in the building 461-463 Fourth Avenue to Steinbrucker Wellenkamp & Nadel; also part of the tenth floor in the same building to John H. Egger.

Adams & Co. leased a floor at 144 West Thirty-seventh Street, to Louis Bernstein; a floor at 11 West Twenty-fifth Street, to Max Brill Sons, Inc., a floor at 8 East Twelfth Street, to Eli Cohen; floors in 34-6 East Tenth Street to Cosmos Paper Company and Acret Printing Company. For Samuel C. Nessler, space at No. 257 Fourth Avenue to Oakdale Woolen Company.

Cushman & Wakefield, Inc., leased for the Anahma Realty Corporation, offices in 50 East Forty-second Street to Senator Benjamin Antin; for the same owners, offices in the Hockher Building, 730 Fifth Avenue, to J. S. & H. S. Cram, and offices in the Canadian Pacific Building, 342 Madison Avenue, to The Playground Equipment Company, Inc.

Payson McL. Merrill Company leased for a long term of years for the Osborne Holding Company to the Virginia Tea Room, Inc., the ground floor and basement at 211 West Fifty-seventh Street.

Thoens & Flaunlacher, Inc., leased for the Twenty-first Street and Fifth Avenue Corporation (Samuel Jacobs, President) the entire seventh floor, containing approximately 11,000 square feet, in the building at 160 Fifth Avenue, at the northwest corner of Twenty-first Street and Fifth Avenue, to Max Grumbacker. The lease is for a long term of years and completes the renting of the entire building. The lessee is an importer of artists' materials and brushes.

Cushman & Wakefield, Inc., have leased for the Anahma Realty Corporation a large suite of offices in the Vanderbilt Concourse Building, 52 Vanderbilt Avenue, to the Sun Oil Company; for the same owners additional offices in 50 East Forty-second Street to Owners' Improvement Corporation and American Good-Will Association.

PRIVATE HOUSE SALES.

Russian General Buys Dwelling on the West Side.

Victor A. Yakhontoff, a Russian General, purchased through Coughlan & Co., Inc., the four-story and basement dwelling at 144 West Eighty-second Street from John A. Barnes. The property was held at $40,000. This property was sold to Mr. Barnes by the same brokers about four years ago.

Benenson Realty Company has purchased from a client of G. Cahen the four-story private dwelling at 307 West Seventy-sixth Street. The property is on a lot 22 by 100 and adjoins the northwest corner of West End Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street.

Jacob Goodman sold to Edmond W. Spencer the three-story brownstone highstoop dwelling, size 20 by 100 feet, at 107 West 128th Street, through Kemuel Baxter, broker.

Sells Harlem Corner.

Martin D. Greenwald sold for the F. M. Sandberg Realty Corporation to an investor the northeast corner of 117th Street and Fifth Avenue, 25 by 100 feet.

BROADWAY CORNER SOLD TO INVESTOR

Samuel Hoffman Sells 7-Story Loft at Thirteenth St.—Other Business Building Deals.

Samuel Hoffman, represented by Nathaniel J. Greene, sold the southwest corner of Thirteenth Street and Broadway, a seven-story store and loft building, to an investing client of Murray Brenner & Co. Mr. Hoffman acquired this property in March of this year and disposes of it at a substantial profit. Mr. Hoffman has been very active in this vicinity, having recently disposed of the entire block front on the west side of Broadway, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets, which he acquired from the Roosevelt estate, and upon which will be constructed a twenty-two-story building for the clothing trade.

Frank R. Houghton, Inc., sold for Louis & Herrman to Robert B. Bowler 420 Third Avenue, 24 by 95 feet, a three-story business building, which has been completely modernized.

The property at 275 Church Street was sold by Man and Barnet Welinsky to Dr. Anna S. Wilner. This property is located between Franklin and White Streets and consists of a four-story building on a lot 25 by 75 feet. Bollman, Vossler & Co. were the brokers.

The same brokers recently sold the property 273 Church Street, adjoining, to Dr. Wilner, and she now controls a plot 50 by 75 feet in the heart of the downtown dry goods district. Negotiations are pending for a resale of the entire plot.

Worthington Whitehouse, Inc., sold for Thomas Corkery 306 East Ninety-eighth Street, a one-story stable, 25 by 100 feet. This is the first change in ownership in over thirty-eight years, the deed to the present owner being recorded in the first liber on file in the Hall of Records.

ALAMAC HOTEL SOLD IN FORECLOSURE SUIT

Plaintiff Bids $2,993,279 for Nineteen-Story Building on Broadway Corner.

The nineteen-story Alamac Hotel at the southeast corner of Broadway and Seventy-first Street was sold at auction yesterday in the Vesey Street Salesroom by order of Irwin Berliner, referee, for $2,993,279. It was offered in foreclosure proceedings by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, and was struck down to the Forest Hills Terrace Corporation, plaintiff.

The amount necessary to satisfy the liens on the property was $2,518,279 and the sale brought $475,000 above the encumbrances.

The hotel, on a plot 112 by 172 feet, contains 540 guest rooms and was built in 1923 from plans by Maynicke & Franke, architects, by the George Dose Engineering Company. It was sold some time before completion to the Alamac Hotel Company, A. Latz President.

The site was formerly owned by the Church of the Blessed Sacrament. The hotel has been in the hands of receivers since November, 1924.

BRONX TRANSACTIONS.

Lots, Tenement and Taxpayer in Borough Sales.

Ennis & Sinnott purchased from Martha Innis Young the vacant plot consisting of seventeen lots on the south side of 167th Street, from Nelson to Woodycrest Avenue, on plot 223 by 200 by 212 by 201 feet. Charles W. McChesney was the broker in the transaction.

A. Michaelson sold for H. Haberly 1,631 Marmion Avenue, a five-story new law tenement. It is a twenty-five-family house, divided into three and four room suites, showing a rental of $14,500 and was held at $95,000. Also sold for the Rosetta Realty Company a taxpayer located at the northwest corner of Webster Avenue and 167th Street, to an investing client. It consists of ten stores showing a rental of $13,500 and was held for $125,000.

Trinity Place Resale.

The Lerner Stores Corporation has resold the six-story office building at 70 to 76 Trinity Place to Morris Bienstock and Henry Greenberg, builders. The property has a frontage of 104 feet on Trinity Place and a depth of about fifty feet.

Buys S. I. Residence Plot.

J. Sterling Drake sold to Italo & Rocchina Nicolai a plot 25 by 105 on Union Avenue, Federal Park, Staten Island, adjoining other property belonging to the Nocolais, on which they are going to build a residence for their own occupancy.

To Remodel East Side House.

The estate of Louis Tim sold 226 Lexington Avenue, a four-story dwelling, on a lot 19 by 90 feet, between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth Streets. The buyer will remodel the house for business and hold it for investment. Pease & Elliman were the brokers.

MAMARONECK SITES RESOLD AT PROFIT

Badolato Building and Shore Acre Lots Bring Advances in Quick Resales.

ARVERNE COTTAGES SOLD

Bay Ocean Realty Associates, Inc., Buy Boulevard Property—Other Sales.

The suburban realty market was featured by the sale and resale of Mamaroneck properties through the office of Johnson & Wright. These brokers sold the two-and-a-half-story Badolaro business building, at the corner of Prospect and Mamaroneck Avenues, in the morning for $43,500. In the afternoon, they resold the same property to a client at an advance of $6,500. The same brokers resold ten building lots in Shoreacres for Valentine & Stein to Albert G. Enman for $11,000. The sellers bought these lots four weeks ago through the same brokers for $6,000.

Johnson & Wright also sold for $20,000 the Annunsiato property, 175 by 150 feet, with buildings, corner of Keeler Avenue and Florence Street, to a client who will subdivide.

Prince & Ripley sold for Junius J. Pittman his residence at 71 Harman Avenue in the Pelhamwood section of Pelham, to Bertram L. Kraus. It was held at $37,500.

The Charlton Estate, Inc., sold its plot of one-half acre fronting on South Broadway and Wallace Place through to Hale Avenue, White Plains, to a client of Philip J. Knobloch. The plot was held at $25,000.

The Chain Stores Leasing Company in conjunction with the Siebert Realty Company sold for the Converse Realty Company the southwest corner of Boston Post Road and Larchmont Avenue, Larchmont, a new two-story brick building, now under construction, having a frontage of 152 feet, to William H. Muller. The same company sold the property on the Lapost Realty Company through the Chain Stores Leasing Company.

Bennett E. Siegelstein, acting for the Jay G. Wilbraham Corporation, has closed title to the Owen Mansion at Pelham Manor, which was sold on behalf of the Jay G. Wilbraham Corporation, former owners of the Gladstone, and the brokers were Fish & Marvin.

The property was held at $500,000. It is on the City Line, having a frontage of 460 feet on Wolf's Lane, 350 feet on Secor

The Finest Plan on Park Ave.

WHEN you consider that this building was erected before the war when labor and materials were a fraction of what they are now you will readily understand why we can offer rooms that are larger, ceilings that are higher, and closets that cannot be duplicated elsewhere, at rentals no higher than those asked for other accommodations.

As an added feature the garden around which the building is erected assures you of perfect light and cross ventilation as well as a charming outlook.

270 Park Ave.

The apartments range in size from 6 to 15 rooms, with 3 to 5 baths.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24.—A disturbance is central over Northwestern Ohio and moving rapidly east-northeastward with increasing intensity. The disturbance has been attended by showers within the last twenty-four hours in the Ohio, the Upper Mississippi and the Lower Missouri Valleys, Tennessee, portions of the lake region and the Middle Atlantic States, Oklahoma and the Southern Rocky Mountain region. Pressure is also low north of Newfoundland and over the Pacific States, Arizona and Northern Alberta. An extensive area of high pressure is moving eastward over the Rocky Mountain region and the plains States, and high pressure prevails also off the Atlantic Coast.

The temperature has fallen from Northern Texas northeastward to Wisconsin and it has risen in the Canadian Northwest and the Pacific States. No higher temperatures were ever recorded during the month of June at the following places: San Francisco, Portland and Roseburg, Ore.

The Ohio disturbance will continue to move rapidly east to northeastward and it will be attended by rain in the lower lake region and the North Atlantic States and by showers in the Mid-Atlantic, South Atlantic and East Gulf States and the extreme upper Ohio Valley on Thursday. Generally fair weather will prevail Thursday in Tennessee and the middle and lower Ohio Valley and throughout the Washington forecast district on Friday, except for somewhat lower temperature in Tennessee and the interior of the East Gulf and South Atlantic States; the temperature will not change materially east of the Mississippi River during the next two days.

Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from Delaware Breakwater to Eastport, Me.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. HERE'S WHAT HAPPENS TO SHOES IN VACATION TIME!

This is the kind of wear Keds are built to stand!

TWELVE hours of racing and tearing every day—tramping, climbing, playing a hundred strenuous games—

Boys and girls are hard enough on shoes during the school year—but when vacation comes it's almost an economic necessity to put them in Keds!

Keds are built so strong and durable that they give the longest possible wear on the active feet of growing boys and girls. In addition, their springy rubber soles and uppers of carefully selected canvas give the very maximum of light, cool comfort and freedom.

These are the reasons why thousands of parents have found that when they buy vacation shoes it pays to insist on Keds. And these are also the reasons why Keds are ideal for every vacation use—for games, hikes, camping, picnics, canoeing—for young and old alike.

But remember—they are not Keds unless the name Keds is on the shoe. Keds are made only by the United States Rubber Company—no other shoe can give you Keds quality and value.

You can get Keds in all the popular styles—high and low, brown and white—and at prices from $1.25 to $4.50.

Ask for Keds—and make sure you get Keds!

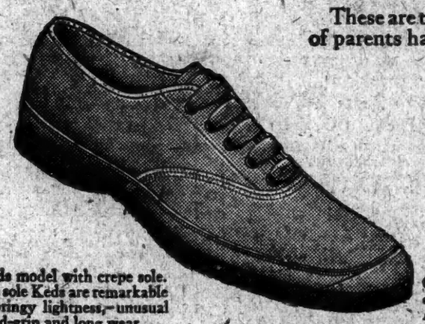
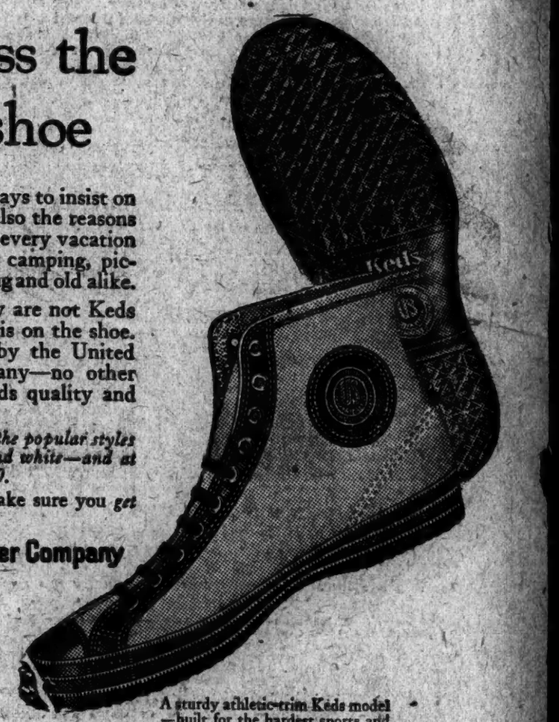
United States Rubber Company



A Keds model with crepe sole. Crepe sole Keds are remarkable for springy lightness,—unusual ground-grip and long wear.

One of the many Keds models especially designed for children. Attractive, cool, comfortable and built to wear.



A sturdy athletic-trim Keds model—built for the hardest sports and vacation wear. This model has the popular lace-to-toe feature. Athletic-trims also come in lace-to-instep style—and with black, brown or gray trim.
